SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Rambler Roses.

Of all the exhibits made at the flower shows in the east a few years ago, the rambler roses attracted the most attention. The varieties of these beautiful plants have increased rapidly and they can now be had in all the shades of red and pink and also white. The single varieties have also been greatly improved and many of these make most beautiful plants. Every grower should have a few of these for Easter, and even if they do not sell, they can be grown on for next year when a finer and larger plant will be had and the wood grown this year can be propagated, and if planted outside, will make nice plants. Plants grown in the field and lifted this fall will have to be started the first of the year to have them in bloom for Easter; pot-grown plants can be started two weeks later. They should be firmly potted in good rose soil, and placed in a cool house, one not running higher than 45 degrees at night, and syringed often to soften the wood. Before the eyes start into growth the plants should be tied out into the shape they are to be grown. These plants can by a little ingenuity and care be trained into any shape desired. Many fancy as well as grotesque forms are now seen every year. To the inexperienced the round spreading plant should be the first attempted. Five or six stakes at the edge of the pot with the stems wound around and two or three arching over the center is the simplest form. Experienced growers have them in the shape of umbrellas, large balls, ships, and any form they desire. When the growths have got well started the plants should be moved into a temperature of 55 degrees at night, and the syringing on bright days should be kept up to prevent insects from getting a foothold. By the middle of March the flowers should begin to show color and if they do not a little warmer temperature will be required to have them well in bloom for the first week in April. A regular rose temperature of 60 degrees at night will be necessary, but the flowers are not of as good color nor do they last as well if they are unduly forced. A fine assortment of these includes Crimson Rambler, Philadelphia Rambler, Dorothy Perkins, White Dorothy Perkins, Tausendschon, Lady Gay, Hiawatha and American Pillar, and in the baby ramblers, Crimson Baby, Jessie, Phyllis and Orleans.

Lilies.

The lilies for Easter should be brought into warm temperature right after the first of the year. A house of 60 degrees at night should bring them into perfect condition for Easter when it occurs at the time it does this year. Those that are in 4-inch pots should be potted in 6-inch, and we have found the best way to do this was to first place a crock in the bottom of the pot and cover with about an inch of soil, then place the 4-inch plant on this, filling in around the stem above the old ball. The lily always throws out roots at the base of the stem when the buds form, and if potted in this manner these roots will be in soil and materially aid the plant in perfecting the bloom. With these roots covered with soil the plant also makes a much better appearance. The soil in which they are potted should be a rich compost of about the same composition as is used in rose culture, and the plant should be firmly potted and well watered and placed in a good light location where the plants will not get drawn. A plant 18 to 24 inches high when in bloom with the foliage thickly studded along the stem, is the one most desired at Easter. Keep the aphid down all the time by constant fumigation. These little insects are the worst plague to the lily grower, for if they once get established on lilies they are very difficult to dislodge, so it is much better to give the plants a fumigation every week and thus guard against them than to wait until their presence is manifest and try to kill them. This is one of the most pronounced cases where "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Begonias of Lorraine Type.

For the large plants for next winter's flowering we are placing the cuttings in the propagating bench now. The plants were selected before Christmas and strong, healthy specimens taken for propagation. The flowers were removed and the plants given a warm location that the best vigor might be maintained. Any leaf showing bluish is discarded, only clean, healthy leaves being used from which to raise the young stock. A warm propagating bed is chosen for these plants and the stems are inserted in the sand deep enough so that about half an inch of the leaf is below the surface. They are kept moist and warm until they are rooted, when they are potted in 2½-inch pots and placed in a warm house and shifted along as required. This may seem a trifle early by many growers to start the propagating of these plants, but there is always demand for some large specimens and fine leaves are obtainable at this time and they root easily during January and February when the propagating bench is warm. The plants will require considerable care and attention during the heated spell of July and August, but with plenty of ventilation and a light shade, they are easily kept moving and make fine plants for the holidays.

Fuchsias.

It is now a good time to start the old stock plants of fuchsias, for there is plenty of room in the propagating bench and it is the early struck cuttings that make the fine plants for vases and boxes, and if cuttings are taken in spring they immediately produce a flower and it is difficult to get a good growth, the plant often remaining short with a stunted appearance, yet bearing flowers. If the old plants have been thoroughly ripened, shake the soil off and pot in a good new loam, cut back the wood and place them in a warm house and syringe plentifully. The young growths will shortly appear and should be made into cuttings as soon as they have attained a length of an inch and a half or two inches. As soon as rooted pot in 2-inch pots and give the young stock a warm temperature. When growth commences the top can be taken off and another cutting made, and the plants shifted to 3-inch pots. Another stopping will be necessary in late winter to make nice, bushy plants that will be full of bloom in early spring. Keep them clean from mealy bug by constant spraying.

Spiræas.

The spiræas are always a very useful plant at Easter, but they are classed among the cheaper plants at that time, so should be grown in such a way that they do not occupy valuable space any more than necessary. They should be brought into a cool house by the middle of January and until the foliage begins to grow can be placed along the edge of the walks if room is not available, but they must not be left standing in this location too long, for when the leaves begin to unfold they quickly draw toward the light and a plant growing to one side of the pot will be the result. So as soon as growth starts they should be placed on the bench in full light. They can be grown quite close together for some time, but when the foliage begins to touch that of the plant beside it they should be spaced out and given room enough for the plants to grow shapely. Spiræas require a large quantity of water during their entire culture, especially those that are potted in as small a pot as possible, which is the general custom with all growers. To make the large specimens, two or three clumps are planted in the same pot when started. These will make large plants for church decorations at Easter. If the plants are grown in a house which is to be fumigated by tobacco smoke they should either be removed from the house or well covered with papers; the foliage quickly burns when subjected to tobacco smoke and the plants are blemished.

Cyclamens.

"What can we do with the old cyclamen plants?" is a question often asked by many growers. As a rule the answer is, "Throw them away," for a plant can be grown to a 6-inch or 7-inch pot size in 16 months. That is, seed sown in September will produce such a plant for Christmas the following year, and it is uncertain how the old plants will carry through the spring and sum-

Primula Malacoides in Decorated Basket.

mer. There is a limited demand for cyclamen plants in larger sizes than 7-inch pots and they must of necessity bring a good figure to make them remunerative. After they are through blooming the best way to handle them is to shake the old soil out and pot them up in fresh soil, two parts loam one part well rotted manure and one part leaf mold with a good sprinkling of sharp sand. If the soil is inclined to be heavy and sticky, add more sand. They can frequently be potted in a pot a size smaller than that in which they have been growing. Place them in a cool temperature, that is, in a house from 45° to 50° at night, so as to encourage root action and slow growth. It used to be the custom to dry the bulbs off so that they lost all their foliage and start them in the spring, but growers have found that our springs and summers are too hot and dry and it is often difficult to make the bulb, after it has been dried off, break a good luxuriant foliage, and it is far better to keep the plant growing all the time. As the warm, sunny days of spring come on, the plants should be slightly shaded and as early as possible placed in cold frames and the glass shaded. The shade should not be made too heavy or the leaves will become drawn and an unshapely plant will be the result. After the plants have begun to grow, care should be taken that they do not become pot bound, but shifted into large sizes as soon as necessary. The watering of this stock will require constant study and attention. They should never become too dry and it is very easy to overwater, so they will require looking after very closely until a good growth has been encouraged.

Seeds for Present Sowing.

There are a number of plants, that in order to obtain the best stock, it is necessary that the seeds be sown during January. Centaurea gymnocarpa is slow in making its growth, and to have nice plants for edging the beds of geraniums and other plants, an early start is required. Vinca rosea should be sown in January to obtain a good blooming stock at planting time. Lobelia should be sown by February 1 that fine stock plants may be had. If it is proposed to reset the smilax beds next year, this is the time to get the seed started. Begonia Vernon and the other summer blooming varieties, if sown early, make fine plants by May, full of flowers. Gloxinias and tuberous begonias can be sown at this time and blooming plants had for the coming summer. Many growers have given up the propagation of verbenas from cuttings and depend upon seedlings, and to have a nicely branched plant by June 1, the seed should be sown the last of January. Another useful border plant is Pyrethrum aureum (golden feverfew) and this should be sown early to get good size plants at bedding out time. There are not many cannas these days, grown from seed, but anyone intending to grow them in that manner should sow the seeds in January. These seeds will germinate much more readily and evenly if soaked in water for 24 hours before planting. Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri should be sown now when there is good heat in the greenhouses, and these seeds, like the cannas, start much more evenly if soaked.

Primula Malacoides.

Of all the winter flowering plants ever introduced this species of the primula is the most useful and profitable to the retail florist. Brought over from Germany some five years ago, it gained favor rapidly with growers of pot plants and is now a standard for the market with every greenhouse man.

As all the stock is grown from seed, a number of growers have, by hybridization and selection, produced new forms of this type, some with larger flowers and others showing quite a range of colors from pure white to a deep pink that is almost red. There is a difference in growth from tall long leaved stock that throw their flowers well up to others of quite compact form with low heads of blooms that almost conceal the foliage.

It is a profitable plant for the grower, being a catch crop after chrysanthemums, which can be finished and sold before the time comes to spread out the Easter stock. Strong plants in 2½-inch pots, shifted to 4-inch pots to follow the chrysanthemums, come along nicely in a cool temperature, a few of the most forward being ready for the holiday trade. Their season lasts all through January and February, they being at the height of their bloom during the latter month. There is no plant yet introduced that makes such a mass of foliage and bloom in a 4-inch pot as does this type of primula. As the earth becomes a mass of roots it holds together well in packing, slipped into paper pots with a bamboo stake in the center the length of the flower, and well wrapped in paper, they can be packed closely together in corrugated pasteboard boxes and will carry safely for quite long distances.

In the store there is no limit to the various uses to which they are available. One plant fits nicely into a small handle basket which, with a ribbon decoration, is as pretty as flowers and lasts longer. Two or three in a low pan make a good table center, while individual plants with a little covering on the pot can be sold in large quantities when made the feature of a special sale. Reducing the balls a trifle and mossing makes them available for the base of a design or in large wreaths.

Primula malacoides can be used with good effect in table decorations when a slender tall glass or painted tin vase, rising from a bed or small mound of these plants, is filled with roses or carnations or other flowers. These make fine center pieces for small round tables or placed at equal distances serve fully as well for large banquet affairs.

Some of the shades of purple, pink tones work in well with cattleyas and are quite a favorite with many for corsages. The various forms in which they can be featured for sale makes them especially desirable for the St. Valentine's Day business. Any of the small gilt or silvered tokens of the supply houses, or heart dotted ribbons will give a St. Valentine finish that will greatly add to their sale.

Primula malacoides is a gem that every flower shop proprietor should feature for the next six weeks to the best of his ability when he will find it to be both a winner of money and new customers.

Fire and Water.

There are two essentials in the greenhouse that should be always ready for instant service, namely: fire and water. Temperatures must be maintained as economically as possible. All steam and return pipes should be kept clear so as to admit of free circulation of air about them, and what is more important boilers which are frequently located in cellars under working sheds should be constantly inspected and kept clear of all kinds of rubbish and thus avoid danger from fire. More disastrous fires have occurred in greenhouse establishments from such neglect than from any other cause. Water pipes should always be protected from frost, particularly in houses that are kept without fire for a time. There should also be good pressure so as to conserve time in watering.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—Wm. H. Cline expects to build greenhouses on his property on North Seventh street, in the near future.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Steven Verga, who formerly operated the Alex. Klokner greenhouses, now has a range of his own on the Blue Mound road.

MERIDEN, CONN.—Reuben C. Blathley, owner of a flower store on West Main street, suffered a loss of about $1,000 when vandals recently daubed paint on a greenhouse he is building.

SAVANNAH, GA.—With retail prices fully maintaining former levels, A. C. Oelschig & Sons state that the total money value of the 1921 Christmas business was but five per cent less than a year ago. A lively demand developed for the cheaper flowering plants, due to the business depression here, although well finished and larger plants sold to a certain extent. The quality of all flowers was fine and the offerings of roses and carnations were insufficient for the trade. Violets, though, were plentiful enough for all purposes. The supply of narcissi was more than was needed, in the bulbous offerings.

Ladies' Society of American Florists.

PRESIDENT M. C. GUNTERBERG'S MESSAGE.

As president of the Ladies' Society of American Florists, my first act is to extend hearty greetings and best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year, to all members of our beloved society, to the members of the Society of American Florists and all affiliated societies—yes, to each and every one engaged in the business of floriculture and horticulture and its allied branches. May the year 1922 be the beginning of a happy new era for all. May your fondest dreams be realized; may you come nearer to that goal to which you aspire. May your efforts, your courage in past years of trial and tribulations, be crowned with success, with peace and happiness—that happiness and contentment, which you so richly deserve.

I am proud to be the president of the Miss Martha C. Gunterberg, Chicago.

Pres. Ladies' Society of American Florists.

Ladies' Society of American Florists. Whatever good fortune the future may bring, no greater honor than this can come to me, than to be president of an organization, whose members are engaged in spreading sunshine and good cheer, smiles and happiness along the pathway of life. What greater deeds can anyone do? A Carnegie may give libraries, a Rockefeller endow universities costing millions of dollars, yet neither is as great a philanthropist as the humblest florist with the lowliest greenhouse. For every moment that he labors, he is spreading happiness—happiness, which every human heart craves, from the babe in arms to the tottering old man on the brink of the grave.

Flowers welcome the new-born babe, with a message of greeting full of joy of living. Flowers give pleasure to the romping youngster. To the sweet girl graduate, they bring the crowning glory of achievement. To the bride, radiant with happiness, the bridal flowers speak of undying love and devotion. To the mother, on Mothers' Day, flowers bring a message from the son, who may be far away, bringing back to memory the days of long ago, when her boy first lisped the name of mother. In the sick-room, flowers bring cheer, like a ray of golden sunshine on a gloomy day. And then—when the grim reaper calls, flowers in their silent language, speak of sympathy and sorrow to those near and dear. With their beauty and fragrance, they take away the sting of death—for what sadder sight can one behold than a casket without a flower? Even on a grave, flowers say to those that pass: "Gone but not forgotten."

What a dreary world this would be, were it not for flowers, trees, shrubs and the green grass? The smallest cottage becomes "a thing of beauty and a joy forever," with a climbing vine or two, a bed of blooming plants on a velvety lawn, sings of "Home, Sweet Home,"—while the costliest mansion is but a mere pile of stone and marble, without flowers and the green grass.

Fellow florists and those of the allied trades, may this message of mine help to make you realize the great good you are doing, may it spur you on to greater efforts and achievements, for are you not producing and distributing a product, more valuable than precious stones, more beautiful than costly velvets and tapestries of rich texture—for has not the Master said: "Consider the lilies of the field—they rival Solomon in all his glory."

I congratulate you on having chosen this profession, by which to obtain your livelihood and may I ask the members of the Society of American Florists and allied societies, that they co-operate with me to bring more members into the Ladies' Society of American Florists? Just a word of encouragement, to the sister or daughter, mother, sweetheart, or wife, may mean a new member for our society and greater understanding of your aspirations and sympathy in your endeavors for you.

For after all, back of every great man's success, is the silent partner—a woman. It may be the mother, who in your growing years has trained you to be the man you are, has instilled in you those qualities which have made your success possible, or it may be the sweetheart, who believes in you, who has faith in your ability to reach the top—who with her words of encouragement speeds you on to overcome all obstacles on the rocky road to success. Or it may be the wife, who through years of toil and hardships has struggled along, side by side, never faltering, never wavering, making sacrifice after sacrifice, so that you might attain success and be looked up to in your community. Whichever it may be, the Ladies' Society of American Florists will be proud to count her among its members. My aim during 1922, shall be to increase that membership—to add more members to the ranks of those "who are making the world more beautiful than they found it."

I see not a step before me as I tread on another year;
But I've left the past in God's keeping—the future His mercy shall clear.
And what looks dark in the distance may brighten as I draw near.

It may be He keeps waiting, for the coming of my feet,
Some gift of such rare blessedness, some joy so strangely sweet,
That my lips shall only tremble with the thanks they cannot speak.

So I go on not knowing—I would not if I might;
I would rather walk in the dark with God, than go alone in the light.

And thus, each step of my onward path, He makes new scenes arise,
And every joy He sends comes like a sweet surprise.

May your pleasant surprises, be as numerous as the days of the year.
May God bless you and keep you all in health, happiness and prosperity.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

This is mid winter and with snow on the ground flowers will be sure to be an appreciated gift which should be emphasized in every possible way. As a striking window decoration, a summer garden scene may be made with a section of fence or a bit of lattice partially covered with southern smilax and asparagus as if growing, sufficiently thick to conceal small glass flower tubes which when filled with sweet peas will simulate a very pretty bit of summer sunshine. The same idea may be carried out with short roses trained over an arched gateway, covering a pebbled path, through a lawn of green sheet moss with a small bed or two of roses in full flower. This may be labeled "a morning in June" or "a bit of June sunshine." A few boxes of the flowers used, displayed on a garden bench may be marked "Let your friends enjoy this summer atmosphere with a few of these lovely blossoms." Such windows will not be difficult to arrange and in contrast with the winter surroundings are certain to attract attention.

The first of the spring bulbs are now appearing, while they are more or less a novelty they should be featured in small baskets with pussy willows, also in shallow bowls with perforated block holders and in figured vases, etc. They are sure to attract more notice with such artistic arrangement and help dispose of various receptacles that were badly in need of a lift.

CALENDULAS USEFUL AS CONTRASTS.

Calendulas which are now getting up to their winter standard will, with their brilliant orange coloring, be found useful in contrasts with other flowers. Small baskets of all calendulas and pussy willows will oft times fill the bill for the customer who wants just a small arrangement to take along.

Pansies are popular with most buyers. They can be made into pretty corsages with the aid of small green galax leaves, into which the stems are pulled through punched holes or cut slots so that the flowers lie flat or face up. With the stems wound with a pinch of wet sphagnum they will last quite a long time. They also look well in low flat baskets with the stems in moss when they make a good lunch table decoration. A few scattered over the top of a box of flowers gives a finish that is sure to be admired.

A little care in placing cut flowers in a box will add much to the effect. A dozen roses should be placed six at each end, so that each flower shows with stems toward the center. These should be tied down in the middle with a piece of tape coming up through the bottom at each edge. A little wax paper as a padding for the tie makes a better job. A small cushion of wax paper under the buds makes them more effective when the box is opened. When other stocks are included they can be arranged on top, the roses with stems towards the center, but placed in such a position that all the flowers show. They can then all be tied in by the same piece of tape. A little green, a scented spray or two and a few pansies to top off will present a pretty finish when the box is opened.

Croton leaves and sprays are good stock to have on hand all through the season. A leaf or two in a box of flowers is always admired and a spray of the highly colored foliage will add variety to baskets, sprays and other cut flower arrangements.

BRIDE'S SHOWER BUNCH OF SWEET PEAS.

Sweet peas are an important factor as they are one of the most popular flowers available for all classes of floral arrangements. From now on the supply will be unlimited and they should be constantly kept to the front, featured in baskets, corsages, flower bowls, nicely arranged in boxes, with here and there a touch of pussy willows, all ready for immediate delivery. A bride's shower bunch of white sweet peas makes a good window piece which has a publicity value that may be cashed in later on.

Primula malacoides and others of its species are now almost at their best and will be found one of the most profitable of the winter flowering plants. The small balls of soil fit the liners of small baskets, which with their wealth of flowers and foliage they fill completely. A little bow of ribbon on the handle and the arrangement is as acceptable as a basket of cut flowers and will last much longer. Several together in a pan make a splendid center for the table. Plants with the pots covered with matting or other decoration can be given a basket appearance with a few arched pussy willow sprays stuck in the pot and a little bow of fibre ribbon.

Every florist, no matter how small his business, should carry a line of pottery, just a few samples and a little assortment of standard baskets. With a few plants standing in fancy jars and baskets displayed here and there the store will have a more or less dressy appearance that makes a good impression on the visitor.

The great majority of flower shops need no such advice but there are many who are always complaining of dull times, who either do not know how to do business or do not care. In some shops red wreaths hang in the window until Easter and in others dead plants will stand around for a month. I once saw two dead evergreens, one on either side of the front door of a flower shop on Easter Saturday, where they had been on duty from the autumn. Such indifference is deplorable. Every florist who wants to do business should keep his shop clean and inviting, with plants and other stock removed immediately as soon as it becomes unsightly. Most people come into the store without ment to buy and if they go out without having made a purchase they are apt to at son, and it is up to Mr. florist and once have a tussle with try to solve the problem.

THE S. A. F.

National Publicity Campaign.

The campaign commences the second four-year term of its establishment with a subscription fund of $35,000 pledged for use in creating publicity for flowers during 1922. This amount includes also subscriptions due on pledges made covering the previous four years and only partially collected. Opportunity is here taken to impress upon all subscribers in arrears the importance of prompt discharge of their pledges, in order that the publicity committee may be placed in a position to properly function. The members of the committee give generously of their time and efforts to continue the effectiveness of the campaign, and it is unfair to them that they should be obliged to face uncertainties as to collections when they are considering advertising contracts in the best interests of all concerned.

It was hoped that a statement in detail as to the financial situation could be appended to this report, but owing to the great press of business, mostly detail and character, which the staff of the office has been wrestling with during the past two or three weeks, it has been impossible to properly prepare the same. Every mail now is bringing matter necessitating changes and additions, so that at best such a statement at this time would be anything but accurate. It is, however, most cheering to report a large number of voluntary increases in the amounts of subscriptions previously pledged. Many subscribers are doubling and redoubling their former pledges, and an interest is being asserted in the campaign which is most gratifying to the committee.

The committee is enabled at this, the opening of the second campaign period, to make their plans with a judgment ripened by experience. They realize that conditions are not quite the same as they were four years ago. The slogan, "Say it with Flowers," has been put over, and established beyond even the imagination of the greatest enthusiast in the campaign. Its value is recognized by practically every industrial interest in the land, and to let it lag now would be nothing short of a crime. On every hand we find evidence of attempts to pervert the admittedly simple phrase, making it all the more necessary that we should increase efforts to maintain the prestige established for it. The piracies are so flagrant that the public fails to assimilate them, and instead of hurting, they really help, and at best are considered stupid and likely to prove to the disadvantage of those who seek to perpetrate them. "Say it with Meats," "Say it with Furniture," "Say it with Perfume," and all such perversions are ridiculous, and an open admission that the slogan of the florists is the best ever adopted, and far reaching in its effect.

The committee, however, is considering ways and means to check this assault upon what we justly consider to be our prerogative, and have already decided upon steps to be taken immediately. All florists are asked to report to the secretary any violation of the slogan which may come to their notice, so that the committee will have sufficient evidence to work upon when they are ready to move. Incidentally, the following letter to Chairman Henry Penn from the director of the national vigilance committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, shows that the pirating of a slogan is frowned upon by the leading organization in the advertising world.

"December 19, 1921.

Henry Penn, Chairman,
Publicity Committee,
National Publicity Campaign,

Boston, Mass.

"Re: Slogan 'Say it with Flowers.'
My dear Mr. Penn:

"This slogan is so original and valuable, that you may be sure we shall be exceedingly interested in the communication which we are to receive from the secretary of the Society of American Florists.

"Just on the face of it, the appropriation and derogation of the slogan by the phrase 'Say it with Furniture—Flowers Die,' is greatly to be deplored.

"We shall be glad to take action in this matter.—Very truly yours, Associated Advertising Clubs, H. J. Kenner, Director, National Vigilance Committee."

National Flower Show.

By the order of Chairman George Asmus, a meeting of the National Flower Show Committee will be held at the greater Bond Hotel, Hartford, Conn., at 2 p. m., Thursday, January 26, the second day of the meeting of the American Carnation Society, and of the combined exhibition of that society and the florists' interests of Hartford. In a letter recently sent out to the trade, through a typographical error, the show dates were given as March 24-April 1. As everyone knows, the dates are March 25-April 1, but attention is, nevertheless, called to the error.

Officers and Appointments.

In the list of appointments made by President Pennock, and as published last week, the name of Prof. Arno H. Nehrling, Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y., was accidentally omitted from the personnel of the committee on education, of which Fred A. Wilson, Nahant, Mass., is chairman.

Among the clubs and societies asked to recommend appointees for various committee offices, were several who failed to have their recommendations filed at the society's administration offices in time for action by the president, in accordance with the by-laws, which provide for all appointments upon the president taking office. This is much regretted, as the president was obliged to make appointments according to his own judgment as to fitness of appointees, a judgment which he would rather have left to territorial recommendation.

New York Florists' Club.

The New York Florists' Club held its regular monthly meeting in its hall at the Engineering building, January 9. Retiring President Hendrickson called the session to order and Secretary Young read the minutes of the previous meeting. President Hendrickson, in brief but well chosen remarks, turned over the gavel to the incoming president, Roman J. Irwin. A noteworthy feature of the session was the presence of President S. S. Pennock, of the Society of American Florists, and President Robert Pyle, of the American Rose Society, both being called to seats on the platform and in turn made addresses.

PRESIDENT IRWIN'S ADDRESS.

In his inaugural address, President Irwin spoke as follows:

"Friends and fellow members, I wish to assure you that I appreciate the honor of being elected president of the New York Florists' Club. I also wish to thank all members that supported me. To show my appreciation, I am going to do my best to make my administration of the office a successful one. I will need the support of every member of the club, with co-operation of all my able committees. I assure you that I will work and do everything possible to make this year, 1922, as successful as any we have had in the past history of the club."

The president appointed his committees as follows:

Transportation—Paul A. Rigo, chairman; A. L. Miller, Clifford Lowther.

Legislative—W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., chairman; F. R. Pierson, A. L. Miller.

Publicity—Aubrey S. Nash, chairman; A. M. Henshaw, A. T. Bunyard.

Exhibition—Wm. Saville, chairman; E. A. Manda, R. Hughes, C. O. Glessler, M. Matheron.

House and Entertainment—Peter Gerlaid, chairman; E. A. Hanft, A. Radice, Leo Klein, H. Hoffman.

Awards—Arthur Herrington, chairman; W. R. Pierson, C. H. Totty, John Lange, F. H. Traendly, Wm. Vert, Max Schling.

Committee on club house—A. T. De La Mare, chairman; F. H. Traendly, Jos. Manda, C. H. Totty, F. L. Atkins, I. S. Hendrickson, F. R. Pierson, Chas. Weathered, Max Schling, Percy B. Rigby, G. E. M. Stumpp, Chas. Brown.

President Pennock, of the Society of American Florists, spoke in his usual happy vein. He hoped that all the club members would join the Society of American Florists and he anticipated a very successful year for that organization. He also asked for cordial support of the Fifth National Flower Show, to be staged at Cleveland, O., March 25-April 1.

President Pyle, of the American Rose Society, always effective and pleasing on the platform, made a strong appeal for increased interest by the trade in his society. He called attention to the fact that of the 2,000 members in this city only 175 are in the trade.

There was a discussion on the time of holding the council banquet, some being against its being held during the week of the Spring Flower Show, but on a vote of the members it was decided to hold it at that time. There were seven proposals for membership in the club. The following were elected, their nominations being made at the last meeting: E. A. Ward, 512 Fifth avenue; Otto Koch, Morris Plains, N. J.; Albert A. Schanzer, 144 West 94th street; Alexis I. Polglase, 231 73rd street, Brooklyn; Andrew Sauter, 55 West 26th street; Thomas Federico, 55 West 26th street.

The vice-president, secretary and treasurer, the last two having been re-elected, made brief addresses. As it was ladies' night and a dance was on the programme the business was dispatched as quickly as possible and the floor of the large hall was made ready for the event.

Many of the members had brought their wives and daughters and for ought we know others had brought their sweethearts. Chairman Gerlaid of the house and entertainment committee and his associates had made ample preparations. A collation was served and there was dancing till a late hour. So far as we could observe, a good time was enjoyed by all.

CINCINNATI GROWERS.

With the advent of the New Year, the growers of the Cincinnati branch of the Ohio District, have started out with the spirit which has every earmark of success. Their regular monthly meeting which was held January 4 at R. Witterstaetter's plant was the best attended meeting since the birth of the organization in this city. The members took pleasure in going through Mr. Witterstaetter's fine establishment.

The meeting was called to order at 3:30 p. m., and the various committees which had been appointed at the last session had evidently worked over time according to their reports, and it was necessary to hold some of them over until our next meeting, especially the constitution and by-laws, as it is the wish of the Cincinnati branch that there be no loop-holes in the constitution and by-laws when same is ready for adoption. In addition to two new members having been taken in there were several more present with a view of getting an idea as to the purpose of the organization, and there is no doubt but that our membership will be increased at each meeting.

The subject of advertising was taken up and after some discussion it was decided to see how much could be raised by subscription from the members present, and they responded nobly, as follows: R. Witterstaetter, Wm. Murphy Co., Murphy Bros., each, $50; Jps. Imholte, Wm. Schumann, Frank Volz, Wm. Taylor, W. C. Schaefer, O. B. Murphy, Nick Vernon, Wm. Sundermann, Ed. Schumann, C. A. Murphy and Frank Deller, each, $25; L. F. Murphy, $10; John Bruckner and Edwin Murphy, each $5.

On invitation of Jos. Imholte it was decided to hold the next session at his establishment, Wednesday, February 1, at 1 p. m.

Jos. IMHOLTE, Sec'y.

ST. LOUIS DISTRICT MEETING.

The annual meeting of the St. Louis District of the National Flower Growers' Association will be held at the new Hotel Claridge, St. Louis, Mo., January 17. The executive committee will meet promptly at 9 a. m., and the pot plant, retail growers, cut flower growers, etc., at 10 a. m. The business session will convene promptly at 11 a. m. and continue for two hours, luncheon being served at 1 p. m. The committee in charge deemed it best not to have any lengthy addresses and the five hours devoted to the programme will prove especially interesting as one of the features is the election of officers.

After lunch the members will leave the hotel, Eighteenth and Locust streets, in automobiles for a visit to the various greenhouse establishments in St. Louis county. All members are requested to interest growers, in the vicinity of their homes, who are not members and bring them to St. Louis.

CLEVELAND, O., MARCH 25-APRIL 1.

The Fifth National Flower Show, which is to be staged in Cleveland, March 25-April 1, has opened an office at 368 Lenox building, with Secretary L. C. Vinson in charge. Mr. Vinson is also executive secretary of the Ohio District of the National Flower Growers' Association and has had considerable experience in handling exhibitions.

At a meeting last week, four of the gardens that will be staged at the show, in 1,000 square feet, were taken by the Cleveland Garden Club, C. Merkle & Sons, Mentor, O., Walter E. Cook, Inc., and the public schools of this city. Many of the rose gardens, to occupy 500 square feet, have been subscribed for as follows: J. M. Gasser Co., Fox, the Florist, both of this city; Lars Anderson, Rocky River, O., and Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O., A. S. Buskirk, of Independence, O., has spoken for 300 square feet to be used as a rock garden and promises, among other features, a very fine exhibit of fish.

Poster stamps, featuring a colonial dame pinning a rose on the coat lapel of her gentlemen friend, and stating the time and place of the exhibition, are now ready and present an artistic appearance, being appropriate to place on mail matter.

Plant and Seed Importation by Mail.

FEDERAL HORTICULTURAL BOARD PERMITS.

The privilege of importing plants and seeds for propagation, by mail, which heretofore has been only granted to the United States Department of Agriculture has been extended to growers who secure a special permit from the federal horticultural board and on condition that such shipments be addressed to the board at Washington, D. C., or San Francisco, Calif.

The importation, by mail, of plants and seeds for propagation, except field, vegetable and flower seeds and importations made by the Department of Agriculture has in the past been prohibited by the Post Office Department but in accordance with the new ruling permission for the importation of special permit material under Regulation No. 14 of Quarantine No. 37 is authorized on request, when warranted by the nature and amount of the proposed shipment. Such authority, if approved, will be indicated on the permit and tags for such shipments will be furnished, which are to be sent to the person in the country making the shipment. These tags will be addressed to the United States Department of Agriculture, federal horticultural board, either at Washington, D. C., or Ferry building, San Francisco, Calif., and will carry the permit under the name and address of the importer and when attached to the package will authorize the foreign postmaster to accept it for shipment. By special arrangement with the Post Office Department, such mail shipments, after inspection, may be forwarded to the importer without the payment of additional postage.

The entry requirements in the case of mail shipments are somewhat simplified. By arrangement with the customs service such shipments are permitted to come in bond directly to the Department of Agriculture, either at the Washington or San Francisco offices of the board, obviating any brokerage service for forwarding from the port of first arrival. The importer will have to provide merely for customs clearance at the two cities mentioned.

It should be clearly understood that mail shipments of plants and seeds for propagation is strictly limited to special permit material under Regulation No. 14, and to field, vegetable and flower seeds under Regulations Nos. 3 and 15, of Quarantine No. 37.

Federal Horticultural Board.

Plant Importation Restrictions.

UNDER QUARANTINE NO. 37.

There seems to be a fairly wide feeling that the federal horticultural board contemplates in the immediate future additional restrictions or prohibitions on the entry of bulbs and other classes of plants listed under Regulation No. 3, Quarantine No. 37. To correct misapprehensions on this subject it is stated that the board has so far taken no formal action in that direction. Should the board decide at any time in the near future that it is worth while to discuss further limitations on the importation of such bulbs or other articles, due notice will be given and a conference will be called at which there will be ample opportunity for all interests concerned to be heard. If, as a result of such conference, it should be determined to be desirable to still further restrict entry of such articles, before such restrictions are enforced ample time will be given for any necessary readjustments, both with respect to the home and foreign growers of such plants.

In other words, the notice to foreign growers will be such as will be deemed adequate to meet the new conditions and restriction, if any, dependent on the character of the plant concerned—one to several years. The intention would be to give the foreign grower opportunity to curtail his production and dispose of supplies which he has already under way for the American market and at the same time to give opportunity for the American grower to prepare to meet home needs. Naturally, any such curtailment, if determined upon, will not be taken until it is clearly shown that American production can within a reasonable time replace the stock theretofore imported.

The general principle underlying Quarantine No. 37 is as rapidly as possible to make this country independent of foreign supplies, with the object of ultimately reaching a condition where entry of foreign plants will be limited to new plants and such plants as are not capable of production in the United States.

C. L. MARLATT, Chairman.
Federal Horticultural Board.

Carnation Disease Proof.

London, Eng.—Crossing the American carnation known as Mrs. T. W. Lawson, with English plants has produced, after 24 years of selective breeding, a dazzling white variety, the first of a new race of disease-resistant flowers, which is described as a triumph of horticulture.

Its breeder, Stuart Low, who showed his novelty, named White Pearl, at the Royal Horticultural hall here, has succeeded in retaining the old carnation fragrance, which in many modern varieties has almost vanished. It is stated that the new registered carnation has gone through all disease tests and has come out unscathed.—New York Evening Mail.

HOLIDAY TRADE EXCEEDS EXPECTATIONS.

Christmas day opened with one of the most severe storms that has been recorded in years. Fortunately up to that time favorable weather prevailed and enabled the trade to book a volume of business that was equal to the previous year. Buyers did not appear until two days before the holiday and up to that time considerable uncertainty prevailed among the retailers as to the ultimate outcome, but the great rush on the last two days cleaned up all stock, both in plants and cut flowers, and in many instances the shops were unable to handle the throngs of visitors. The matter of delivery, on Christmas Day, was a problem, but we are informed that it was carried through successfully by the use of enclosed trucks. We do not recall when there has been such an abundance of cut flowers for this occasion as was the case this year, which was anticipated in the December 24 issue of THE AMERICAN FLORIST. Roses were most abundant, namely, Mrs. Chas. Russell, Premier and Columbia which were particularly fine. Good long stemmed firsts cleaned up quickly at satisfactory prices to the retailers. This, in fact, was one of the very few years where the florist was enabled to buy his holiday stock at reasonable prices and himself clean up a handsome profit, which condition held true for all kinds of roses. Ophelia was not much in evidence as in former years, having been largely supplanted by Butterfly. These two varieties cleaned up. Red kinds, such as Hoosier Beauty and Hadley were the respective favorites. Prices in all these advanced about 100 per cent in the few days before Christmas. This is a conservative estimate as in previous years increases have been from 200 to 400 per cent. A heavy supply of Mrs. Aaron Ward was on the market, but was easily disposed of. For many days previous to the holiday the shipping demand taxed the ability of the wholesalers to fill orders, but this dropped off as Christmas approached, leaving an ample supply for the local trade. There was the usual heavy call for red carnations, which, not being in good supply, sold at stiff figures, and reds as well as the other varieties sold out completely. Violets were plentiful and sold without any change in price. This flower seems to be neglected by the public at Christmas time. The shippers, however, disposed of enormous quantities to distant points. Poinsettias were plentiful, especially stock from the south. Locally grown flowers were of excellent quality and were given the preference by buyers. There was a fine cut of ericas available and largely used in basket work. Freesias were also in good supply and sold readily. Paper White narcissi moved slowly and not many Roman hyacinths were noted. The quality of lily of the valley was excellent and fine prices were obtained. Gardenias were decidedly scarce, as well as orchids and fancy prices were obtained for these items. The demand for holly and California red berries was the largest in the history of the local trade. Dealers in green goods also report the best Christmas ever experienced. We have never seen a finer lot of pot grown poinsettias as was offered this season, being in all sizes, from six inches to six feet. The fine quality of the azaleas offered was one of the surprises of the season. Stock in many colors was seen and brought exceptional prices. Cyclamens were in generous supply throughout the city, of varying degrees of quality. Fancy stock, as is always the case, sold out early. Ericas also were popular, all sizes being represented and selling at $4 to $20 each. E. melanthera and E. obvata sold the best, the latter kind being more plentiful than for several years. Made-up pans and baskets sold better than pot stock. Adiantum gloriosa, of the finest quality, was easily disposed of. Boston ferns, aspleniums and cibotiums all went well. New Year's, while not comparing with the Christmas trade, was not disappointing, many downtown stores reporting increased sales for cut flowers and centerpieces, with little demand for plants.

NOTES.

The holiday display of Podesta & Baldocchi was a splendid assortment of azaleas, poinsettias, begonias and foliage. V. L. Podesta stated that the firm had the best Christmas trade in its history.

Angelo J. Rossi, newly elected supervisor, has been appointed chairman of the committee of parks and playgrounds for which office he is eminently fitted.

Eric James, Elmhurst, was highly commended for the fine quality of the holiday plants he sent to this market. His Gloriosa ferns were beautiful.

T. Weiland has resumed his duties at the Art Floral Co. store, after several weeks illness.

RED CARNATIONS POPULAR.

Trade has been rather quiet the past week and the supply of cut flowers has just about kept pace with the demand, with the exception of red carnations which have cleaned up daily at good prices. General conditions are satisfactory to all.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held at Holton & Hunkel's new store, January 5, with an excellent attendance. The report of Treasurer Livingstone showed a good cash balance and the club voted to invest some of the surplus in United States government securities. A discussion of how the exhibits at the annual State Fair might be worked out to be more instructive to the general public than a mere show for competition brought out several good ideas. The refreshments served were greatly enjoyed and appreciated and the Holton & Hunkel Co. given a rising vote of thanks for its hospitality. C. C. Pollworth acted as master of ceremonies in installing the officers for 1922, as follows: Alfred Locker, president; Carl P. Menger, vice-president; Eugene Oestreich, 5630 North avenue, secretary; James Livingstone, treasurer. An inspection of the firm's new store, after the meeting adjourned, showed it to be strictly up-to-the-minute from the basement to the general office. An ice machine in the basement maintains the desired temperature in two refrigerators and makes ice for the shipping orders. The main packing room is well arranged and lighted, as well as the office, both being on the same floor. A private telephone operator saves many steps. The wire workers have a well equipped room in the basement which is a great improvement over former days.

NOTES.

Hugo Locker and son Alfred left January 7 for a brief trip to New York and other eastern cities.

A. Reinhardt, North Milwaukee, has been laid up with a cold since Christmas.

SATISFACTORY HOLIDAY TRADE

Business proved to be fully as great as any past year for the holiday season. Not one of the stores had anything much left, hardly enough to make a decent showing for their space for plants and cut flowers. Christmas night found them nearly cleaned up and each one tired out but happy. Stock was plentiful in all lines with possible loss of many sales because not enough small plants were to be had. This class was far short of the sales possibility. The plants not sold were large pots and baskets of red and pink poinsettias. Some few rather drawn specimens of hyacinths did not sell out. Roses from local growers, and California were equal to call and proved to be splendid stock. The high prices asked kept many from being disposed of and there ought to be something of a lesson in that fact. Splendid carnations were fairly plentiful, colors proportioned about right and not so many left over. We have noticed that the carnation always seems to be the most popular cut flower in the market and they deserve to be. The one sort of cut flower that was in short supply was chrysanthemums, at all places they sold out first and prices seemed to have little consideration with the buyers. They were all furnished by our local growers. The offerings of bulbous stocks was fully up to the demand. Many more plants of this line might have been sold if prices had been named right and quality had been better. It's easy to get too many white and weakly looking specimens of hyacinths, lilies, Paper White narcissi and lily of the valley also. Prices as a whole ranged practically the same as last year for the retail but the wholesale rates of some few things were lower. The call for greens was great and prices along this line are always low because we have abundance of every sort right at hand.

NOTES.

California florists report that business as a whole, for the 1921 Christmas was about the same as last year, with considerably less total of cash trade. They lost many sales of smaller pot plants because not enough blooming plants in smaller sizes could be obtained. Some few large cyclamens, also poinsettias did not find sale. They had a big supply and the best of stock in every line.

The Smith Floral Co., Broadway, did a large business. Much of their supply is grown and furnished at their own local range located on M street. They had too many holly wreaths, made of English holly.

Hayden & Watson Co., now under management of H. A. Klopfer sold out a big supply of stock of all sorts that was of satisfactory quality and price.

H. H. Hinze, at his range on K street, disposed of a large and well grown lot of pot plants and practically cleaned out all cut flowers.

SATISFACTORY PRICES FOR STOCK.

Florists report that their trade has been very good since the Christmas holidays and that they have no room for complaint. Roses, carnations and violets have been very good sellers and the prices have been satisfactory. There has been no change in values during the past year and no reduction is indicated at this time. Funeral work is especially active and parties also have been quite brisk. A number of balls, weddings and other social events during the holidays and the week following gave many orders to local dealers. General trade conditions are much better than they were a year ago, industrial plants being operated on an average of 85 per cent normal, it is said.

Be sure that the name MEYER is on every spool of green Florists thread that you are buying, and you will get the original and best green Florists thread on the market. A great many of the salesmen on the road and the Florists' supply houses are substituting a cheap and inferior green Florists thread to take the place of the Meyer Green Silkline and Florists' thread.

Therefore, if you cannot get the real article, send the goods back and order direct from the manufacturer and you will get the best. Guaranteed two ounces of actual thread to the spool, 16 ounces to the pound.

PLANT SALES GOOD.

Trade the past week has been quiet. Stock still stays at high figures and the quality is good. Roses are fine, but carnations are rather poor. Violets, orchids, lily of the valley and other small flowers are having a good call at present. In plants, cyclamens, begonias and primroses are selling well. Several good size funerals the past week kept several of the florists busy.

NOTES.

Joseph Koppleman, the wholesale florist, is building a huge ice box in his new store, with 15 feet head room. Flowers will be delivered from his greenhouses directly into the ice box from the street level, which will be iced with several tons of ice; requiring no handling, a private elevator delivering it directly into the icing compartment of the case. It will be well supplied with water, all pails and vases will be filled directly into the ice box, and will require no extra handling or carrying.

John Lindbloom, who is now with A. J. Johnson, of Edgewood, is growing some very excellent Begonia melior that are a good seller.

Thomas Whitten, who has been with the Westminster greenhouses for several years, has now severed connections with that firm.

Smith, the Florist, on Washington street, is obtaining excellent carnations and violets from Boston, Mass., every day.

Flowers for the Collender funeral were shipped in from Boston and New York.

The Colonial Flower Shop has added a new Ford car to its delivery equipment. H. A. T.

GOOD TRADE AFTER HOLIDAYS.

The Christmas trade was about the best that has been experienced for many years. All florists report a cleanup and splendid sales in everything. There has been a plentiful supply since the holidays and with mild weather prospects are favorable for continued good business throughout the winter. Roses are better than they were previous to Christmas and prices have dropped considerably, long stemmed stock bringing $4 to $8 per dozen. Carnations are also abundant and fine. Cyclamen of good quality, may be had in all colors, but poinsettias, because of the heavy call for them during the holidays, are hard to find. Narcissi, in pots, are plentiful, both white and yellow and the same holds true for Roman hyacinths. Due to numerous parties corsage sales have been very large. Funeral work has held up well.

FLOWERS FOR FUNERAL WORK SCARCE.

The market prices this week were about the same at the opening as were paid at the closing of the previous week although trade continues dull. The only real demand is for stock for funeral work which is very scarce and roses are running principally to the fancier grades. Conditions are reversed to some extent where a week ago the local buyers were going to the outside markets for stock. This week the wholesale shipping trade sent several thousand carnations to other markets resulting in a sharp advance in local prices. There has been no material change in other stock and no outlook for an immediate increase in business.

The inaugural meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society was held at Horticultural Hall, January 9, and the address of the president and reports of the officers and committees were presented. E. F. S.

STOCK IS VERY SCARCE.

Stock is very scarce at this writing and the market is well cleaned up at all times in almost every item, with high prices prevailing. Carnations are selling at $8 per 100 and up with fancy Laddie bringing $15 and $18. Lilies are good property at $30 per 100. Freesias are to be had in fair supply with good stock obtainable at $8 per 100. Jonquils are selling around the $8 per 100 figure and Paper White narcissus are moving at $4 per 100 and up. Lily of the valley is holding its own and there is a ready market for orchids and gardenias. Sweet peas are also holding their own. Tulips made their first appearance this week. American Beauty roses are commanding high prices. Roses in general are in limited supply with short stock selling at $10 per 100 and up. Medium stemmed roses clean up quickly and fancy long stock is also finding ready buyers. Stevia, snapdragons, calendulas, violets, daisies and other miscellaneous seasonable stock is included in the offerings. The buyer is glad to get stock and does not question the prices even though they are rather high. Greens are in good demand. The market has not been so tight for months as it is right now, and it appears as if stock will be on the short side for some time to come.

NOTES.

George Reinberg has sold 14 of his greenhouses to Jake Giemer, who will take possession June 1. The place is devoted to carnations, which is Mr. Giemer's specialty. He was in the employ of the late Peter Reinberg for nearly 20 years and is well and favorably known to the trade on the ridge. His many friends wish him every success in his new undertaking.

B. F. Siebrecht of Aberdeen, S. D., was the guest of Guy French of the American Bulb Co., for several days this week. They visited several of the large commercial ranges in this vicinity including Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s range at Morton Grove and the Hill establishments at Richmond, Ind.

Zech & Mann report a busy week with a complete cleanup in stock each day and an extra heavy call for lilies, which they are handling in quantity. Tulips made their appearance at their establishment this week.

The Alpha Floral Co. will remodel its store at the northwest corner of Adams street and Wabash avenue as soon as the weather permits. A new refrigerator will be installed.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Randolph, December 5, President Kohout in the chair. Secretary Lautenschlager presented his annual report, and the installation of officers was informal, most of them being re-elected. President Kohout again urged the need of co-operation in the various branches of the trade. Vice-president Pyfer ably supporting his views on this subject. Hans Jepsen, the only new officer, promised to give the work of the club his best attention. Appointments were announced as follows: T. E. Waters, good-of-the-club committee; Allie Zech, chairman sports committee, and Michael Barker, chairman transportation committee. Nominations for membership included A. F. Wienord, 612 Harlem avenue, Oak Park; August G. Urbansk, treasurer of Florists' Credit Association and Louis Motiff, 34 West Randolph street.

The transportation committee reported on trains for the meetings of the American Carnation Society, the American Rose Society and the National Flower Growers' Association, to be held at Hartford, Conn., January 25-27, and the New York Central railroad was selected for the trip, the party to leave the La Salle station, on the Interstate Express, Tuesday, January 24, at 8:25 a. m., due Hartford, via Springfield, Mass., at 9:45 a. m. the following day. There was a brisk discussion of the holiday flower prices, in which it developed retailers offered roses for Christ-

TRADE FAIRLY ACTIVE.

The first week in the year was a fairly active one, both growers and retailers reporting a good demand with a growing scarcity of certain kinds of flowers. The social season is now in full swing and as a result many flowers are bought for decorative purposes. Corsages have been selling better as there has been many receptions and balls. Pot plants are doing as well as can be expected for this time of the year. Funerals have been especially active. Florists are looking forward to a continued good demand for the remainder of January. Roses and narcissi, are now the headliners in the market. While roses are not so plentiful, they are in sufficient demand to take care of all current needs. The medium and short stems are more scarce than the long stems. Principal varieties are Butterfly, Columbia, Mrs. Chas. Russell and Sunburst. Prices have been ranging from $3 to $8 per dozen. Carnations are scarce and this has the effect of switching the call to narcissi, violets and sweet peas. Violets are of excellent quality and supply good. Sweet peas are coming in limited quantities, held back by the cloudy weather. Some Mistletoe chrysanthemums are still on the market and find a ready sale, some stating they will be still obtainable until February.

LOCAL IRIS SOCIETY ACTIVE.

The Iris Society, which was organized two years ago, has been quite active in several ways during the winter months. One of its activities is the maintenance of an exhibition garden on East Broad street, at one of the stately old residences. This display is showing up well for the time of the year. The society also has trial grounds at the Ohio State university which are under the direct charge of Prof. A. C. Hottes of the department of horticulture. Interest in the work of the society is good and the meetings, which are held the last Tuesday in each month, are well attended. Steps are being taken for the annual iris show to be staged in the spring, the exact date depending on the season. The place for the show has not yet been selected. Officers will be elected at the meeting to be held in May. Mrs. J. C. Arbuckle, of Shepard, a suburb, is president; Prof. A. C. Hottes of the Ohio State university is first vice-president; Mrs. Arthur Johnson, second vice-president; Mrs. J. R. Poste, recording secretary; Mrs. W. Filler, corresponding secretary and Mrs. A. C. Spencer, treasurer.

FLOWER GROWERS' AND DEALERS' ASS'N.

The regular meeting of the Flower Growers' and Dealers' Association was held at the Underwood Bros., establishment January 3, with a large attendance. Reports covering Christmas business were generally good and a part of this was attributed to the advertising campaign put on by the association, prior to the holidays, a feature of which was the placing of large signs on 60 auto delivery trucks, bearing the slogan, "Say it with Flowers for Christmas." In fact the members were so well pleased with the campaign that it was decided to have another previous to St. Valentine's Day. At the meeting to be held at the Helm Bros., establishment January 17 subscriptions to take care of this campaign will be taken. At the same time subscriptions for the Society of American Florists' advertising will also be collected and forwarded to that organization. A total of more than $300 was subscribed and expended in the campaign before Christmas. The club has received inquiries from Kansas City, Mo., and Cincinnati, O., as to the methods used in the campaign and it attracted attention on all sides. Following the business session all of the old officers were elected for the coming year as follows: Carl Jagsch, president; I. D. Seibert, vice-president; Edward Ludwig, secretary and Herman Kropp, treasurer. President Jagsch will select his standing committees to have charge of work for the year at the next January 17 session.

NOTES.

Claude K. Seibert, president of the Fifth Avenue Floral Co., reports a good trade since the Christmas rush, with excellent prospects for the month of January. The company is now cutting roses, carnations and narcissi of good quality. Prices are also satisfactory. The company, in addition to its greenhouses, operates a retail store on East Broad street which is having a fine business.

A good demand for flowers and plants is reported by Walter Stephens, of S. F. Stephens & Sons Co. He believes that trade will continue good during the month of January and right up to Valentine's Day. This company is specializing largely in bulbs which are in better demand than formerly.

T. J. Ludwig is putting a new floor in his show window. The motif is black tile which is considered one of the best backgrounds for all sorts of flower and plant displays.

A large funeral was held at West Jefferson, 10 miles west of here last week, stimulating a heavy call for flowers. All of the florists shared in the display with McKellar, West Broad street, sending out three large truck loads.

J. W. L.

Toledo, O.

BUSINESS VERY QUIET AFTER HOLIDAYS.

Since the big rush of the holidays, the demand for flowers has been the lightest that has been experienced for months. This is not due, however, to any unwonted conditions but mostly to the small number of deaths which called for hardly any funeral work. At this writing, business is again picking up. Stock has been very scarce here since the first of the year and prices have naturally been high, which is a factor that retards trade since all other lines are having sales at greatly reduced prices. Blooming plants are still plentiful. Florists in general look for a good year and more profits.

HOLIDAY TRADE.

Analyzing the complete reports now furnished by leading florists here, the writer finds that the holiday demands for the florists' products was surprisingly large considering all the conditions. Business was just about as great as that of 1920 and were it not for lower prices, would have been substantially in excess of the former figure. The public had less money and bought more moderately priced plants and cut flowers, but they bought more of them. Realizing that cut flowers were rather high priced, florists here made a well defined attempt to switch the demand to blooming plants of which there were sufficient. In this they were successful and the sales of cyclamens, poinsettias and begonias exceeded the sales of cut flowers by a large margin. Cyclamens easily led in the selling and brought from $2 up. Poinsettias did not sell as well as usual. Roses led in cut flowers with violets running second. Most florists here sold out early in cut flowers. Wreaths enjoyed a lively sale and novel center pieces with candle trimmings had a good call.

NOTES.

Another new addition to the flower stores of this city is the Lucille Flower Shop, located in the Rivoli building, St. Clair street. This shop which is very attractively arranged and decorated is conducted by Miss Lucille Rise, formerly connected with Feniger's Flower Shops. Miss Rise is an able florist with a pleasing personality and should be successful in her new venture.

Schramm Bros. had the best holiday trade they ever experienced. They had a wonderful stock of poinsettias, cyclamens and blooming plants of which they sold great quantities. Telegraph orders also showed a good increase. The exterior of their store was attractively decorated with Christmas trees and illuminated wreaths.

Hustling Al. Pochelon, of Detroit, Mich., spent New Year's Day here, arranging a big decoration at the Tofedo Club, where it was inspected and pronounced very artistic and novel by Frank M. Schramm and Tom Magee.

The Helmar Flower Shop had one of the most charming holiday windows the writer has seen in this city and it attracted a lot of favorable attention. Business with this firm was very active.

Spanner's Flower Shop reports a fine holiday business, greater than ever. Cut flowers sold exceptionally well here and blooming plants were also in great demand.

SCARCITY OF ALL FLOWERS NOTED.

The past week closed with a general scarcity of all kinds of flowers except high grade long stemmed roses, which were not active on account of the high prices asked and which it was thought they ought to bring. Medium grades in fact all below the specials sold up close at very good prices. While there are a number of carnation growers producing flowers up to the season's standard, the great majority of those sent in are away below par, much of the stock with stems only 10 to 12 inches in length, carrying under sized flowers, many of which are off color. Growers say that in two or three weeks there will be a marked change for the better and after that a heavy supply until spring. All good stock is in strong demand at $10 to $12 per 100. Snapdragon is seen with 36-inch stems and from now on will be quite a factor. There is still a sprinkling of pompon chrysanthemums that are worked off owing to the scarcity of other flowers. Callas and Easter lilies are in good demand at top prices. Sweet peas are coming stronger and help greatly to relieve the situation. The special stock is fine and all grades clean up every day at from $1 to $3 per 100. There is splendid white lilac together with plenty of lily of the valley and cattleyas which latter are now down to $1 each, also, an abundance of stevia. Wm. J. Baker is the first in the market with freesia, offering special stock for the past 10 days without competition. Paper White narcissus is now selling up pretty close at much better than Christmas prices.

CARNATION TROUBLES.

In speaking of the generally low grade of this season's carnations a successful grower said the trouble was that field stock generally did not make a good growth the past summer and when "taking up" time came along the plants were small and had to make a good growth inside before there was any flowers. To be successful with carnations the grower must be always on the job from the time the cuttings are taken until the flowers are shipped to the market. From the cutting bed until ready for planting out, and all through their life in the field they must be kept in a progressive growing condition irrespective of weather conditions, and properly pinched to secure the best possible plant for housing when the time comes.

NOTES.

John Andre, Doylestown, Pa., one of the most reliable growers of roses for this market, is erecting quite an addition to his already extensive range of glass, consisting of nine houses, 35x100 feet each. The Metropolitan Material Construction Co., of New York, have the contract. The work is well under way and being pushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

At H. A. Dreer's, Riverton, they have discarded the beautiful A. Farleyense fern and supplanted it with the Glory of Nordrecht or Glory fern, as it is commonly called. This closely resembles the Farleyense and is reproduced from seed. Two large houses are annually filled with this beautiful fern, which supply always runs short before the season is over.

The Henry F. Michell Co. find a splendid demand for florist's flower seeds, Asparagus plumosus nanus particularly having a large sale. On every floor of their large building a numerous force of employees are busy packing seeds for the coming season.

The growers of plant stocks have lost no time in filling up the spaces made by the sale of Christmas stocks, with pot roses, hydrangeas and lilies for the Easter market. The stock promises to be full and unusually fine.

The Leo Niessen Co. is proud of its splendid line of roses which has enabled them to fill all orders even at the most strenuous times. White lilacs, cattleyas and gardenias were high class features the past week.

COLD WAVE CAUSES SCARCITY.

A cold wave, following the close of the holiday cutting, caused stock to be rather scarce the first days of last week, particularly noticeable and most felt in roses and carnations. As a consequence there was an advance in prices on the last named offerings. Although the cold snap did not last long, it was succeeded by rain and cloudy weather, which in the eyes of growers is almost as bad as cold at this season of the year. For the remainder of the week there was just about enough stock to supply the demand, which was not heavy, carnations being the first to feel the effects. With tulips, the various narcissi and freesias now on the market, there is a considerable variety to choose from, though as a matter of course, roses and carnations are leading features. Good lily of the valley continues plentiful at about $6 per 100, which growers and wholesalers, having in mind wartime prices, consider rather cheap. Short stock goes as low as $3 per 100. In Easter lilies and rubrums, there is quite a regular supply. Counting in the orchids, both cattleyas and cypripediums, gardenias, violets, lilacs, and irises, it will be seen that the market is not badly off. Retailers, who had plants left over from Christmas, report that there was some movement of them in the New Year's trade, and it is reasonable to suppose that as far as possible, they pushed them.

PRESIDENT IRWIN'S BANQUET.

President Irwin, of the Florists' Club, gave a dinner at the Hotel Pennsylvania on the night of January 4, to retiring officers, officers elect, chairmen of the committees for 1922 and the members of the trade press, 20 being in attendance as guests of the president, as follows: A. Schultheis, Jr., vice-president; I. S. Hendrickson, retiring president; A. L. Miller, A. Schultheis, Sr.; Max Schling; A. T. De La Mare; P. Gerlaid; Chas. Knight, retiring vice-president; Emil Schloss; Wm. C. Rickards, Jr., treasurer; Wm. Saville; C. Lowther; A. F. Faulkner; J. H. Pepper; Paul Rigo; L. E. Dupuy; Jos. Manda; Arthur Herrington; Aubrey Nash and A. M. Henshaw. After the excellent menu was disposed of every one present made a short talk pledging loyalty to the new president and the club, helpful suggestions being included.

NOTES.

A burglar, who started out with nerve, but later weakened, entered the summer home of Frank Traendly, Rowaton, Conn., January 1. When run down and captured he was encased in three suits of clothes, a pair of shoes and a pair of arctics, all the property of Mr. Traendly, who with his family resides in Brooklyn in winter. The fellow was also equipped with an assortment of about 200 keys, useful, no doubt, in his profession. The arrest came about through a New Year's party held at the home of Charles J. Jaeger, general overseer of the Traendly & Schenck range and property. As the party was breaking up a light was noticed in the Traendly home. Sergeant Gibson of the Rowaton police force was called and entered the house while the guests surrounded it. The burglar was armed but was subdued by the sergeant. He gave his name as Wesley Harmon and several towns as his residence. Sergeant Gibson has been promoted for the capture, and Mr. Harmon reposes in the Bridgeport jail.

C. E. Zervakos, who has a good store at Madison avenue and 92nd street, and another at Columbus avenue and 86th street, had a fine holiday stock and appears to have sold out well.

Much sympathy is felt for Frederick Scheerer and daughters, on account of the sudden death of Mrs. Scheerer. Particulars will be found in our obituary column.

L. Gluck, an enterprising retailer of Lexington avenue and Twenty-third street, reports an excellent holiday business.

LIMITED SUPPLY CLEANS UP.

Market conditions are about the same as they are every year at this time. Stock is scarce and cleans up daily. Probably it is a good thing as the demand is not very large. Short and medium stock that will do for funeral work is the most popular, but the main supply of roses runs to the longer grades. American Beauties are in short supply with a light call. American Legion, Premier, Columbia, Butterfly, Ophelia, Sunburst, Hilda, and Pink and White Killarney form the bulk of the arrivals. Lilies are of good quality and are cleaning up daily. Carnations still fall short of the demand, with a big majority of the available supply running to white. Paper White narcissi have tightened up and are at last bringing a price that will let the grower out. The best sweet peas seen here in years are now coming in and bringing fancy prices. Cut baby primrose is also selling well. Yellow daisies are still scarce. The supply of lily of the valley and orchids about equals the demand. Pussy willow is moving well.

The Retail Florists' Association of this city will hold its regular monthly meeting Thursday evening, January 2, at the Hotel Chatham. As this is the first meeting of the new year, and important business is to be transacted, a large attendance is expected.

The McCallum Co., is again handling the crop of Primula malacoides for H. D. Rohrer, Lancaster, Pa. They have built up a big demand for these in former years and this year is no exception, as they are selling immediately on arrival.

SOUTH HAVEN, MICH.—C. H. Ketcham is rebuilding his greenhouse plant, adding one larger house.

HIBING, MINN.—George Wood is erecting a range of greenhouses to comprise 12,000 square feet of glass.

MONESSEN, PA.—Harry Irwin recently sold his flower shop to Kinder & Watkins, Pittsburgh, because of ill health.

WEST MENTOR, O.—Carl Hagenburger had an excellent Christmas trade and sold out all stock. Much extra help was required and three trucks were kept on the go for over a week.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—The Tierney Flower Shop has instituted a law suit against the Springfield Street Railway Co., for $5,000, because of the damage done to the Hotel Victoria building, State and Dwight streets, when a car ran off the track and wrecked a part of the structure.

THE J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb., in its January calendar says: "Waste no tears upon lost years, but turn the leaf and smile upon the fair white pages that remain to thee."

FLOWER seed shortages in addition to those named in our issue of January 7, are portulaca, Vinca rosea, tall morning glory, thumbergia, Mayflower and white verbenas, and Scabiosa Caucasica.

NARCISSUS bulbs in the south of France have been materially benefited by recent rains, the drought preceding, having been quite severe. The crop of flowers this winter has been extremely late.

LEONARD H. VAUGHAN, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, who won the individual championship in the local Rotary Club bowling tournament, was guest of honor at the annual banquet of the league, January 6.

VISITED LOS ANGELES: Kirby B. White, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district continue to sprout, all warehouses showing 10 to 40 per cent of sprouts. It is taking 20 pickers a day to clean up a carload. The loss of bulk from sprouting will surely affect prices later in the season.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the wedding of Miss Jean Sharps Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Whitney Jackson, and Douglas Earl of the American Seed Tape Co., Madison, N. J., son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Earl, at Doylestown, Pa., December 31.

ACCORDING to the Canner, a plan is under negotiation for the formation of a corporation, large enough and sufficiently well financed, to pack 10,000,000 cases of canned goods annually. New York bankers are believed back of the project which will involve an issue of $4,000,000 of bonds.

The Late H. B. McCullough.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago and New York, gives an interesting account of the development of gardening in America the past 45 years, in its retail catalogue issued the first week of January, with a portrait of J. Timothy Seed.

The upward trend of timothy seed prices continued between December 6 and December 20, after experiencing a few temporary setbacks. The average increase for the country during that period, however, amounted to only about 15 cents per 100 pounds. In some sections prices to growers on December 20 were 30 cents or more higher than on December 6, yet in other sections no change or a decline occurred. Even in the latter sections prices during the week ending December 24 were considered to be higher than the previous week.

Prices for clean seed ranged from $3.50 per 100 pounds in North Dakota to $5 in central and southern Illinois, and averaged about $4.65. The recent movement from growers' hands has been light, but less than 10 per cent of the crop is now being held by them.

Seed Corn Damage.

The Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., has issued the following, with regard to seed corn:

"Throughout the middle west much damage has been done to sweet corn this season, by the ear worm followed by root and ear rot molds. These molds have in many cases rendered a considerable percentage of the ears wholly unfit for any purpose; other ears, but partly over-run with molds, are unfit for seed but should be used for feed only after the moldy part of the ear is shelled off. This applies especially to the corn which has been grown for seed, although many canners report that much loss had already occurred in the corn at canning time. In certain fields in the corn belt the damage has been so great that the corn has been rendered unfit for harvesting as seed practically no ears being found which were not injured.

"These observations and reports are all based on the evident and conspicuous defects that have been found in sweet corn and dent varieties to date. It is known, moreover, that many of the apparently good ears in these damaged fields are diseased and unless special precautions are taken, for example, testing with the rag-doll germinator, they may pass as good seed corn."

Chicago Forest Preserve Enriched.

One million dollars worth of material, sufficient to advance the work of the forest preserve by practically 10 years, is the gift of the United States to Cook county. This was announced January 4, by County Commissioner Charles N. Goodnow, chairman of a committee appointed to visit Washington, D. C., and see what could be done toward obtaining government war supplies for the county.

The committee consisted of Commissioners Goodnow, Bartley Burg, Dudley D. Pierson and Chief Forester Ransom Kennicott and Assistant Forester Thomas P. Sullivan.

As a result of their work backed by several congressmen and others, and Capt. D. W. Wurtsbaugh, commandant of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, Lieut. Col. Charles Willard of the quartermaster's supply department at Camp Grant and Maj. James P. Castleman of the quartermaster's station at East 39th and Iron streets, Chicago, the committee reported to Daniel Ryan, president of the Cook county board, that they had received the assurance of government officials that they would be given the supplies.

All of the material will be furnished from the supply depots at Camp Grant, the Great Lakes and the quartermaster's depot on 39th street. With the aid of it the commissioners will be enabled to build bridges, dams, roads, buildings, fences and many other things to add to the comfort of visitors at the various forest preserve districts.

Tools, benches, thirty 5-ton trucks, food containers, chinaware, shovels, wire for benches, motor-driven saws, two 15-ton caterpillar trucks and 12 dump carts are among the articles to be given the county.

A fire engine, thirteen 2-ton tractors, 100 escort wagons, two gasoline-driven lawn mowers, eight street scrapers, 25 water wagons, a concrete mixer, two steam shovels, one 20-ton tractor, six Pierce-Arrow trucks, 30 Dodge touring cars, 84 motorcycles, 25 White trucks, road graders and pavers, sprinklers, tarvia tanks, tents of all sizes, paper towels, plumbing supplies and hundreds of other items, such as coffee pots, stoves, etc., are mentioned.

President Ryan was exulting at the report of the committee.

"It will forward the work of the forest preserve district by at least 10 years," he said. "It would be at least 10 years' time before we could hope to spend the money on the articles that the government is giving outright," he said.

State Florists' Association of Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS MEETING, JANUARY 10.

The annual meeting and exhibition of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was held at the James Whitcomb Riley library, Indianapolis, January 10, and was exceptionally well attended, being one of the most successful meetings of the society in years. After the business session and banquet the members were given the treat of a theatre party at Keith's theatre.

The following officers were elected to serve for 1922: L. E. Hitz, Madison, president; E. E. Temperly, vice-president; Oscar Carlstadt, 228 East Ohio street, Indianapolis, secretary, and Arthur Heidenreich, treasurer.

THE EXHIBITS.

The exhibits were well staged and included many kinds of cut flowers and plants. Cattleyas, grown by Smith & Young Co., Indianapolis, drew especial attention and commendation. Their roses were excellent. E. E. Temperly of the same city displayed some Chate-laine and Cincinnati begonias of fine quality and some very good cherry and primula plants. A. Wiegand & Sons Co. had a wonderful display of cyclamen, primroses, cherries and ferns, set in fancy baskets, which attracted a great deal of attention. C. A. Rieman, of Connorsville, Ind., exhibited a specimen tree of begonia which was highly commended.

C. A. Schwomeyer, Indianapolis, had some very good cyclamen and some very fine red and pink Chate-laine begonias, also a California novelty called Strelitzia Regina, or the bird of paradise, this display drawing special attention. The Roepke Floral Co. had a showing of their usual fine variety of plants. Orchids staged in a very attractive manner were the feature of John Rieman, Indianapolis. A. Rasmussen, New Albany, displayed some very fine Hoosier Beauty and Premier roses and a vase of exceptionally good red Merry Christmas carnations. Edwin Morner, of Shelbyville, had an exhibit of gladioli and some new attractive corsages and baskets. C. A. Randall, Indianapolis, featured a very fine yellow and white chrysanthemum called Mamie and Late Bloomer respectively. Morris Marer, of the Marer Flower Shop, Indianapolis, displayed baskets of very fine calendulas, violets and sweet peas, all attracting favorable comment. Hartje & Elder exhibited fine dark pink carnations.

The annual rose trophy, judged by A. Rasmussen, New Albany; C. L. Frank and C. A. Rieman, awarded the prize to the Jos. H. Hill Co., Richmond. Their display was highly commended. The annual carnation trophy, judged by Clarence Green, A. Joblinsky and Alvin Schieber, awarded the prize to Bertermann Bros., Indianapolis.

The judges, who were Robt. Ellis, John Grande and C. F. Coffery, awarded cash prizes to the following: Bertermann Bros., A. Wiegand & Sons Co., C. H. Schwomeyer, A. Rasmussen, Jos. H. Hill Co., Fred Lemon & Co., Richmond; Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis; Smith & Young Co., Hartje & Elder, Edwin Morner, Shelbyville, Marer Flower Shop.

The Last Chance to Secure Heavy Dormant Two Year Old Budded Plants of the Wonderful Pillar or Climbing Rose

Paul's Scarlet Climber

At the Low Price of $50.00 per 100.

This variety as we have predicted ever since its introduction, is rapidly taking the first place as the most popular brilliant pillar or Climbing Rose.

Mr. S. S. Pennock in his recent address before the Philadelphia Florists' Club in speaking of the wonderful Bagatelle Rose Gardens at Paris, France, referred to this rose as the most brilliant in color and a subject that could be seen from all points in the garden, still in splendid shape after other Climbers had passed.

It is truly a wonderful rose and will find a place in every garden.

The price of $50.00 per 100 is special and will only hold good on orders booked on or before February fourth and for immediate delivery.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, January 10.—Cucumbers, per crate, $7 to $7.50; head lettuce, per crate, $3.50 to $4.50; carrots, $3.50 to $6 per 100 bunches; cabbage, $2.75 to $3 per 100-pound sack; turnips, $3.50 to $4.50 per barrel.

New York, January 6.—Cucumbers, Boston, $1 to $2.50 per dozen; mushrooms, per three-pound basket, 75 cents to $1.40; radishes, 100 bunches, $3.50 to $7; tomatoes, per pound, 20 to 40 cents; lettuce, one dozen, $1 to $1.75; beet tops, per basket, $2.

Vegetable Movement.

WEEK OF JANUARY 2-7.

Potato shipments have increased due to the more active demand. New York round whites advanced 35 to 40 cents in eastern markets, closing at $2.20 to $2.35 per 100 pounds. Although northern stock at Chicago declined 40 cents, it gradually recovered toward the end of the week, bringing $2 to $2.15.

Onion values registered a sharp advance because of increased demand and the shortening of the supplies. Yellow Globes, No. 1, have been sold to jobbers at the high price of $6 to $6.25 per 100 pounds at Connecticut Valley shipping points. Middlewestern yellow stock brought $6.50 to $7 in Chicago, a gain of $1. The total shipments were 400 cars.

Increasing cabbage shipments from southern states has had the effect of greatly reduced prices in middlewestern markets, Danish type bringing $50 to $55 per ton at Chicago. At New York, however, values advanced $5 to $10. Wisconsin stock, at shipping points, declined to a level of $42 to $44. Of the 666 cars rolled New York furnished 409.

Apple prices showed no change, in spite of an increase of movement. New York Baldwins at receiving points brought $7 to $7.50 per barrel. At Washington state shipping centers boxed stock ranged from $1.85 to $2.25.

Sweet potato movement has increased in volume, 440 cars being moved during the week. New Jersey yellow varieties brought $2 to $2.25 per bushel at New York, while Tennessee Nancy Halls were in poor demand at St. Louis at $1.

Florida strawberries have been sold to jobbers in the leading markets at 50 to 75 cents per quart.

Cauliflowers, from California, lost $1 per crate at New York, closing at $2.25 to $2.50.

Manure Supplies for Truck Growers.

Truck growers and greenhouse men in the eastern states are finding it increasingly difficult to secure a supply of stable manure, and some growers have adopted the practice of keeping a small herd of cows or other stock for the purpose of supplying manure, and as a means of utilizing surplus or waste material. The problem of maintaining soil fertility under present conditions was discussed at the recent meeting of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, at Albany, N. Y., and it was the opinion of the vegetable growers and state and federal workers present that the practice of keeping live stock is to be strongly recommended in sections where this can be done profitably.

The head of the vegetable garden department of the Massachusetts Agricultural college reported that a study of the census shows that the decrease in horses in Massachusetts from 1910 to 1920 is such that 13,000 fewer acres can now be furnished with 20 tons of stable manure per acre than in 1920. To offset this loss in plant food, which was formerly obtained from stable manure, will require the expenditure of between $1,200,000 and $1,400,000. Even then the soil lacks that all-important effect of the inoculated organic matter contained in manure and for which no equally efficient substitute has been found.

MANURE COST LESS THAN FERTILIZER.

While this disregards the cost of the manure formerly used to supply the plant food it is probable that it was much less than the cost of the fertilizer now purchased. This problem is not confined to any one state, but with a few local exceptions is being felt throughout the territory in which vegetable crops are grown for the markets.

At the Lexington, Mass., field station, which is conducted under the direction of the State College of Agriculture and Experiment station, what are termed "manure economy investigations" are being conducted. In these tests the use of stable manure in moderate quantities is being supplemented by commercial fertilizers, soil-building crops, crop rotations, and other means of maintaining soil fertility. These tests have been under way for about three years and are already giving marked results, as indicated by the yield of crops grown upon the land.

Growers of canning crops such as peas and sweet corn, have for years past followed the practice of utilizing the vines, fodder and other waste in the form of silage for the feeding of sheep, beef cattle, or dairy cows, this practice supplying them with large quantities of manure. Renewed attention is now being directed to this practice, and in sections where the European corn borer has made its appearance many growers have found it desirable to erect silos for the utilization of the surplus material, feeding this to their stock, thereby securing manure for their crops, and also largely controlling the corn borer. The United States Department of Agriculture strongly recommends these practices wherever conditions will warrant the keeping of live stock.

MONTREAL, QUE.—With a falling off of 15 per cent in the volume of business and the same in prices holiday trade was not as good as hoped for. Plants brought the same prices as a year ago, while less was realized on cut flowers. Azaleas in the former sold better than a year ago and there was an ample supply of cut flowers to go around.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—With the volume of business less than in 1920, Fred G. Heini, writes that prices obtained were not as good as a year ago. In cut flowers, roses were plentiful and good, but carnations and violets were on the short side. There was no demand for bulbous offerings, and in plants there was little change, compared with the previous Christmas.

King GREENHOUSES

There has been very little increase in greenhouse area in the last few years. Take advantage of this condition and the present low cost of construction.

"Say It With Flowers."

"Say It With Flowers" while life is sweet,
Ere hope and joy have fled;
Oh, say it now—wait not until I'm numbered with the dead.

"Say It With Flowers" while yet my hands
Their petals may caress;
Wait not until my soul is freed
And clothed in heavenly dress.

"Say It With Flowers" while still my life
May utter grateful thanks;
Oh, say it soon—wait not 'til death
Numbers me in his ranks.

"Say It With Flowers" whose faces sweet
May change dark days to bright;
"Say It With Flowers" today, this hour,
Wait not until the night.

"Say It With Flowers" whose purity
May help my soul to save,
In some dark hour when evil's power
Is seeking to enslave.

"Say It With Flowers" while yet they may My wavering faith renew;
"Say It With Flowers" while still I may Send back a flower to you.
—Anne Barbour Briggs.

SAINT VALENTINE'S DAY.

Occasion Growing Important.

With the coming of this midwinter floral holiday, opportunity knocks once more and affords a golden harvest for all those who are ready to take advantage of it. It is the day of days in which to "Say It With Flowers" and the retailer should rise to the occasion and in every way possible with floral arrangements suitable for the day, demonstrate and call attention to this sentimental custom and that flowers make the best and most acceptable valentines. If all the trade in every community were united in making the sending of flowers as valentines a universal custom, it would soon become one of the best floral holidays of the year.

Featuring the day should be started at least two weeks before. Large red hearts with the figures 14 in the center, or inscribed with "The fourteenth is coming" or "Say It With Flowers" should be displayed in store or window and will at once call attention to the day. This is to be followed up with a few novel arrangements decorated with heart dotted ribbons, arrows and other inscriptions of the day that are sure to attract attention.

A quite elaborate circular should go out at this time, the tone of which should assume that everybody expects or sends a valentine for which the first selection is always flowers and then describe a few novelties as being best for mother, sister and sweetheart. Such matter is always well received and read with interest, puts the house among the live wires where the latest and best is to be found, and makes a good impression that is sure to bring business then or later on.

Valentine Novelties.

There are a number of novelties brought out every year nearly all expressing in some form or another the heart sentiment which is inseparable with the day. The valentine kiddies with their vase for flowers made quite a sensation and have been a considerable factor in publicity the past few years. Small handle baskets in their infinite variety are all good valentine material when touched up with heart dotted ribbon arrows and mottoes of the day. Various sized boxes of flowers in which are placed miniature printed heart shaped valentine cards or other forms are quite appropriate. The lid should be ornamented with an adhesive heart or two and the box tied with heart dotted ribbon with a gilt arrow or two in the bow.

Heart shaped boxes are very popular in which to send corsages of violets or other flowers. Penn., the Florist, of Boston, Mass., makes a specialty of corsages of violets for valentines, presents them as his leading feature, advertises them extensively and has worked up a wonderful St. Valentine's Day trade with this feature. All the corsages are sent out in heart shaped boxes.

Small Handle Baskets.

The small basket filled with all one kind of flower or in variety, makes a suitable valentine gift that is appreciated by any one. One or two small gilt arrows tied in with the ribbon at the handle gives the necessary finish. A novel conception is a small bouquet of cigarettes. This is made by using two boxes, which are stemmed by running the wire up into the center of the tobacco about half way, care being taken not to pierce the wrapper, as this spoils the cigarette. The boxes and tin foil wrappers or lining should be cut into strips and wired. A quantity of safety matches also wired, are made up into the bunch along with the other material. A piece of the prepared striking surface tied to the narrow ribbons on the handle makes the job complete, so that the young man, on receiving the gift, can at once proceed to satisfy himself.

Corsages.

The corsage is most popular as a valentine gift to a young lady. While violets have always been favorites made up to wear just by themselves or with the addition of lily of the valley, cattleyas, gardenias, Sweetheart or other roses, they have recently had to give way to the advent of the sweet peas, which with their graceful sprays and lovely colorings are now a popular corsage flower, almost all other flowers working well with them when necessary to make variety. Shields to protect the costume are seen in profusion. A good substitute is neatly folded wax paper, which, narrow at the handle, spreads out at the top making quite a protection. Prepared ribbon ties are a great advantage at such a busy time. A pretty feature is to dot the ribbon with small adhesive red hearts.

Plants as Valentines.

All kinds of plants can be put in the running by being given a touch of the Valentine color, in heart ribbons and other tokens. Primula malacoides now at its very best, with its clouds of tiny blossoms and abundant foliage, is most decorative of itself in baskets or pans or in combination with other stock. Pussy willow sprays are useful, several stuck in the pot of these and other plants and entwined, making an imitation handle to which a ribbon may be tied for a pretty finish. Pots of daffodils, pans of hyacinths and tulips may be treated in the same way as well as freesias, cyclamens, begonias and other flowering stock all of which will find a good sale at this time.

It is well to run $3 or $5 corsage or box of flowers as a valentine special, featuring and advertising the same well in advance. There should be a cut in the paper and a good one. Most newspapers will make photos and cuts gratis to run with advertisements given them. These specials should also be featured in the window at the same time with copies of the advertisement on the glass.

The Window.

The window decoration is most important and should be made as striking as possible. A piece of chiffon and another of ribbon well dotted with adhesive red paper hearts can be used to good advantage as a canopy or worked in amongst the various featured articles. Everything displayed should be right up to the standard in quality and finish. The plants with all their pots well decorated, ribbons and valentine mottos attached, will seem most appropriate for family gifts. A large red cardboard heart with a gilt border, having for its center a handsome corsage, inscribed "Make flowers your valentine," will make a good center for the rear of the window. Hanging glass shelves supported by ribbons, show off corsages and other small arrangements to good advantage while a full shower effect is made with a number of small baskets suspended each to a narrow ribbon.

Some florists use nothing in their windows at this time but heart boxes some tied up and decorated on the outside with a number containing such corsages as they are featuring, placed against wax paper about half way in the box. These are beautifully decorated with ribbons, fancy pins, finished and looking their best ready for delivery.

Many of the smaller florists whose mainstay is funeral work pay very little attention to St. Valentine's Day and do nothing whatever to feature or increase the sale of flowers for the event. They could work up trade with their clientele if they would take a chance on a few flowers and plants, lay in a little stock of valentine novelties, from their supply man and try them out in their window, a week before the day. The small stores in their neighborhood sell hundreds of paper valentines so the business must be there and all it wants is encouragement. Furnishing flowers for funerals is good and profitable, but there are thousands alive for every one that dies, so why not go after their trade. Encourage them to use flowers for every occasion. Start right now for St. Valentine's Day, go after the trade; there are plenty of your customers that will buy flowers at this time if you give them the proper encouragement.

F. T. D. Valentines.

St. Valentine's Day is the time of all times to try out and further the interests of the F. T. D. service. Feature it in all the advertising and other publicity. "Floral Valentines delivered in every city or community in the United States and Canada on St. Valentine's Day through the Florist's Telegraph Delivery Association and through their special mail system if ordered in advance," is a good form to use. That such service is possible is unknown to the great majority of people and calling it to their attention bring to mind a distant relative or friend whom they would like to compliment in this way and the sale is made, thus creating brand new business both for the store and the F. T. D.

Those who are enthusiastic and work to create this business in their own stores, will obtain considerable trade that would otherwise be lost to them. It is new business gained without $1 of expenditure and netting a sure profit of 20 per cent.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The success of the business depends largely on the way in which it is pushed. The plants, flowers and the various accessories that comprise the stock of the flower shop are complete and beautiful in themselves, but it is the art of display and arrangement in which their various uses are suggested or brought out that shows everything to the best advantage, attracts the attention of customers and puts life and activity into the business.

H. H. BATTLES' ESTABLISHMENTS.

H. H. Battles, of Philadelphia, Pa., a master florist in every sense of the word is a thorough believer in this sort of publicity; if one is to judge by his beautiful and practical window displays which are kept up to the mark and seasonable every day in the year. His business is divided into two departments under the name of H. H. Battles, Flowers, and the Century Flower Shop, H. H. Battles, Proprietor. The two commodious shops adjoin one another, occupying three story buildings, but they remain disconnected, each run by a separate force of employees. Mr. Battles' idea has always been not to keep flowers but sell them. Display ice boxes are taboo, there being none in either store, except a large one, out of sight in the rear for storage purposes.

"Sell Flowers" is the slogan of both establishments and in the Century Shop which is run on the popular price plan, plants and flowers are featured in every conceivable way that will make them most attractive and inviting to the general public. The high ceiling of the store is canopied with immense quantities of small handle baskets, a line of which is always filled and invitingly displayed on counters and tables about the shop. All seasonable flowering plants are also featured with some kind of a striking pot covering that adds to the beauty and size of the plant. Cut flowers are shown in vases on shelves at the back of the counter.

The window of this shop the second week in January, was filled with well flowered heather, each pot decorated with various colored papers and other flowering plants and small handle baskets of flowers, all artistically placed. The heather was decorated with ribbon bows, the center of each containing a butterfly. The outside of the window was framed with a row of bunches of helichrysums, all in half cornucopias of various colored papers which fitting close to one another, made a harlequin border entirely around the sheet of glass. Every article had its visible price mark, in fact nothing was left undone in the effort to carry out the store slogan "Sell Flowers."

REARRANGING OF STOCK ADVANTAGEOUS.

It is often of advantage in the store to turn things about a bit, arranging the groups of plants and display tables differently and perhaps to better advantage than before. There are a great number of ways of presenting the stock, many of which can be tried to advantage and will be found helpful in keeping things moving.

Now that flowers are becoming more plentiful little stimulating campaigns should be worked out and under way to excite interest and bring more people into the store. Hyacinths are now coming into flower and these displayed in low pebbled pans and individual glasses will be just what some customers want to interest their children in watching them grow.

The customer's writing desk should always have its little vase of seasonable flowers. The small bud vases each with a single rose, are set off to good advantage here as they show what can be done with just one flower for the desk or bureau in the guest room. Birch bark covered boxes gotten together by the handy man or boy about the store between times, make a nice showing with Primula malacoides or Dutch bulbs in flower and later on with pansies or Bellis daisies.

A splendid piece of store furniture is a full length cheval glass; this is always appreciated by ladies in fitting the corsage bouquets and in giving them at all times a full length view of their costume. There is always a good publicity opportunity in displaying choice made-up pieces that are ready several hours before delivery.

Don't be afraid to place prices on plants, flowers, or other goods, particularly those in the window display. These figures are the silent salesmen giving information that would not be asked for but which when obtained will often result in immediate or future sales.

Are you a member of the Society of American Florists? If not, take the necessary steps to join at once. The cost is but $5 a year and you are then officially associated with the best men of the trade in every line of the business. It is the florist's lodge of America and every man in the business, who has any ambition should place this first among his organizations. Send $5 to John Young, secretary, 43 West Eighteenth street, New York, and get this valuable certificate of membership.

CORSAGE BOUQUET OF CATTLEYS, L'LY OF THE VALLEY AND VIOLETS.

Hydrangea Culture.

The hydrangeas are among the most popular plants for Easter and spring sales, and during the months of March, April and May, form a very prominent part of the plant display at the florist shops. Large specimens are also quite extensively grown for summer decorations and are very attractive, some of the newer French varieties especially. It is only a few years ago that the old favorite, Otaksa, was the principal variety grown, but now some of the beautiful French sorts are becoming extremely popular on account of their lovely colors, and easy, free-blooming qualities, and as the stock becomes more plentiful, greater numbers will be grown. While the season for these plants is at its height, is the time to take stock and observe the qualities of the different varieties. Then plan to grow such as are suited for your requirements, but there are so many beautiful varieties that it is hard to choose between them and when well grown, they are sure to be in good demand.

CULTURAL METHODS.

Hydrangeas can be propagated from early spring until late in the fall, and grown into good salable plants for the following spring. The earliest propagated stock will make the larger and more bushy plants, while the later stock, though not as large, will, if carefully grown, be very useful plants for which there is always a good demand.

The writer has under his charge some very fine plants with two and three large heads of bloom that were late summer struck cuttings of last year, as well as some October struck cuttings now in 6-inch pots, with one massive head of bloom on each. These are great favorites and sell quickly. One of the most important factors in the culture of hydrangeas, is never to allow them to suffer for the want of water during the summer. If the season is hot and dry, then the plants need liberal soakings of water every day or two to keep them in active growth. This rule applies to both plants being grown in pots in frames or planted out in the open ground. Some growers grow their plants in pots entirely, plunging them outside in frames during the summer, while others set the plants out in the open ground, lifting and potting them up late in September.

Cuttings put into the sand in the spring of the year, should be potted up as soon as they have made roots enough to properly handle. Then, as the plants make growth, they should be repotted as they need it, and must never be allowed to become potbound during their growing period. Hydrangeas require a fresh, live soil of good substance, but do not treat them to green, fresh manure. Particular attention should be given to see that they get plenty of air and a moderately cool temperature at all times while in the greenhouse.

These plants are very subject to attacks from green fly, which should be kept in check by attending to the fumigating regularly. Those intended for pot culture during the summer should receive their final potting during the month of June, selecting the strongest plants for the larger size pots, and the smaller ones accordingly. After potting, plunge the pots to their rims outside in the frame, specially fitted under lath covering to protect the plants from the direct rays of the sun. The tops of these earliest plants can be used as cuttings, which root easily in a mild hotbed during the summertime, but do not be too severe in cutting up the plants, because the growth they make this year must have time to develop flowering eyes for next spring. Plenty of water should be given while the plants are in their full growth, but at the approach of autumn, the wood will commence to ripen up. Then they will require less water. When the autumn season has reached the time for frosts, preparations must be made to house the plants or protect them from severe freezing. Hydrangeas are not harmed by light frost, but severe freezing will ruin their flowering eyes, and it is always best to have them under protection before frost.

For field culture, plant out the last of May, giving the plants plenty of room so that they can be cared for along the lines of cultivating and keeping the ground clear of weeds. The planting ground should be handy for watering so that the plants can be thoroughly watered as occasion requires. Early in September, lift and pot the plants, standing them in a shady place. Syringe overhead two or three times daily until root action starts again, after which they can be given full light and a cool temperature. After the plants have become thoroughly established in the pots, gradually withhold the water from them, to ripen them up so that they remain partially dormant until the time comes to start them into active growth again.

After the first of the year, when it becomes necessary to start the plants into active growth for spring flowering, they should be taken out of the pots, a little of the soil removed from the roots, and repotted into fresh soil. Then start the plants up gradually in a cool temperature, increasing it as they take on new growth. While making their flowering growth, the plants must never be allowed to suffer for want of water, and are greatly benefited by being given weak applications of liquid manure about once a week as the weather will permit. There are few plants that will respond more liberally to careful culture than will the hydrangeas, but they must not be neglected in any manner. Overwatering will cause sour soil accompanied by yellow foliage, and not enough water will blast the buds and cause the plants to lose their foliage. To allow the shoots to become infested with insects will cripple and ruin the flower heads, and last, but not least, unless the plants are grown cool, the shoots and branches become weak and will not hold the flower heads up properly, neither will the flowers last as well.

PROMINENT FRENCH KINDS.

Among the French varieties, the following are worthy of special mention and general culture:

Avalanche—A fine white variety with deep green foliage and strong growth.

Vieux Chateau—Light pink, tinted white. A very fine variety of excellent growth.

Lilie Mouillere—One of the very best pink varieties; large trusses of beautiful flowers, and a splendid grower.

Mme. R. Jacquet—Another beautiful pink variety with lots of substance; a favorite with all who have seen it.

E. G. Hill—A fine pink variety. More upright grower than some of the other sorts, but worthy of general culture.

Trophee—A magnificent hydrangea, one of the best ever introduced. Color, a beautiful shade of cherry-red; splendid growth and a grand variety in every way.

L. Islette—A fine, very attractive variety with color hard to describe. One of the best growers.

Baby Bimbinet—Dwarf grower; fine large, compact heads of the brightest pink. A splendid variety.

Souvenir de Lieutenant Chauré—Immense heads of deep pink; one of the best varieties.

Radiant—A fine variety of good growth and attractive color.

La Perle—Deeply fringed white; one of the best of this color.

Souvenir de Mme. E. Chautard—A fine variety that will be prominent in any collection; a fine glowing pink.

There are a number of other varieties that are worthy of general culture, and will well repay the grower's most careful attention, and I venture to say that after giving them a trial, you cannot help being enthusiastic about their beauty.

Changes in Appointments.

Owing to the death of S. W. Crowell, appointed to the office of state vice president for Mississippi, President Pennock has decided to appoint Martin H. Stemme, Hattiesburg, as a capable member to fill the vacancy.

In the list of appointees published at the first of the year, the address of E. J. Hayward, state vice president for Quebec, was given as Quebec, instead of Montreal, in which city he is a prominent florist; the address of Captain Suckling, state vice president for Nova Scotia, was given as Halifax, while it should have been Truro; the address of T. Torgeson, state vice president of Saskatchewan, was given as Saskatchewan, instead of Estevan. Members will please note these corrections.

President Pennock has requested that members be advised of the completion of the official catalogue of standardized plant names, a work which has for some years engaged the attention of committees from the American Association of Nurserymen, the Ornamental Growers' Association, the American Society of Landscape Architects, the American Pharmaceutical Association, the American Association of Park Superintendents, the American Seed Trade Association, and the nomenclature committee of our own society, the whole working as the American Joint Committee on Horticultural Nomenclature. The book is being published at actual mechanical cost, with a further concession to our members, making the pre-publication price to them $3.50 per copy. After March 15 the price will be $5 per copy. Orders at the pre-publication price, accompanied by remittances, should be sent to Harlan P. Kelsey, secretary American Joint Committee on Horticultural Nomenclature, Salem, Mass., from whom also any further information required may be obtained.

National Publicity Campaign.

The publicity committee is greatly pleased with the manner in which the 1922 campaign is opening. General interest in the project is daily increasing and voluntary subscriptions are coming to the secretary's office in cheerful volume. The doubling of previous subscriptions lends more than ordinary encouragement, especially when a subscription is accompanied by a letter such as the following:

"Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 3, 1922. National Publicity Campaign for Flowerers, New York.

Dear Sirs:—

"There is no question in my mind as to the value of the florists' publicity campaign. I am sure we cannot afford to back up or let what we have gained go by default for lack of funds. I am enclosing check from our firm for double the amount of the last subscription and wish you every success in this enterprise, which will have my support at all times.

Yours respectfully,

Henry Smith Floral Co.,
Per Henry Smith."

"Burlington, Ia., Jan. 10, 1922, or the following:

John Young, Secretary,
Society of American Florists,
43 West Eighteenth street,
New York.

Dear Sir:

"Herewith our check for $50 for the national publicity campaign. You have sent us a statement for only $25, but we believe that right now is the proper time for the trade to advertise and on a larger scale than ever before. With a return of better times, there will be more and more advertising of various kinds, designed to attract the public's money, and if flowers are not kept in the foreground, florists are apt to be harmed rather than benefitted by better times, because the public will have its attention called to so many other items. We wish to do our bit toward a larger campaign.

Yours truly,

Burlington Willowware Shops."

and this:

"Brookline, Mass., Jan. 11, 1922. John Young, Secretary, National Publicity Committee,
43 West Eighteenth street,
New York.

Dear Sir:

"The letter dated December 27, 1921, describing the probable effect upon the florist business of letting up in the advertising campaign has been read with much interest. We are entirely in accordance with the ideas expressed and realize that we must do as much or more than formerly to maintain our position in the business world. We are pleased to double our annual subscription for the next four years and you will find inclosed check for $50 for this year's amount.

Yours very truly,

F. E. Palmer, Inc."

Without a doubt, similar thoughts are occupying the minds of all up-to-date florists in the country. With the prestige obtained for our slogan through the first campaign, we need a liberal fund not only to keep up that prestige, but to extend the influence of the slogan. We have reached a very large number of the people of this country, and impressed our slogan upon them. It must be remembered, however, that we have only scratched the surface of our publicity field. Much greater possibilities remain. Only such magazines as the committee felt would give us immediate results have been used. There is a wealth of good mediums awaiting our further exploitation, and the committee is deeply engaged in consideration of the list. This does not mean that our old ground should be abandoned. It is very necessary that we should become more strongly entrenched in it. The results certainly could not be less than we have accomplished, and promise to be greater. The publicity nail is well set—let us drive it as far home as possible.

The new campaign is well begun, and there is abundant evidence that it will far eclipse the old one, which resulted in benefit almost too great to realize. Still, there are thousands of florists who are yet deaf to our appeals and do not seem to appreciate the nationwide good the campaign for publicity for flowers has brought to our industry. Perhaps in no line of industry are those engaged in it closer to each other than florists, and the committee would welcome the assistance of those who have already subscribed in seeing that non-subscribers in their various sections come to a proper understanding of the objects of the campaign.

Members of the society who are canvassing their neighbors under our subscription book plan are urged to send in their reports as to subscriptions taken. The reports already in from several sections show praiseworthy work in this connection.

The financial status of the campaign is fully shown in the following reports from the secretary's office. Subscriptions to the national publicity campaign on account of the campaign prior to January 1, 1922, are reported as follows:

Fifth National Flower Show.

The various local committees in Cleveland, O., are now very active in completing the details of show arrangements entrusted to them, and all the preparatory work is well advanced.

James McLaughlin, chairman of the committee on special premiums is sparing no effort to increase the list of special premiums, and his work so far has resulted in a material reduction of the liabilities as to premiums incurred by the National Flower Show Committee. He reports the following additional special cash premiums offered, all at the discretion of the committee:

Hotel Statler, Cleveland, $25; Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, $25; Garden Lover's Club of Cleveland, $25; Cleveland Florist Club, $100; John L. Severance, Cleveland, $200.

No doubt the stand taken recently by the new mayor of Cleveland and against the opening of the new Auditorium, in which the show is to be housed, until it is absolutely complete in building and appointments, has caused a flutter of excitement. Were it possible for him to maintain this stand it would, of course, seriously affect the show prospects. But Chairman H. P. Knoble of the local executive committee assures the National Flower Show Committee that the leases of the preceding administration must be honored, otherwise the city of Cleveland would be mulcted in damages too great for the citizens to countenance. He says the show will be held exactly as planned, and nobody need worry. Consequently, there is no diminution of energy in our administration offices.

The following have reserved space in the trade section of the show, and are additional exhibitors to the lists already published:

The Wayside Gardens Co., Mentor, O.
Horticulture, Boston, Mass.
Carbone, Inc., Boston, Mass.
Buchbinder Bros., Chicago.
Cohan & Hill, New York.
W. H. Elverson Pottery Co., New Brighton, Pa.

Department of Plant Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that as no objection has been filed against the registration of the new orchids, Cattleya Memoria, Roehrs-Lowe and Laelia-Cattleya Mount Brilliant, by Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., the same has become complete.

National Flower Growers' Association.

OHIO DISTRICT MEETING, JANUARY 24.

The second state meeting of the Ohio District of the National Flower Growers' Association will be held in Columbus, January 24, at the Hotel Deschler. One of the speakers will be E. M. Mancourt, of Detroit, Mich., vice-president of the Consolidation Coal Company. Mr. Mancourt is one of the authorities in this country on the subject of coal, his address being—"Coal, How to Buy, Specify and Test It For the Greenhouse." Mr. Mancourt's company is classed as one of the four or five largest concerns of its kind in the United States. In the opinion of our directors, this talk will be extremely valuable to our members, as coal is one of the largest single items of expense that the grower has, and yet probably knows the least about.

Max Schling, of New York, will be with us and will repeat the talk and demonstration on "Flower Arrangement" that was one of the features of the Society of American Florists' convention at Washington, D. C., last summer.

Our organization has grown from nothing since April 1, to where it now has a membership of 157 in Ohio, and is still growing. There will be a number of items of particular importance to be taken up at this meeting—first, the work of the committee on standardization and grading of cut flowers; second, the development of a uniform method of keeping costs of greenhouses; third, the development of some form of active and practical co-operation for the development of a horticulture department at the Ohio State University. In addition, a committee will be appointed for revising our constitution.

L. C. VINSON, Sec'y.

Des Moines Floral Arts Club.

The Floral Arts Club of Des Moines, Ia., composed of florists, nurserymen, landscape artists, seedsmen and the allied trades held its regular monthly meeting, January 10, at Younkers Tea room. After a delightful dinner, J. H. Kate, president of the X-Ray Incubator Co., gave an instructive address on "Personality," followed by a talk on beautifying the parks of the city, by H. B. Frase, commissioner of parks. He outlined plans for the future, consisting of wild flower gardens, more shrubbery, additions to the formal gardens and the construction of connecting boulevards.

R. S. Herrick, secretary of the Society of Iowa Florists and the Iowa Horticultural Society spoke briefly of the autumn exhibition of the Mid West Horticultural Society and the long hoped for new building for horticultural purposes at the State Fair grounds.

The following officers were installed for 1922: F. J. Wright, president; Ray Holt, vice-president; Harold J. Parnham, 3990 University avenue, Des Moines, secretary; Geo. Kurtzwell, treasurer.

HIGH PRICES RETARD TRADE.

The high prices of the past week seem to have killed off what little cut flower trade the stores have been getting. The market advanced again, at the opening this week on roses and carnations which are the only stocks for which there has been any demand. The result has been that the stores have been looking for any flowers which could be obtained cheaply for funeral work, such as second or split carnations, and the cheaper varieties of roses. The call for stock from northern and western points has been the saving feature of the situation, as the local buyers were acting very cautiously. The demand from the above points has fallen off considerably as the prices advanced here which fact will likely react on our market the coming week. A few jonquils and freesias were offered this week but the prices are a little too high to stimulate any great trade in them. Violets and sweet peas, are more plentiful and somewhat cheaper but sell only with great urging. Stock in general is increasing slowly, another factor which will probably bring prices down in the near future.

Julius Zinn was tendered a banquet at the Hotel Bellevue, January 13, the occasion being his sixtieth birthday.

Mrs. Peter Murray, wife of Peter Murray, of New Bedford and Fairhaven, died suddenly of heart trouble, January 10. E. F. S.

EXCELLENT SUPPLY MOVES SLOWLY.

Business is slow for this time of the year and stock is in excellent condition. There is a considerable demand for party and church flowers, the latter being used for weddings, which have been very numerous lately. American Beauty roses have a limited demand and Premier is the best seller. Columbia, Mrs. Chas. Russell, My Maryland, and Pink Killarney move fairly well and bring good prices. White Killarney is the only white obtainable which amply supplies all the call for this color. In yellows, Ophelia, Sunburst and Ward are seen. They are of excellent quality. Carnations are arriving in much better condition. Laddies are bringing $8 to $15 per 100. Lilly of the valley is the best seller in bulbous cut flowers, being much used for corsages. The best stock sells at $8 per 100. A light call is reported for Soleil d'Or and Paper White narcissi, although the stock is very good. Cut hyacinths, in white varieties, are seen but move slowly. Tulips are hard to sell. Calla lilies are good, bringing $15 to $25 per 100. Sweet peas are supplying a good demand as are violets, which are continually improving, bringing $2.25 per 100. Orchids seem to be popular in bridal bouquets. Cypripediums are plentiful. C. insigne, being the most prevalent and selling at 50 cents to $1 per bloom. Pussy willow twigs are finding much use in decorations. Stevias, statice, straw flowers and mignonette are easily obtained. Greens are plentiful, sword ferns wholesaling at $3 per 1,000. Pot ferns, dracaenas, pandanus, small palms, chiefly Kentias and Cocos, are abundant.

NATIONAL FLOWER GROWERS' ASS'N.

The St. Louis District of the National Flower Growers' Association held its annual meeting at the Hotel Claridge, January 17, which included the election of officers. The business session began at 11 a. m., at which time the recommendations of the executive, retail grower, and cut flower grower committees were presented. After luncheon, the members left the hotel in automobiles for visits to the various greenhouse establishments of St. Louis county.

NOTES.

Grim & Gorly are featuring a very attractive window display, pot begonias occupying the front part of the window and in the background is a large spider web made of knotted pink ribbons. Some excellent primulas are also displayed. Alfred Jensen, son of Lars P. Jensen, aboriginalist for the Missouri Botanic garden recently joined the sales force of this firm.

The St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. reports a good business. J. K. M.

CHRISTMAS TRADE BETTER THAN EXPECTED.

After being rather pessimistic over the outlook for Christmas business and holding off until the last minute to place their orders for stock the florists were swamped with business during the last few days of Christmas week and enjoyed as large a trade if not greater than in previous years. In spite of the early unfavorable outlook the growers had sufficient stock on hand to meet the last minute demands with the exception of carnations, which were scarce. All stock was in excellent condition, especially pot plants. Cyclamens, cinerarias and Begonia melior, were in exceptionally fine shape and better than they have been for several years. The call for this class of goods was heavy and practically all the stock on hand was cleaned up. During the week following the holiday the supply of roses was overabundant but the market was not glutted and prices held firm. Last week all of the larger florists held a special sale on carnations, selling them in bunches of 25 for $1. This was an endeavor to clean up the market of the big supply, which was on hand, and was very successful. The usual post-holiday slump is being felt but business as a whole is fair.

FIRE AT ROBERTS ROSE CO.

Fire, which started early Wednesday morning, caused considerable damage to the greenhouses of the Roberts Rose Co., Englewood, a suburb. Starting in the garage, from an unknown cause, it destroyed it and three machines which were housed there; a Buick touring car, a Dodge sedan and a Republic truck. The boiler house, which is next to the garage was slightly damaged and part of the smokestack came down but luckily the heating plant was not sufficiently damaged to prevent keeping up steam. A small range of houses, near the boiler house, was burned along one end and several thousand plants were badly scorched. The propagating house was also slightly damaged but there was very little stock in it at the time and the loss of young plants was small. The houses burned were old and they were to be torn down this summer and replaced by new ones but now these plans will be carried out immediately. John Roberts, of the firm, estimates the monetary loss at about $5,000.

Ben Grote, foreman for the Park Floral Co., and a former grower for Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, and Wilcox & Sons, Council Bluffs, Ia., has purchased a half interest in the greenhouses and store of A. C. Kopper, Schenectady, N. Y., and leaves here the latter part of this month to take over the management of the greenhouses. E. N.

USUAL DULLNESS NOTED.

Business has settled back to its usual pre-holiday dullness, with an occasional spurt of wedding and funeral work. Roses are limited in supply but the stock is excellent in quality, with values high. Carnations, too, are scarce, but the quality is good. Daffodils, calendulas, freesias, Paper White narcissi and other early flowers are making their first appearance, in limited lots. Pussy willows are in heavy demand. Primroses, cyclamens, pot tulips and hyacinths are now arriving. American Beauty roses of excellent quality are bringing $24 per dozen retail.

NOTES.

The annual meeting of the New York Horticultural Society was held here, January 11-13. John Dunbar, who had been chairman of the ornamental shrubs and tree committee, handed in his resignation, because of business duties.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Association was held January 13 at the Osborne house.

J. B. Keller & Sons report a number of weddings and funerals since the first of the year.

H. E. Wilson had the decorations for a wedding at the Hotel Cobb recently. CHESTER.

TRADE IS VERY BRISK.

Trade has been brisk since the first of the year and indications point to a good business the balance of the month. The social season is now on which means an increase in the floral business. Corsages have been in good demand. The call for pot plants is fairly active. There have been many funerals of late and this has swelled the local business considerably. Roses are in strong demand and in fact have been for the past month. The supply is fairly liberal. Prices are satisfactory, having changed but little during the past year, the florists claiming that labor is still being paid good wages and that it is out of the question to reduce prices on flowers. Carnations are rather scarce. Sweet peas are on the local market in limited quantities. Taken as a whole the outlook for trade is very encouraging at this time.

George Blackman, of the Wm. Blackman Floral Co., and C. L. Neidnagel, of the Niednagel Floral Company, were among those from this city who attended the convention of the State Florists' Association of Indiana at Indianapolis last week. W. B. C.

Kansas City Florists' Club.

The Florists' Club held its regular monthly meeting at the Stuppy Supply Co. store, January 12, President Noll in the chair. There was an attendance of 80 members. The national publicity fund came in for considerable discussion as did the coming convention of the Society of American Florists, which will be held here, August 15-17.

W. F. Wade, because of business duties, resigned as secretary and Glenn Parker, of the Stuppy Supply Co., was elected secretary, to become effective at once. The president read a letter relating to the custom of the authorities at the federal penitentiary greenhouses selling cut flowers in the local market, of which the local growers did not approve. In the first place the flowers were grown by convicts and competing against those produced by persons who were making an honest living, and in many cases, it was said, this stock was sometimes sold at a lower price in order to move it. Another point raised was that every day some local organization calls up florists asking that flowers, for which no charge is made, be sent to the government hospital. It was thought this stock could be furnished just as well from the penitentiary greenhouses. A copy of the letter was forwarded to Secretary of War Weeks, Washington, D. C.

The American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co. showed moving pictures of greenhouse construction, which was very interesting. After the meeting adjourned a social time was had by all. The bowling club held a short session after adjournment to talk over plans for the tournament to be held at the time of the Society of American Florists' convention and it is expected that the team will be able to offer some stiff competition. The Late Mrs. Frank C. Burns.

It is with the deepest regret that we announce the recent death of Mrs. F. C. Burns, of San Rafael, Calif., wife of Secretary Burns, of the Dahlia Society of California. Taken in the prime of young womanhood her death was a great shock to her host of friends. The sincere sympathy of the trade is extended to Mr. Burns in his irreparable loss. Besides her husband, Mrs. Burns is survived by three children. J. T. L.

"BLACK NARCISSUS" is the name of a French perfume.

BILLS providing interchangeable mileage books for all railroads are now in the United States senate.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Beacon, N. Y., manufacturer of insecticides and greenhouse paint and putty, has mailed his well known calendar, indicating the important trade dates and flower days.

We are in receipt of the Brooklyn, N. Y., Botanic Garden Record, for January, featuring the prospectus of courses, lectures and other educational advantages offered to members and the general public for 1922. Dr. C. Stuart Gager is director of the garden.

Personal.

Frederic W. Taylor, well known to the trade as chief of horticulture at the St. Louis World's Fair, now located in Los Angeles, Calif., was in Chicago this week, enroute to New York where he will attend a meeting of the Foreign Relations Committee of the National Chamber of Commerce.

Samuel Murray, vice-president of the Society of American Florists, has been chosen president of the Kansas City, Mo., St. Andrews Society the second time, having been first elected to that office in 1916.

SELECTION and treatment of waters for praying purposes with especial reference to Santa Clara valley, is the subject of Bulletin No. 338 recently issued by the University of California Agricultural Experiment station, Berkeley. The bulletin brings out the fact that hard water forms dangerous combinations that often destroy the efficiency of many forms of insecticides, and by installing water-softening plants much of this difficulty may be overcome.

Waban Rose Conservatories Litigation.

A petition seeking the disbarment of Attorney W. Edwin Ulmer was filed January 10 before Judge Morton in the federal district court at Boston, Mass., by Assistant United States Attorney Charles P. Curtis acting in behalf of United States Attorney Robert O. Harris. The action is brought mainly because of alleged scandalous and false statements said to have been made by Ulmer in connection with a number of cases, the best known of which is that of the Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass. The petition declares that for at least five years, it has been the practice of Ulmer, in the conduct of cases in which he has been engaged as attorney and counsellor, to "wilfully and deliberately impede and subvert the administration of justice."

In the Waban Rose Conservatories case, Ulmer is charged with having obstructed the sale of the property by making false statements to possible purchasers and by issuing a circular letter containing false statements about the conservatories, and by other acts, all of which, it is said, were intended to nullify the administration of the estate by the court. It is further declared that legal objections made by Ulmer against Judge Anderson's passing judgment on certain features of the conservatories case, were filed not in good faith, but simply for the purpose of delay, and contained allegations which were "false on their face and which he knew to be false."

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

The following plants were recently offered for registration by Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, Calif., and passed upon by the registration committee:

Mrs. William C. Egan.—Class, Pernettiana x H. T.; parentage, cross of unnamed seedlings; foliage, heavy; freedom of growth and hardiness, growth free, subject to future test; flower, full; color, delicate pink; form, bud long and pointed; fragrance and bud, moderate; petalage, 35; freedom of bloom and lasting quality, good. The rose is similar to Mme. Segond Weber, but is different in color and superior to that rose because it has a freer, better shaped bud.

Fragrant Boquet.—Class, Pernettiana x H. T.; parentage, cross of unnamed seedlings; habit, medium height, bushy; foliage, heavy; freedom of growth and hardiness, subject to future test; flower, full; color, shell pink, base of petals, yellow; form, bud long and pointed, open flower, cup shaped; fragrance and bud, intense; petalage, 30 to 35; freedom of bloom and lasting quality, very free. This rose is not similar to any other kind.

If no objection to such registration is filed with the secretary of the society within three weeks of the date of publication, the registration will become permanent.

JOHN C. WISTER, Sec'y.

Lauder's Love of Flowers.

Announcement of the return of Sir Harry Lauder to Chicago next week, recalls a previous visit of the noted songster, when in passing A. Lange's store on Madison street, perchance, one evening with a lady friend, the latter admired the flowers and he invited her in to "smell them awhile." "Smell all you want," the proprietor remarked, and the couple, having fully satisfied their olfactory senses, passed on to the Michigan avenue moonlight, Sir Harry lifting on the way:

When but a young and thriftless cuff,
Sent out tae face the tide,
The miser grasp o' worldly folk
I scorned wi' heart o' pride;
In ripper years, wi' ripper mind,
I would their lives appud,
For honored weel's the hoary sire
Wha clings tae siller, lad.

TRADE BETTER THAN EXPECTED.

The usual falling off in business follows the Christmas holidays is retarded for the week following the occurrence but January 9 the market shows improvement. All kinds of seasonable work is offered and prices are very popular. Roses, Mrs. Chas. Russell and Columbia are at their best and are in heavy supply. Premier is not so plentiful but Ophelia and Ward are more than sufficient for all purposes. Cecile Brunner continues scarce. There is still quite a good cut of chrysanthemums obtainable, mostly from the Chinese growers. Col. Appleton, a yellow, is easily the best of the lot. Elaine chrysanthemums are much used in funeral work. Carnations seem to be in better demand than formerly. Laddie is bringing $10 per 100, from growers. Cold weather has retarded the violets to some extent. Shipping demand remains good with this flower. Daffodils from the San Lorenzo district, were on the market for the first time last week and found a ready sale. Dutch hyacinths, in pots and cut flowers, are now obtainable. Freesias, Paper White narcissi and lily of the valley are all plentiful. Gardenias are on the short side, with no prospects of immediate improvement. The supply of orchids is gradually increasing. Cut blooms of cyclamens and ericas are plentiful, the latter being in good demand for funeral work. Marigolds are about the only outdoor flower to be had. Ferns and asparagus growers say they have a good demand for their product. A small quantity of flowering eucalyptus is arriving. In pot plants, cyclamens are still plentiful and lead in sales. Poinsettias are yet obtainable. Azaleas, in all colors, add to the attractiveness of the shops. Erica melanthera and E. ovata are prime favorites. Begonias are gradually becoming scarcer and Boston ferns continue in strong demand.

RETAIL FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

The Retail Florists' Association held its regular monthly session, January 4, President A. O. Stein in the chair. He appointed a committee of 10 members, at the request of the local Chamber of Commerce, to meet with that organization, at an early date, to consider plans to entertain the Shriners during their national convention, here, next June. P. V. Matraia presented a plan to eliminate street peddlers operating the large flower stands on the principal streets, which was that the association request the city authorities to allow only crippled soldiers to have this privilege and that they be permitted to sell flowers from baskets, instead of from the immense stands now in use by the peddlers. This proposal was enthusiastically endorsed by the associ-

NOTES.

The report of the trial gardens of the Dahlia Society of California, located at the University of California, has been published. One hundred and seventy of our trials were made last season. States represented were: California, New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts. Owing to the new location, new growers and lateness of the planting, the best results were not obtainable in all varieties, and it has been decided to give these another year of trial.

Wm. T. Kirkpatrick, Jr., of Fresno, has purchased the tract across the highway from the fair grounds at Tulare with the object of establishing a nursery. He will begin work at once preparing the ground for stock. Mr. Kirkpatrick has a nursery at Fresno, comprising 240 acres, and it is understood that he will make Tulare the distributing point for Tulare county.

Michael Rossi, of G. Rossi & Co., is planning an extensive eastern trip in the near future. It is his intention to introduce the California red berry extensively in that section for next season's business. His firm is the largest handlers of this Christmas berry on the coast and he expects to make it popular in the eastern market next season.

Frank R. Mills, Palo Alto, reports having the largest holiday trade in the history of his business. The demand for flowers and plants he found equally good. His carnation houses are now in full crop and he is shipping a large quantity of fancy stock daily. Retail plant trade he says promises to be very brisk this spring.

The offices of Pelicano, Rossi & Co.'s store have been enlarged and remodeled. When Angelo J. Rossi of this firm took his seat as supervisor last week the chambers were banked with an elaborate display of flowers, a tribute from his legion of friends.

Nels Peterson, San Mateo, is sending a cut of Carnation Laddie, that has never been equaled here for quality. His Maine Sunshine is another kind that is fine and he is unable to supply the demand for either.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to Mose Ephraim in the death of his wife, which occurred January 2 at her home in this city. Her death was unexpected and came as a great shock to her many friends.

It is with the deepest regret that we record the death of Mrs. F. C. Burns, wife of F. C. Burns, secretary of the Dahlia Society of California. See obituary column for further particulars.

Shellgrain & Ritter, 148 Kearney street, recently added a handsome delivery truck to its fleet. Emile Ritter states that business is keeping up most satisfactorily with them.

M. H. Ebel, Sacramento, was a visitor last week. He reports a splendid Christmas business stating that the demand for flowering plants was fully as good as in former years.

S. Newsom, who has had charge of the growing department of the Jesse L. Seal Dahlia Gardens, has been admitted to a junior partnership in the firm.

Mrs. Pelicano, wife of Frank D. Pelicano, is quite ill at her home on Gothenburg street. Her numerous friends are hoping for her rapid recovery.

The Conservatory Flower Shop has moved to a new location at Polk and Sacramento streets, discontinuing its Geary street establishment.

Jos. Bongard has joined the staff of Pelicano, Rossi & Co. Mr. Bongard has long been recognized as one of the best artists in the city.

P. Vincent Matraia and wife recently left for a duck hunting trip in Colusa county.

T. Yakas has opened an attractive flower store at Post and Polk streets.

Visitor: Fred Howard, Los Angeles.

STOCK CONTINUES TO BE SCARCE.

Stock of all kind continues to be scarce and commands high prices. Carnations are cleaning up nicely each day and while at times they appear to be more plentiful than at others, prices are holding firm around the $8 per 100 mark. Roses are exceedingly scarce with short stemmed stock in strong demand at $10 to $12 per 100. Medium and long stemmed roses find ready buyers at high prices, owing to the great scarcity of stock in general. Sweet peas are good property. Lilies clean up each day at $25 to $30 per 100 and callas are easily disposed of at $4 per dozen. Orchids are holding their own and the same is true for lily of the valley and gardenias. White and yellow narcissus command high prices and the demand is very good for tulips, jonquils and freesias. Single and double violets are having a good call. Stevia, snapdragons, calendulas, daisies, mignonette and other miscellaneous seasonable stock is included in the offerings and like everything else is disposed of each day. Greens are in good supply and large offerings of cut heather is being shipped here from California. The supply is away below the demand at present but there are signs of the market weakening on some items.

NOTES.

Vaughan's Seed Store reports liberal flower seed orders from both seedsmen and florists. The salesmen's road bookings are above the season's average. The company's handling of Japan and French Bulb imports of last season, with early Dutch deliveries, makes many friends for the house.

Peter Reinberg, Inc., is offering chrysanthemum and carnation cuttings, in addition to the regular line of cut flowers. Choice freesia are attracting the attention of the city buyers at this establishment.

The Florists' Credit Association, Inc., is adding a large number of members to its list of subscribers, starting off this week with five new contracts, January 16.

Wietor Bros. are filling a large number of orders for carnation and chrysanthemum cuttings which accounts for their heavy express shipments the past week.

George Weinhoeber's new Michigan avenue shop, though small, is attractively arranged and window-lookers give it admiring attention.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

Emphasis on the value of the national publicity fund was made by a number of the speakers at the annual dinner of the Florists' Club at the January 6 meeting. The subject was introduced by Wm. C. Gloeckner, one of the local retailers, who was present to take subscriptions for the fund. Mr. Gloeckner stated the fund and the slogan, "Say It With Flowers," had done much through the world war period to make good business for the trade. Other lines of business appreciate the slogan more than the florists. Mr. Gloeckner called attention to the fact that the National Association of Jewelers has offered a reward of $100,000 to the person who will coin a slogan as adaptable and effective for their business as "Say It With Flowers." The money spent by the trade the past four years through the national publicity fund of the Society of American Florists has been repaid many fold, the speaker said, and it would be most unwise at this date to fail to keep up the good work and to respond to the appeal of the secretary of the society, John Young, New York.

The toastmaster of the evening, Fred A. Danker, added to the remarks of Mr. Gloeckner with observations of his own. He said that the grower or retailer who makes use of the slogan and fails to contribute to the publicity fund is an imposter. He told a little story of what the use of the slogan had done in his business; how people came to associate it with flowers and florists, perhaps even an individual florist who makes extensive use of it. Mr. Danker told of a certain woman and her husband who frequently traded in his store. Some time ago the couple moved to Boston, Mass., and one day they were in the suburbs where a billboard, "Say It With Flowers" met their gaze. The wife said to her husband, "Does Danker do business also in Boston?" A canvass of the growers and retailers present made after the addresses showed that all of them had already renewed their subscriptions for the fund. Mr. Danker advised the members to eliminate local programme advertising, and to devote the money to the fund.

At the dinner Albert Jenkins, the new president, took over his office as did also the new secretary, Thomas F. Kelliher, 40 Maiden Lane.

The retiring secretary, Wm. McGinn, delivered his annual report as follows: Cash on hand January 1, 1921, $169.91; received during the year $938.77; expended, $769.75; on hand January 1, 1922, $338.93. Besides the cash the club has two $100 Liberty bonds in the treasury, making total assets, January 1, of $538.93. One hundred and twenty-four members are on the rolls, of whom 16 were received during the past year.

The toastmaster gave notice of the annual meeting of the New York State Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs to be held February 16 at Cornell University, Ithaca, during Farmers' Week. Delegates to the convention will be guests of the department of floriculture of the university during the meetings. The local club may be represented by several delegates.

Thomas F. Tracey, manager of the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, Inc., through the toastmaster presented to the Troy members of the club a large silver cup on an ebony base which they won in a contest during the "Say It With Flowers" week in the autumn of 1920. The Troy florists announced they would put up the cup to be competed for annually by the trade of Troy, Schenectady and this city. To the retiring president, Samuel Hanson, the toastmaster in behalf of the club, presented a walrus traveling bag and to the retiring secretary, a black leather toilet case. On account of the fact that the dinner this year was held one week later than usual a number of familiar faces were lacking. Many of these were traveling men, well known in the trade, who have formed the habit of reaching this city the first week in January in order to attend the dinner.

Philip Bender, for 14 years city superintendent of parks, died on January 14 after an illness of eight months. Mr. Bender was a lifelong Republican and a member of Albany Lodge, No. 49, B. P. O. E., Cyprus Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine; Temple Lodge, F. and A. M., and New York Encampment, Odd Fellows. Through a change in the political administration of the city Mr. Bender was succeeded in office by Wellington Clarke, democrat, January 1.

KENTUCKY SOCIETY OF FLORISTS' MEETING.

The Kentucky Society of Florists met at the F. Walker Co.'s establishment, January 11, with an excellent attendance. W. Kerensky gave an interesting discussion on different ways of increasing the demand for flowers and said that if a plan was worked out every office in the city would want a fresh bouquet daily on its desks. Jos. Abele, the secretary, was presented with a beautiful silver plated dish, as an expression of love and esteem. He was very much surprised at the gift and stated that the surprise was fully equal to the time when his wife presented him with twins, several years ago. The members voted, for their spring outing a trip to Wyandotte cave and will send an invitation to the State Florists' Association of Indiana to join them.

The society doubled its annual dues from $3 to $6 and a plan for raising money for publicity purposes was discussed. Each grower would be assessed according to the amount of square feet of glass and each retailer, according to the number of his employees. No definite action was taken. Mrs. E. S. Irwing, of the F. Walker Co., acted as hostess and served delicious refreshments to all, at the conclusion of the meeting.

GARDENIAS

The price is much lower and the supply is large enough to meet any reasonable demand.

We have several grades. The better grades are exceptionally well grown. The cheaper grades are all perfect flowers, but they are smaller, and the stems are shorter.

Can we interest you in regular weekly shipments.

BUSINESS AT A STANDSTILL.

Business has been very much at a standstill the past week, the supply and demand both being on the short side, with the scant shipments likely to continue for a week or more to come. Every item can be said to be scarce, medium stemmed roses particularly so. There are extras and specials but only because they cannot be sold for the prices such stock ought to bring in comparison with the shorter grades. The demand is all for the 12 and 15 cent grade, these prices being the low figures for anything that is worth while. Qualities are for the most part very good. Choice American Beauty roses are selling up close at $1 each. Some carnation growers appear much more fortunate with their plants than others, as in some shipments the stock is fine while in others it is quite the reverse. Good flowers sell up clean at 10 to 12 cents. Callas are in great demand with not half enough to go around. Easter lilies are also shy as the cold storage stock is about going out and Formosum is hardly ready. White narcissi are in good supply and are a boon to those who make a specialty of funeral work. Calendulas have improved in quality and are selling much better. Sweet peas are a life saver to many, as they can be made to take the place of other selections. Each week's shipments are getting larger and improving in quantity. White lilacs are in fair supply, as is lily of the valley, while cattleyas are a step or two in advance of the demand. There are quantities of greens particularly asparagus, which moves slowly, because as one dealer put it, there are not flowers enough to use it up. There is a fair movement in flowering plants, many of the stores using them in decorative display in store and window.

SPRAY ASPARAGUS.

The southern asparagus which has become such a factor is still second choice with many retailers, for while some shipments appear fresh and hold well, others looking equally as fine shake badly and could not be used in good work. In southern asparagus, as in all other such goods, there are various grades due principally to selection and careful packing. Bunches as a rule are made up of 12 sprays; those who see that each spray is well formed and of good size carefully bunched and the stems covered with a wet sphagnum and not packed so many in a box as to heat, are pretty sure to get better returns than those who handle their grass in a haphazard way. All have to suffer from transportation troubles, such as having the boxes placed up against steam pipes in the express or mail cars. Those that carry best are packed five bunches to a bundle and with their large ball of wet moss, arrive generally much fresher than the single bunch stock without moss. Greenhouse asparagus is generally tied 25 sprays to a bunch, made of average size by the larger and smaller sprays. This generally sells at 50 cents, while the 12 sprays, southern, bring 35 cents, or three for $1.

NOTES.

Edward Towill, Roslyn, Pa., the well known raiser of new roses, is about to add 20,000 square feet to his area of glass, having placed a contract with the Metropolitan Material Construction Co. of Brooklyn, N. Y., for a house 35x400 feet. His new rose, American Legion, has met with a splendid demand in this market the past summer and fall, and looks very promising with the several growers who are now forcing it.

One of the wholesalers in commenting on the market situation stated that in a week or 10 days with the sun getting stronger there would be a material increase in the supply of carnations, and a week later the early spring supply of roses would commence coming, and this with the winter sweet peas at their height would bring about more normal conditions.

Eugene Bernheimer had to make a quick move this week and has joined the Mole street colony, being located at present at 6 South Mole street temporarily, until improvements are made to his permanent store at No. 15 which will be ready in about a month, and where he will have a commodious and well arranged shop.

Berger Bros. finds the light demand of the past week plenty strong enough to keep the market clear without undue raising of prices. Roses, carnations, Trumpet Major narcissi and sweet peas were the leading stocks.

The Philadelphia Growers' Cut Flower Market is handling good cuts of roses at this time but could sell twice as many more. Easter lilies and sweet peas are also features.

The Leo Niessen Co. is featuring gardenias in special, down to lower grades, the quality is fine. White lilacs, cattleyas and lily of the valley are other quality specials.

STOCK MOVING SLOWLY.

While the large number of retailers who have stores in this city and vicinity must necessarily do considerable buying to be prepared for business and keep up a good appearance the volume of trade in the wholesale district was not as great as should be expected at this season of the year, in a city of this size. The supply of stock was comparatively light, but there were few quick cleanups and some of the offerings were heavy on the hands of the dealers. Orchids and lily of the valley and their movement are a fair index to the condition of the high class trade. The latter has been slow for months and cattleyas took a bad fall early last week. There is always a call for roses, but it has only been active in the grades from No. 2 to extra. The former having been scarce, the demand has centered largely on No. 1's and extras. That class of stock has, in proportion, had greater value than the fancies and specials. A better quality of tulips and yellow narcissi is now arriving and there is a fair, although not urgent call for them. Bunches of cut acacia are also seen. A normal supply of carnations is reported, the best being held at high figures. In fact, the prices on all cut stock are above the pocketbooks of the great middle class of citizens. Many of the class that can pay high prices are spending their time and money at winter resorts and others are standing pat. The foregoing is not a knock at the business, or the public, but so far as we have been able to observe a plain statement of facts.

January 16.—With clear and moderate weather, the supply of stock is on the increase, particularly tulips, yellow narcissi and violets. The latter are cheap and all the street boys are handling them. The bulb stock is holding up well. Quotation prices are weaker and unless severe cold and dark weather sets in, there is likely to be a further decline. Roses remain firm.

HARTFORD TRAINS.

The transportation committee of the Florists' Club has arranged for special coaches to be attached to the regular trains leaving the Grand Central station, January 25, at 7:43 a. m., and 9:15 a. m., via the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, for the midwinter flower show at Hartford, January 25-27. The first mentioned train reaches Hartford at 11:04 a. m., and the second at 12:11 p. m., the fare being $3.93 one way. Reservations should be sent immediately to Paul Rigo, care Henshaw Floral Co., 43 West Eighteenth street, New York.

NOTES.

Adam Trepel, for over 20 years a buyer for his brothers, has retired from that line and is about to open a shop of his own at Flatbush and Church avenues, Brooklyn. Mr. Trepel is a clever man and has always been popular in the wholesale district. His unfailing sense of humor has largely contributed to his popularity and besides he is on the level.

The snowstorm that began here on the morning of January 11 finally turned to rain and transportation was little delayed, but it is said that there was so much snow at Rheinbeck and Red Hook, L. I., that violet growers were unable to get to the railway stations, January 12, with their stock.

It has been announced that Miss Mary Alden Pierson, daughter of Paul M. Pierson and wife, was recently married at Greenwich, Conn., to John Bacon, son of John R. Bacon and wife, Tarrytown, N. Y. The bride's father is a well known grower of Braircliffe and Scarborough, N. Y.

John DeVincent, manager for Fleischman, was detained at his home at Park Ridge, N. J., for three weeks of December 1921, on account of the illness of his little child. He submitted to a transfusion of blood and the child's life was saved.

We have received a cordial invitation to attend the annual dinner of the Morris County, N. J. Gardeners' and Florists' Association, at Morristown, January 19. This society is noted for its good flower shows and dinners.

Among those that will attend the carnation convention and exhibition at Hartford, Conn., January 25, are President Irwin and Secretary Young of the Florists' club, A. M. Henshaw, S. S. Skidelsky and Herman Weiss.

Fine stocks of cut acacias are being sold by Geo. C. Siebrecht, 109 West Twenty-eighth street, which was grown at the range of his father, G. C. Siebrecht, Sr., Chappaqua, N. Y.

Jos. J. Levy, the wholesale dealer at 56 West Twenty-sixth street, is having extensive improvements made in his store. Joe goes quietly about it, but manages to get there.

At the store of the Weylin Florist, 527 Madison avenue, it was recently stated that their holiday business was encouraging. This store was opened a short time before Christmas.

The United Cut Flower Co., 111 West Twenty-eighth street, is receiving an excellent collection of tulips and narcissi, also Easter lilies, rubrums and callas.

Herman Weiss, 121 West Twenty-eighth street, is making extensive improvements in the interior arrangement of his shop. He reports a brisk trade.

One of the busiest retail stores recently visited was the Star Florist, A. S. McKee, proprietor, 65 West 14th street. This store is always well stocked.

Joseph A. Millang, in the rooms of the New York Cut Flower Co., is handling a fine stock of Scott Key, Butterfly, Premier and Columbia roses.

An excellent supply of American Beauty and American Legion roses is being received by M. C. Ford in the Eighteenth Street market.

In addition to cut flowers, J. J. Coan in the Eighteenth Street market is now handling a large lot of cyclamen plants.

An exceptionally fine stock of stevias is being handled by Phil. Kessler, in the Cut Flower Exchange.

Wm. Mackie, in the Eighteenth street market, is handling a fine assortment of bulb stock.

A. F. F.

QUINCY, ILL.—Cliff Pruner of Chicago, was a caller here last week.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—The property of the former concern, Crabb & Hunter, has been reported sold under foreclosure of a real-estate mortgage, about a year ago. The time of redemption expired December 27, 1921, and the title has become absolute in the mortgagee. There is no opportunity for the general creditors to realize anything on their claims.

Philadelphia Seed Trade.

Burpee's Annual for 1922 is out and gives considerable space as usual to new sweet peas. Other interesting floral novelties include the semi-double and double Shasta daisy Floradale, dahlias, etc. New vegetables are Sunnyside pepper, Sunnyside pole lima bean and Fordhook forcing cabbage. The book presents an excellent appearance with numerous fine illustrations and plates in colors.

Getting out the catalogue is first on the programme with Henry A. Dreer at this time. The southern and southwestern states are first on the list and orders are now coming in from customers who have received them. The issue this year is fully up to their high standard, beautifully illustrated and full of valuable information and cultural directions for both flowers and vegetables. They are making great preparations in all departments for a record spring business.

The extensive show windows of the Henry F. Mitchell Co. are, with their elaborate seasonable decorations, a bid for business all the time. One is filled with standard foliage and flowering plants artistically placed. Across the doorway is a very well planned window of vegetable seeds in all the popular varieties displayed now, as Philip Frued the master window dresser says, to start the people thinking about their gardens and get in the way of planting their seeds early. The other group of large windows appeals to the suburbanites, one being filled with all sorts of accessories for the chicken raiser, apropos of the local poultry show, where the firm had an elaborate exhibit. The other window features sprayers and insecticides in variety, long and short handled pruning shears, saws, axes, etc. A prominent show card states that now is the time to prune and spray. It is a most seasonable and effective window.

Canary Island Onion Seed Crop.

Of the past 15 years, the 1921 onion seed season of the Canary Islands ranks first in the value of the shipments to the United States and Porto Rico, with 121,061 pounds, valued at $142,749. In quantity, however, 1917 holds first place, with 128,620 pounds, valued at $139,501. The onion seed exported to the United States and Porto Rico during the season just closed was nearly double in quantity that for 1920, when only 63,014 pounds were shipped. This increase was largely due to the fact that 1920 was a very prosperous year for the American onion growers, many of whom contracted with the seed growers of the Canary Islands for the 1921 crop. It happened, however, that the American onion crop was poor in 1921; so the demand for seed declined considerably. On the other hand, the Canary growers, foreseeing a considerable sale in the United States, had increased their production. The unexpected decline in the American demand caused great alarm among the native growers. In order not to lose their seed, they shipped on consignment at very low rates. It is estimated, however, that 10,000 to 12,000 pounds of the 1921 crop were left over. In the United States the situation was even worse, as the importers received about 30,000 pounds more than they were able to place on the market.

It is expected that both the Canary growers and the American importers will hold their stocks for the next season. American onion growers should guard against these old stocks being mixed with the seed of the 1922 crop and sold as new seed, as the year-old seed yields only 50 per cent as much as new seed, and the quality of the onion is far inferior.

The forty-seventh annual convention will be held at Detroit, Mich., June, 1922.

YUMA, ARIZ.—Two hundred and fifty thousand grape cuttings, costing $2 per 1,000, are being planted here.

CHERAW, S. C.—A nursery will be established here next autumn by W. F. Bohlender, of the Spring Hill Nurseries, Tippecanoe City, O.

"WALNUT CULTURE IN CALIFORNIA," is the subject of Bulletin No. 332, issued by the University of California Experiment station, Berkeley, treating of the varieties, cultural methods, harvesting and cost of production in a thorough manner.

"WHITESBOG BLUEBERRIES," is the title of an attractively illustrated booklet describing cultural methods and varieties grown by Joseph J. White, Inc., New Lisbon, N. J., with two interesting articles on blueberries by J. Horace McFarland and Elizabeth C. White. A 1922 price list for plants as well as for peat, for preparing ground, is included in the booklet.

Orchard Trees in Canada.

The Canadian government statistics recently issued show that the value of orchard trees sold from nurseries in 1920 amounted to $500,092, compared with $270,818 for the previous year, which included 453,629 apple trees, worth $206,286; 64,384 pear, 79,451 plum, 38,763 peach, 53,521 cherry and 9,691 apricot trees.

Oklahoma Association of Nurserymen.

ANNUAL MEETING, JANUARY 17.

The annual meeting of the Oklahoma Association of Nurserymen was held at the Lee-Huckins hotel, Oklahoma City, January 17, with an excellent programme. One of the principal objects of the meeting was the reorganization of the association. Many interesting and instructive papers were presented, as follows: "Benefits to be Expected From a State Organization," by Jim Parker, Tecumseh; "Prices of Nursery Products," by A. L. Luke and J. T. Foote; "Future Prospects of the Nursery Business," by C. E. Garee, Noble, president of the association, and J. W. Tetrick; "The Florist Business as a Side Line," by W. E. Rey.

Satin Moth.

The federal quarantine against the satin moth, an announcement of which appeared in our issue of December 17, 1921, page 1124, became effective January 1, and prohibits or restricts the movement of the insect's principal carriers, namely, poplar, willow and related plants from the following towns in Massachusetts and New Hampshire and all territory between them and the Atlantic ocean: Rye, North Hampton, Hampton, Hampton Falls, Seabrook and South Hampton, N. H.; Merrimac and Haverhill, Mass.; Salem, N. H.; Methuen, Andover, Tewksbury, Lowell, Chelmsford, Billerica, Bedford, Concord, Sudbury, Framingham, Sherborn, Holliston, Millis, Natick, Needham, Boston, Quincy and Rockland, in Plymouth county, Mass.

Illinois State Nurserymen's Association.

The Illinois State Nurserymen's Association is holding its annual meeting this week, as we go to press, at the Congress hotel, Chicago, January 19-20. The first session will convene at 9:30 a. m., Thursday morning. The following addresses will be presented on the opening day: "Tell It to the City Folk," by W. F. Therkindson, Chicago; "Tell It to the Farmer," by F. B. White, of the same city, and "Sales Plus," by John Watson, Princeton, N. J., former president of the American Association of Nurserymen.

The Friday session will convene at 9:30 a. m., and will include many interesting papers by the following: "Peonies—Their Distinction," by L. F. Dintelman, Belleville; the subject being further discussed by Geo. Klehm, Arlington Heights, and W. A. Peterson, Chicago. Prof. J. C. Blair, dean of the department of horticulture, University of Illinois, Urbana, will tell of "The Development of Landscape Gardening in the Middle West." "Creating the Desire to Plant" will be presented by Clarence Siebenthaler, Dayton, O. A question box, to be opened before the conclusion of the meeting will be an interesting feature for the members.

The officers of the association are as follows: A. M. Augustine, Normal, president; A. H. Hill, Dundee, vice-president; Miles Bryant, Princeton, treasurer, and J. A. Young, of the Aurora Nursery Co., Aurora, Ill., secretary.

Pittsburgh.

SHORTENED SUPPLY MOVES RAPIDLY.

Market conditions remain about the same as the last report, stock scarce and high with a demand that uses everything in sight. The greatest shortage is in roses in the short and medium sizes, and in carnations. At present it does not appear as though there would be any relief for at least four to six weeks. American Beauty roses are a thing of the past as far as this market is concerned, but we hope it will not be long until they will be in crop again. Easter lilies are good property and are cleaning up daily. Paper White narcissi have come into their own and are selling well. Jonquils and tulips have put in an appearance and are helping out on a short market. Sweet peas clean up daily at fancy prices and are of fine quality. Baby primrose is also popular with the trade during the shortage. The supply of yellow daisies falls far short of the demand, while violets are cleaning up on sight. The only items that seem to drag are orchids and lily of the valley and in the end they also go.

RETAIL FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

The Retail Florists' Association held its regular monthly meeting, January 12, at the Hotel Chatham, but the inclement weather kept the attendance down. Those who did not attend surely missed a treat, as Wm. Clark, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., gave a talk on the florists' business from the time he started until the present day, and he had no trouble holding the attention of everyone. From Mr. Clark's remarks the retailers of 20 to 40 years ago certainly had their troubles. Mr. Wright of the Wright Advertising Agency gave a very interesting talk on advertising and business in general. Due to the poor attendance there was no new business transacted.

The McCallum Co. now has its new spring artificial flower decorations on display at its Seventh street store. The line this year is the largest and best they have ever attempted and has caused much favorable comment both among the florists and department stores' window trimmers.

The Last Chance to Secure Heavy Dormant Two Year Old Budded Plants of the Wonderful Pillar or Climbing Rose

Paul's Scarlet Climber

At the Low Price of $50.00 per 100.

This variety as we have predicted ever since its introduction, is rapidly taking the first place as the most popular brilliant pillar or Climbing Rose.

Mr. S. S. Pennock in his recent address before the Philadelphia Florists' Club in speaking of the wonderful Bagatelle Rose Gardens at Paris, France, referred to this rose as the most brilliant in color and a subject that could be seen from all points in the garden, still in splendid shape after other Climbers had passed.

It is truly a wonderful rose and will find a place in every garden.

The price of $50.00 per 100 is special and will only hold good on orders booked on or before February fourth and for immediate delivery.

EVERGREEN SPECIALISTS. LARGEST GROWERS IN AMERICA.

LIGHT TRADE REPORTED.

Since the holidays the volume of business has been mainly centered on funeral work, which has not been very heavy. There seems to be considerable complaint at the high retail prices asked for stock. There is an abundance of extra fine stock, which has not been equaled in years as far as quality is concerned. Violets are arriving from California and local chrysanthemums are seen. Stevias and asparagus are plentiful but smilax is just about finished. Bulbous flowers are better and more abundant. When we hear a fairly common hyacinth offered in a 4-inch pot for 75 cents we do not wonder that business is slow.

The kinds of trees and plants seen during our recent trip through Japan makes us wonder at the person who caused Japan to be known as the "Floral Kingdom". Perhaps he tarried too long in that first place his rickshaw man took him to. We didn't. A visit through China also proved very interesting. Brother Florist, if you care to walk with us through some of China we will next meet you in Hankow.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, January 17.—Cucumbers, per crate, $7 to $7.50; head lettuce, per crate, $2.25 to $3.50; carrots, $3.50 to $6 per 100 bunches; cabbage, $2.50 to $2.75 per 100-pound sack; turnips, $3 to $4 per barrel.

New York, January 13.—Cucumbers, Boston, $1 to $2.50 per dozen; mushrooms, per three-pound basket, 65 cents to $1.25; radishes, 100 bunches, $3 to $7; tomatoes, per pound, 20 to 40 cents; lettuce, one dozen bunches, $1 to $1.75; beet tops, per basket, $2.

Vegetable Movement.

WEEK OF JANUARY 9-14.

Potato shipments continue to increase. $47 more cars being rolled than during the previous week. Prices are gradually declining. New York round whites having been sold to jobbers at $2.15 to $2.35 per 100 pounds. Minnesota Red Rover Ohios brought $2 to $2.10 at Chicago. Western Rurals lost 10 to 20 cents, in producing sections, growers receiving $1.15 to $1.30. Maine continues to be the principal shipping state.

Onion prices are rapidly advancing. Connecticut valley Yellow Globes gaining 75 cents to $1 at shipping points, closing at $6.50 to $7. California Australian Browns are bringing $7.50 to $8 at St. Paul and Minneapolis. White varieties are quoted at $8.50 to $9 at New York. The movement for the week amounted to 439 cars.

New cabbages, from Texas, were in excellent demand at Cincinnati, selling to jobbers at $75 per ton, but only brought $50 to $55 at St. Louis. New York Danish type has declined $3 at New York city and at Pittsburgh prices were $3 to $10 less for the same stock, closing at $50 to $53. There were 910 cars rolled, a gain of 244.

Sweet potato demand continues fairly steady, with shipments falling off. The only variety to decline in price was Tennessee Nancy Hall, which dropped to a level of $1.15 to $1.35 per bushel in middlewestern markets. Georgia Porto Ricos brought $1 at Cincinnati.

Apple demand shows no change compared with the previous week, except at Chicago, where a slight advance was noted on Michigan stock of 50 to 75 cents, closing at $7.75 to $8.

California cauliflower declined 25 cents per crate in eastern markets, bringing $1.50 to $2.

Cranberries, from Michigan, have been sold to jobbers $32 per barrel.

Spinach shipments are increasing. 201 cars being moved, compared with 138 for the previous week.

Hartford, Conn.

CHRISTMAS TRADE NOT EQUAL TO 1920.

The Christmas trade was not as good as hoped for this year, due to a large extent to the poor quality of stock sent in. The big disappointment was the roses, which, if the offerings had been better, would have helped matters materially. Jerusalem cherries and greens were in heavy supply and went well.

MID-WINTER FLOWER SHOW.

The mid-winter flower show, to be staged under the auspices of the American Carnation Society, American Rose Society and the Florists' Club, January 25-27, at Foot Guard's hall, is expected to be a great success. Headquarters will be at the Hotel Bond. One of the features of the occasion will be the banquet to be held at the Hotel Bond, on the evening of January 25. Governor Everett J. Lake, wife and daughter have promised to be in attendance. Dancing will conclude the ceremonies. The affair will be entirely informal. For hotel reservations write or wire immediately. Andrew W. Welch, 194 Trumbull street, Hartford.

The florists of this city are planning to have handsome displays, including corsages, baskets of flowers and bouquets.

Florists are cordially invited to make the flower shop of George G. McClunie, 165 Main street, their headquarters during flower show week. G. G. McC.

MOST STOCK IN SHORT SUPPLY.

Trade the past week was a little quiet in some items but there has been a good demand for funeral flowers, while parties have been frequent. Corsages have been selling fairly well. The call is about equal to that of former years at this time. Roses, carnations, sweet peas, narcissi, violets and freesia are the leaders. Roses are of excellent quality but the supply is short and prices high, Columbia and Premier being most in evidence. They sell at $4 to $10 per dozen. Violets and sweet peas bring $2 per bunch. Pot plants are selling fairly well with the supply good, cyclamens and primroses leading. Preparations are now being made for St. Valentine's Day which is expected to be one of the big events of the year. The trade for this occasion is usually one-half less than the Christmas increase. Growers expect to have a good lot of roses, carnations, violets and sweet peas coming on at that time.

NOTES.

Claude Seibert, manager of the Fifth Avenue Floral Co., reports a heavy amount of funeral work lately and as a result there is a scarcity of flowers, especially roses and carnations and prices show a tendency to advance. The firm is cutting a large number of carnations, which are quickly sold.

The Munk Floral Co. has been having a good call for flowers, principally roses, carnations, narcissi and violets. The company is going to make extensive improvement in the spring, one of the additions being the erection of a modern boiler house, probably of cement block.

The Franklin Park Floral Co., is experiencing a good trade and the concern is busy cutting roses and carnations.

Manager Hill, of the Indianola Florists, East Seventeenth street, is another grower who has been busy.

The Linden Floral Co. has been cutting a number of tulips, the first of the season and find a ready sale.

A good trade since the holiday period is reported by Frank C. Viereck.

J. W. L.

Providence, R. I.

TRADE IMPROVING AFTER THE HOLIDAY.

Trade the past week has been rather slow with a scarcity of many kinds of flowers. Roses have been advanced several times and are holding up well. Carnations bring 12 cents, and are of very poor quality. Easter lilies are of good quality and are selling well for funeral work. Paper White narcissi are maintaining previous price levels and bring four to five cents for short kinds and six to seven cents for longs. Very fine violets and calendula from Boston are meeting with a good demand. Orchids, lily of the valley and pansies are on the short side, but have little call. Teddy, Jr., and Macawii ferns are flooding the market and scarcely move. In flowering plants, cyclamens, primulas and begonias are still selling well, due no doubt to the high prices asked for cut flowers. Excellent plants have been sold for $2 retail.

RHODE ISLAND HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held at the Public library, January 18. Prof. J. Franklin Collins, of the United States forest service, presented an address, illustrated with stereopticon views, on "Government Tree Surgery With Special Reference to Repairing Damage Caused by Ice Storms."

NOTES.

Wm. Hoffman, Pawtucket, is cutting excellent carnations and Paper White narcissi and has a good supply of cyclamens, in 6-inch pots.

Smith, the Florist, has been bringing some good carnations, calendulas and

This Is Important.

Nitrate of Soda not only does not cause the soil to become acid or sour, but helps to correct soil acidity.

Be careful! Some forms of nitrogen cause the soil to become acid and therefore make it necessary to correct this condition before satisfactory crops can again be produced.

Nitrate of Soda greatly increases crops of grain, vegetables, fruits and flowers, without any bad after effects.

Dr. William S. Myers, Director, 25 Madison Avenue, New York City, will supply, without cost, special information on fertilizing problems.

American Carnation Society.

Annual Meeting and Exhibition, Hartford, Conn., January 25-27, 1922.

Large Exhibition Well Staged.

The thirty-first annual exhibition and meeting of the American Carnation Society opened in Footguard hall, January 25, Hartford, Conn., under auspicious circumstances. Although the hall was very well suited for the purposes of the show, being almost 100 feet square, there was not sufficient space for the proper display of the numerous and excellent exhibits, as the carnation entries were larger than for a number of years. The interior was beautifully decorated, the ceiling being covered with white cheese cloth, which also draped the walls and windows and the front of the gallery. Garlands of southern smilax canopied the hall and were studded with electric lights, giving a beautiful effect. The display tables were two feet wide and coverings of green crepe paper made them very attractive.
All of the preparations for the exhibition were made after 12 midnight, Tuesday, as the hall was being used for other purposes the previous day. The south side of the hall was given over to the retail exhibits.

The Hartford Florists' Club took a great interest in the show, leaving nothing undone to give it a perfect setting.
The flower shops of the city distributed 35,000 complimentary tickets to customers and the members of the florists' club spent approximately $2,000 in decorations and publicity. The local exhibitors included Geo. G. McClunie, Coombs, the Florist, J. Alber Brodrib,
Spear & McManus Co., Linden Florist, Robt. Marchant, Welch, the Florist and others.

The carnation exhibitors included S.

President Howard's Address.

Ladies, gentlemen and fellow-members of the American Carnation Society—

It is with great pleasure and honor that I, the thirty-first president of the American Carnation Society, address you. How time flies. It seems but a short time since we met in Washington, D. C., one year ago, when I was made president of this society, 13 years after I became a member in the same city. Thirteen years a member. Some spoke to me of 13 being an unlucky number and said that I would have a hard time getting ahead. But when Hartford was decided upon as our next meeting place and I found that place full of enthusiasm, I decided that for once the old adage had failed. As we look through the exhibition hall and see the quantity and quality of the flowers, it seems as though this had been a successful year.

The American Carnation Society was organized 31 years ago and speaking of the first meeting, I believe that we have at least one or more of the charter members here today. We had 49 members then, now there are 355. It has taken 31 years of conscientious work to reach the high standard we have now attained. Varieties have been put on the market. While some, perhaps, do not equal the older kinds, they have some good points.

As we examine the wonderful blooms in the hall we remark, "How can there be a better quality grown?" We need the determination to grow more seedlings. What will make our meetings more interesting than to have a dozen or more new seedlings shown each year?

I believe that is what will really make this society much stronger. At this time let me say to the members who are so diligently working to produce new varieties, do not forget fragrance and keeping quality. Fragrance, I believe, is one great point, and I think we should have 10 points. Speaking of keeping quality, it has been said by one of our leading retailers that the carnation is the poorest keeper of any of the flowers he handles. Surely, fellow-members, what will do more to injure the reputation of the carnation than that? I don't think there is a member in this room who will not agree with me in saying that although some of the flowers at this show have been shipped hundreds of miles, still they look as fresh as when cut.

ELEVEN SEEDLINGS REGISTERED.

There were 11 seedlings and three sports registered this past year. I think the raising of new seedlings has been given a big boom the last few years. Only last month I had occasion to visit two greenhouses near Boston and it was indeed pleasing to me to see over 500 different seedlings. Some had but one plant of a kind, others perhaps 25, and so on. No doubt in two or three years we shall see many of these promising varieties on our exhibition tables. I would like to see more of this spirit shown. It is true that we Americans are forever seeking new fads, not only in dress, but in all commodities of life. To the members of this society who so diligently work to produce new varieties of merit, we are probably more indebted than we realize, for if it were not for the new ones, we would surely cease to progress.

I will now take the liberty to tell my experience with novelties. The average commercial grower today grows four or perhaps five varieties, namely two shades of pink, white and red. They claim this is all the market requires. It has, however, been my custom to grow more varieties than that, and this is a true statement, that the common sorts bring me a greater financial return, because of the novelties. The large demand for the novelties help to sell the others. Then do not forget the old kinds but let us try to improve them. I call to mind two or three varieties which at one time I thought I should have to discard; Eureka, by the way, was one of them. Instead of throwing it out, all I did was to select the healthy plants from which to take stock, and now I could not ask for a better scarlet.

NEW MEMBERS IMPORTANT.

Just as we want and need new seedlings, so we want and must have new members. I wish to speak of one way in particular which I think might help to get more members. That is by having branch meetings in various sections of the country, say one in New England, another in New York, and the section around Philadelphia, etc. My reason for making this suggestion is this: A great number to whom I have spoken about becoming members so that they might attend these conventions and exhibit there, have said in reply, "Your meetings are held too far away. It takes too much time and money. I cannot afford to go." Therefore I believe that if we had these branches located in different parts of the country where we could call a meeting, say three or four times a year to be held for one day, it would not cost much and at the same time it would give us a chance to discuss carnation growing and before long I think we should find our society had many new members. I should like to have this discussed at our next meeting.

I am very much pleased to have the American Rose Society join with us in this convention. I think that if arrangements could be made for both societies to meet once in two or three years, if not every year, on the same days and not have the meetings conflict, that it would help the interests of both societies as some members grow both carnations and roses. The cost of the exhibition hall would be less for each society, also the transportation. I, personally, think that the carnations and the roses make an attractive showing.

FIFTH NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Next March 25-April 1 the greatest of all shows is to be held in Cleveland, O., a national flower show, of the Society of American Florists in which this society takes an active part. The premiums in the carnation section of the national show amounts to $2,000. I think, and that, of course, is to be paid out of the national show fund. Now let as many of us attend and exhibit as possibly can. We must do our share to make it a success for in it there is a great advertising medium for us.

OFFICERS AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

While reading one of the trade papers recently, I noticed that the British Carnation Society has just held its twenty-sixth exhibition in London. Mr. Engleman, one of our own members, had things much his own way and carried off a great many prizes. A large percentage were won with varieties of American origin. Mr. Engleman has in all over 250 kinds in cultivation. The society has evolved a new system of classification, which in time may be helpful to us.

During the past year three of our members have answered the last call. M. A. Patten of Tewkesbury, Mass., makes the ninth ex-president, also J. S. Stuart of Anderson, Ind., and Peter Reinberg, of Chicago. Let us pause a moment in their memory. I would suggest that a committee be appointed to take some action in this matter.

The year 1921 marked the continuation of the reaction which set in last year following the boom created by the great war. As it was expected, the depression in business has resulted in heavy losses to many industries, in many sections of the country. It is impossible to state just when we shall reach the end of this period, but business along horticultural lines has not been so hard hit as along the lines of manufacturing. Therefore, we have every reason to be optimistic.

In closing I want to heartily thank the secretary, A. F. J. Baur, for his kind co-operation and advice in many things. Also N. C. Osborn, our worthy vice-president, for his untiring zeal and activity, which has made possible this most successful convention and exhibition. I also want to thank Mr. Pierson, general chairman of committee on arrangements and Mr. Thompson, president of the Hartford Florists Club and his assistants, also the ladies who have taken such good care of us while in Hartford. I certainly appreciate the courtesy shown me during my visits here the past year.

Secretary A. F. J. Baur's Report.

Mr. President and members of the American Carnation Society:

With the return of normal conditions in the trade our society is rapidly resuming its natural stride. Our meeting at Washington, D. C., last January, though not so large as the Chicago meeting, was well attended. The exhibition was more nearly normal than for several years, due to the greater abundance of stock and the increased interest on the part of our members, which is reflected in the large number of seedling carnations coming on and which are brought to our meetings for inspection and approval.

Our membership continues to make slight but steady gains, continuing to be the largest in our history. There are now 351 members, of whom 12 are life members. This shows a gain of four in annual members and a loss of one life member. M. A. Patten, one of our oldest members and a past president died December 5, 1921; J. S. Stuart passed away April 11, and Peter Reinberg died June 21, in the same year.

Complying with the resolution adopted at the last meeting, the increase in the annual dues was put into force. The members are responding cheerfully, and there should be sufficient funds to carry on the work of this society satisfactorily. There is also a greater total revenue from the advertising section of the premium schedule than ever before and with a slight decrease in the printing bill, the net profits are considerably more. These things afford much satisfaction to your secretary, who must bear the burden of the work. We have collected the following funds during the past year: One life membership, $50; annual dues, $785; advertising, $495; National Flower Show premium fund, $785; miscellaneous, $96.50. Total, $2,211.50. All of this was turned over to our treasurer. The secretary and treasurer's books were audited by a public accountant and found correct.

At the Washington meeting, subscriptions were taken toward a fund to liquidate a portion of our liability of the National Flower Show premium fund. Pledges to the amount of $560 were handed in and the secretary was instructed to continue soliciting additional pledges, which resulted in raising the total to $835.00 in cash and one $15 silver cup. Seven hundred and eighty-five dollars of this has been paid in. We should be glad to receive additional contributions sufficient to swell the total to $1,000, one half of the amount of the carnation premium list.

Your secretary has attended the two meetings of the National Flower Show Committee, where arrangements were made for the exhibition in Cleveland, O., March 25-April 1. The first was held in New York, March 16, and the other in Cleveland, on November 18, 1921. Arrangements were made to pay the traveling expenses of all those participating in these meetings out of the National Flower Show Fund and charged up against the receipts of the show. Arrangements for this show are progressing satisfactorily. All the various departments are working in complete harmony and a grand exhibition is assured.

We are expecting the members of this society to stage the grandest exhibit of carnations ever seen anywhere. We completed the premium schedule as per instructions and submitted it to the National Flower Show Committee, who adopted it without change.

During the past year 11 seedling and three sport varieties were offered for registration. One of the sport kinds was not submitted to our judges for verification and could not be placed on the register.

The annual report was issued and mailed to our members and the premium schedule for this exhibition was sent to our members and some 600 non-members. The additional cost being so slight, we recommend that this practise be continued. Special notices were printed gratis by the trade press and our thanks are due them for their generous support.

This joint exhibition with the American Rose Society and the Hartford Florists Club has developed into an all round flower show. Early entries indicate a heavy snowing of the divine flower. The society's thanks are due the Hartford florists for interest shown and special credit is due our worthy vice-president, N. C. Osborn, for his untiring efforts to make this a banner show and for looking after our comforts while in Hartford.

We now have 243 members in the Society of American Florists, which entitles us to a directorship in the parent society. At the Washington meeting we asked to be relieved of the duties of the secretary's office at the expiration of the present year. We hope that you have made provision for our successor. These 13 years of service have been filled with unbounded pleasure in the continual assurance of your confidence and your wholehearted support. We bespeak for the new secretary a continuation of these happy relations.

American Rose Society.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING.

An important meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society was held at the City club, New York, January 9. The membership for the year 1921 was reported as 2,280. The treasurer's statement was presented and a long discussion on finances took place. It was shown that the society must have many more memberships to keep up its good work in the future. The membership committee reported the new rose premium by which new members taking out 1922 memberships for $3 receive with it a coupon for $2 worth of roses to be secured from any one of co-operating nurserymen. The membership committee felt that this, together with the advertising campaign, would bring in many new members and would be much more advisable than raising the dues to $5 as had been suggested by some persons.

Wallace R. Pierson reported at length on the work of the committee of cut flower interests. He said that every effort was being made to make the rose exhibition at the National Flower Show, Cleveland, O., March 25-April 1, the greatest ever held in America. Three thousand dollars worth of premiums have been offered in the name of the rose society but many members of the society feeling that this was too great a burden for it to carry have offered to be responsible for over $1,000 worth of these premiums.

It was voted to hold the annual meeting during the flower show week in Cleveland, O., the exact date to be determined later. It is hoped that the rose society may have a booth at this show and that many of its members may be able to get together there.

The society's gold and silver medal was offered for rose seedlings to be shown at the Hartford, Conn., show, January 26-27. The committee of commercial cut flower interests was disbanded and in its place a new committee of 15 members was appointed, to be known as the committee of commercial forcing rose interests. It will have charge of the commercial interests of both the pot plant growers of forcing roses and the cut flower interests and to represent the society in matters pertaining to either of these important branches of the industry. The following were appointed to this committee: For three years from January 1, 1922—Charles H. Totty, Frank H. Traendly, Thomas Roland, Jos. H. Hill, E. J. Fancourt. For two years from January 1, 1922—Harry O. May, Alex. Montgomery, Jr., James Heacock, Wm. Duckham, Wallace R. Pierson. For one year from January 1, 1922—Frank Stuppy, F. R. Pierson, W. J. Keimel, Robert Simpson, F. L. Atkins. A meeting of this committee has been called to meet in Hartford in conjunction with the American Carnation Society Convention, Thursday afternoon, January 26.

PORTLAND PILGRIMAGE POSTPONED.

S. S. Pennock reported the progress of the committee on the Portland pilgrimage and the various routes and prices were discussed. He said that preparations had reached an advanced state when it was learned that the American Bankers' Association, the Rotarians and the Shriners were all planning trips to the Pacific Coast this June. It was felt that these three large pilgrimages would secure the best cars and accommodations and would so attract public attention, that the comparatively small American Rose Society pilgrimage would be completely overshadowed. It was decided that for these reasons the pilgrimage to Portland be postponed until June, 1923. It is a great disappointment that this trip had to be postponed but it is hoped that there will be enough people desiring to make the trip in 1923 to warrant the use of the special train.

J. Horace McFarland reported that Frederick Law Olmsted had prepared a plan for a rose show garden in Potomac Park, Washington, D. C., and said that with Mr. Olmsted he had visited Congressman Mann, and had received a very favorable reception. The cost estimated by Mr. Olmsted was about $1 per square foot, or a total of $200,000. The editor reported that the 1922 annual would be published about March 1. He said that the members had been more helpful than ever in supplying material and that he felt that it would be more interesting than ever.

President Pyle was reappointed the society representative on the board of the Society of American Florists. After a long discussion of the method of nominating and electing officers a committee was appointed to consider the advisability of changing the method of nomination.

JOHN C. WISTER, Sec'y.

National Flower Growers' Association.

SECRETARY AMMANN'S REPORT.

This is the second annual meeting of our association and I want to briefly touch upon a few of the accomplishments to date.

We now have a total of 384 members. These represent ownership of approximately 20 million square feet of glass. I think we can well congratulate ourselves on the progress made in so short a space of time. Five of our district organizations are doing a great deal of good towards advancing the interests of the producer. Many growers that are not yet members of our organization have been greatly helped by its activity and accomplishments.

One of the great benefits has been the educational propaganda on the necessity of the grower becoming an advertiser. In many communities the growers are responding well and manifesting a lot of interest in this great movement. Then, too, much constructive work is going on in the matter of bettering our business conditions. The producing of better stock and economics in the productive work along all lines are being brought about by the open discussions at our district meetings. However, this all only means that our work has just begun, and it behooves all of us to keep plugging away.

This work is yet new, the organization still young, and it is only with the best efforts put forth that we will eventually succeed to the goal we long to reach. On our way, we, no doubt, will find the road rough in places, and we will even find it obstructed at times, compelling us to detour. But let us keep on going, even if we occasionally have to stop to pick up some weak brother along the road, who is about to give up the fight. We must sacrifice both time and money, of course, but let us remember that every great reform or movement has had to pay a similar price.

One of the important matters up for consideration at this meeting is the revision of the constitution and by-laws. These revisions, as proposed, will greatly reduce the cost to members in the way of dues and assessments. After careful consideration and a great deal of discussion the officers are submitting this proposed change with a view of materially increasing the membership in the coming year. Let us hope this will be the case. Consider wisely all these changes and remember that this work when finally adopted will be another addition to our already well-built structure.

THE S. A. F.

Additional Directors.

Through an oversight, the names of George Asmus, Chicago, chairman of the National Flower Show Committee, and Henry Penn, Boston, Mass., Chairman of the Publicity Committee, were omitted from the published list of the executive board of the society. These directors, of course, take their seats on the board as directed by the by-laws. George W. Jacobs, Canton, Ill., vice-president of the Illinois State Florists' Association, is appointed a director by affiliation, in lieu of the president of that association, Joseph Kohout, who already has a seat on the board as president of the Chicago Florists' Club.

Membership Drive.

The secretary issued, at the opening of the year, an appeal to all members to endeavor to bring in at least one new member each. There is no doubt but that, with the cordial relations usually existing between the florists of a community, a good word for the society would be sufficient to bring in many who have not yet bothered themselves with any thought of membership. The life members of the society did not receive the notice referred to, but it is hoped that they, too, will co-operate in the movement, and do what they can to bring in new members. The society is strong today, we all know, but it has not the strength it should have, in view of the 20,000 or more who are making their living from our industry.

National Publicity Campaign.

If anyone ever had a doubt as to the value of our slogan, "Say It With Flowers," a glance at a few recent numbers of Printers' Ink, the organ of the advertising fraternity, would dispel it quickly. The slogan seems to be of such importance that the authorship of it is challenged, and a controversy is now being exploited in the weekly pages of the publication mentioned. From the correspondence published the impression is formed that the source of inception of the slogan is immaterial, and that credit for its establishment should go to the one who put it to good use, and put it over. The claims set forth in some of the letters published are amusing, and in the light of facts easily refuted. Meanwhile our cause is not suffering through the publicity resulting from the controversy.

Fifth National Flower Show.

There is nothing new to be reported in the development of the Cleveland preparations for the show. Herman P. Knoble, chairman of the local executive committee, is positive that the new auditorium will be ready at the appointed time. A local condition which has arisen in regard to the propriety of opening the building until it has been actually turned over as complete in building and appointments, seems to have occasioned some concern, but Mr. Knoble says no one need be alarmed about it.

A large supply of posterettes, or stickers, for use on stationery and in other ways is now available for all who will use them. Application for these should be made to L. E. Vinson, secretary of the local executive committee, 370 Lenox building, Cleveland, O., stating the quantity desired. There is, of course, no charge for them.

Reservations of space in the trade section of the exhibition are mounting up, and the outlook is that there will be little if any space left after the opening of the show. Prospective exhibitors should remember that this is an eight day show, and that it will not only be visited by florists from all over the country, but by throngs from the public who are interested in everything to be seen. The rate for space, $1.75 per square foot, includes everything necessary for the staging of a handsome exhibit, with an effect harmonious with the general ensemble of the show.

SCARCITY OF STOCK NOTED.

There has been a decided change in market conditions here during the past week. Stock of every description has become very scarce with a sharp advance in prices all along the line. Roses are decidedly short in supply and in all probability will continue so for some time to come. The long cold spell since the first of the year is the chief cause of the present shortage. What few roses are to be had are of excellent quality, Mrs. Charles Russell, Premier, and Columbia being especially fine. Red roses are in good demand with not enough fancy stock to supply the demand. Butterfly and Ophelia, while not as scarce as the foregoing, have also shared in the advance. Very few short roses are obtainable and clean up quickly at $8 per 100. Few, if any, Cecile Brunner is to be had. There is an excellent call for carnations of every color and growers have put the prices above those asked at Christmas. This flower is now at its best, Laddie being particularly fine. There is still quite a cut of small late chrysanthemums arriving from the Chinese growers. Owing to the scarcity of other flowers they find a ready market. The cold frosty nights are holding back the violet crop to quite an extent. The arrivals are of excellent quality and are quickly sold. The wholesalers are large buyers of this flower for the shipping trade. The first Lilium giganteum has put in appearance and brings good prices. Most of the stock is somewhat short stemmed as yet. The orchid season is now at its height and a generous supply is coming in. The quality is very good and growers promise an adequate supply for the next six weeks. Cypripediums are also noted more frequently of late. Lily of the valley continues in ample supply but with no change in price. The call for it is very good. Gardenias are still on the short side with prices high. Winter flowering sweet peas have begun to arrive and meet with a ready sale. Pink and lavender appear to be the only colors obtainable. The supply of bulbous stock is increasing daily and is very acceptable in these days of short supply. Freeseas are quite plentiful both white and colored kinds. The cut of narcissus is showing a healthy increase and this stock is in great favor with buyers. Dutch hyacinths are to be seen everywhere, both pot grown and cut stock. Pot tulips, the first of the season, are also obtainable. Anemones are to be had in limited quantities. Paper White narcissi move well at good prices. The Santa Cruz bulb growing district is supplying a good part of the cut supply of bulbous stock. Ferns are again plentiful and reasonable. The supply of asparagus is just about equal to the demand. Poinsettias, in pots, are practically out of the market and azaleas are getting scarce also. There is a fine lot of cyclamens to be had in all colors and sizes. Ericas are in good supply and sell readily. Primulas and begonias about complete the list of flowering stock. There is a fine demand for Boston ferns. Large stocks of red berries are still being offered.

NOTES.

Percy Ellings, superintendent of the John Carbone orchid range at Berkeley, was painfully injured during the hurricane on Christmas morning when the smoke stack crashed through the roof of the boiler room. He received a severe scalp wound. He was rushed to a local hospital and his friends will be glad to learn he is rapidly recovering.

The Pacific Coast Horticultural Society held its regular monthly meeting January 7. There was a large attendance and several new members were admitted.

The bulb growers in the vicinity of San Leandro and San Lorenzo in Alameda county report that the narcissus crop is in splendid shape and that cutting will begin shortly. The acreage has been increased considerably since last season and this year's crop promises to be heavy.

Domato Bros. are forcing several houses of Lilium giganteum for Easter.

B. M. Joseph had a beautiful orchid display in his windows last week. Stumps of trees were arranged to represent orchids in their native habitat and were very cleverly arranged.

The directors and stockholders of the Wholesale Co-operative Flower market held their first annual meeting January 19 to elect officers to serve during the coming year. Other important matters regarding the future policy of the market were also discussed.

A large delegation of florists attended the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce last week. Angelo J. Rossi was appointed on the citizens' committee to arrange for the Shriners' convention in June, as the representative of the Retail Florists' Association.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. has a large force of men at work in their nursery department baling and shipping trees and shrubs. The greenhouses are looking excellent and a large stock of Easter plants will be available for that day.

The committee in charge of the autumn flower show held a meeting January 10. It was voted to refund the guarantee fund to the directors who subscribed the amount. At the next meeting it is expected that a final report will be presented.

Albert O. Stein's store force has been kept very busy since the holidays on decorations. Mr. Stein's handsome shop is filled with flowering and decorative plants, every one being a fine specimen.

Edward Schweien's greenhouses are producing a heavy crop of ferns, cut adiantums and bulbous stock this season and is now sending in very good hyacinths and tulips.

The Star Dahlia Gardens have embarked extensively in the growing of the finer varieties of gladioli. This firm has worked up large stocks of the new gladioli which will be quite a factor in this season's supply.

Frank D. Pelicano who grows Erica melanthera extensively is now cutting a fine crop of this flower.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

The dinner meeting at the Brunswick Hotel of the Lancaster County Florists' Association, Lancaster, Pa., January 19, the dinner. Mine host McConomey made went and a partial success in respect to was a success as far as the meeting a slip somewhere and the dinner feature was a disappointment, soon forgotten when the speaker of the evening was announced.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Harry K. Rohrer, president; Jack F. Moore, vice-president; Albert M. Herr, secretary and Lemon Landis, treasurer. President Rohrer in accepting the office, in a few appropriate remarks, thanked the members for the honor and asked their co-operation by attending the meetings. He appointed the following committees: Programme—B. F. Barr, M. J. Brinton, Elmer J. Weaver, Ira H. Landis and Mrs. Albert M. Herr; visiting—A. K. Rohrer, Lemon Landis, J. Ralph Hess, J. Wade Galey, Fred Spinner and Chas. B. Herr; automobile—Jack F. Moore, Lloyd Weaver, Phares Hostetter, Rudolph Nagle, Herman Ruoff, Jarvis Goldbach; novelties—Elmer J. Weaver, Ira H. Landis, D. Irwin Herr, Miss May Breneman; membership—A. F. Strickler, Chas. B. Herr, Rudolph Nagle, B. F.

Barr, Edward Rohrer, Frank Suter, J. De Barre Heinitsch, Mrs. Lemon Landis, Mrs. B. F. Barr, Mrs. Ira H. Landis, Mrs. Ida Goldbach, Mrs. Jack F. Moore, Mrs. Fred Ritchy, Mrs. Ralph Hess; reception—Mrs. B. F. Barr, Mrs. Albert M. Herr, Mrs. J. Rutter Hess, Mrs. M. J. Brinton, Mrs. A. F. Strickler, Mrs. E. P. Hostetter, Mrs. A. D. Rohrer, Mrs. Lemon Landis, Mrs. Ira H. Landis, Mrs. J. Wade Galey, Miss Cora Weaver.

President Rohrer created a new committee for the purpose of reporting any new publications and articles in horticultural papers that would prove of interest to the club, the following being appointed to serve: Albert M. Herr, Walter Markley, Elmer J. Weaver.

ARTHUR NIESSEN'S ADDRESS.

Arthur Neissen, of Philadelphia, Pa., was then called upon as the speaker for the evening and gave a very instructive and inspiring talk about the florist business in general and the relationship between the retailer, grower and wholesaler. Mr. Neissen carried a little hammer with him on this trip and tried to knock some of the rough edges off the trade. Starting with the retailers he told them they should be more willing to help the grower by selling at a reduced figure when there is a glut on the market and flowers are sold wholesale for less than the cost of production and often not sold at all, representing a dead loss to the grower. On the other hand when flowers are very scarce and prices are high they should be willing to take a smaller profit per flower, the same as the grower does in times of plenty.

To the growers he gave the advice to try and produce more flowers during the winter months and less in the spring and autumn and to grow them well, finding out what can be produced best and concentrating on that particular item.

To the senator from Scranton, T. J. Nolan, Mr. Neissen advised him to sell fewer greenhouses to men who do not produce good stock and more to those who do. It is a loss to the business that Mr. Neissen's talk was not taken down in shorthand and given to the trade in general. It was full of truths we all need to keep in mind, for in the end truth will prevail.

Ed. Reid, also of Philadelphia, supplemented Mr. Neissen's remarks with some equally good advice, some convincing illustrations of bad business and good business and a few of his characteristic straight blows from the shoulder. Taken all in all this was the most animated meeting the club has had the good fortune to have for many months.

President Rohrer called the attention of the members to the meeting in Hartford, Conn., but of those present none expected to go excepting the secretary and he was not certain on account of the illness of his father.

The tables were beautifully decorated with some of President Rohrer's Primula malacoides, which we consider the best strain in the world and the finest finished plant in the United States. After an enjoyable social time the meeting adjourned.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY.

Ivar Ringdahl, of Rome, N. Y., premier grower of pot plants, lectured on "The Culture of Christmas and Easter Plants," before the regular students, January 17, and repeated the lecture at 2 p. m., for the benefit of the short course students. Mr. Ringdahl has had a vast amount of experience; not only in this country, but also abroad. Before entering into business he was for 14 years in charge of the pot plant department of Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass., and it was while there that the plants he grew for the flower shows received nation-wide attention. Although he has been in New York only about three years he has already worked up a splendid market for his products.

Mr. Ringdahl presented his subject in a clear, concise manner, answering numerous questions, during and after the lecture. The policy of the department of floriculture is to bring commercial men to the college from time to time, so as to give the student actual contact with the leaders in the profession.

On Monday evening, January 16, Alex. Lurie, a Cornell graduate, and at present store manager for the Bool Floral Co., addressed the Cornell Florists' Club on "The Organization of a Retail Flower Store." His talk was extremely interesting and instructive. After the lecture, Mr. Lurie gave a demonstration in flower arrangement, bringing out some of the various methods employed by designers in different sections of the country.

CARNATIONS SELL WELL.

Market conditions the past week were very good. A great shortage of roses created a brisk demand for carnations, which not being in oversupply, held their own as to prices, with the possible exception of poor reds. Sweet peas, stevias and bulbous stock are coming in more heavily and help to give variety. Funeral work was exceptionally brisk during that period. Good calendars are realizing a better price, and the call for them is brisk.

NOTES.

The news just leaked out that our friend, Wm. C. Zimmermann, the progressive retail florist at Fifth street and Grand avenue, was married January 4. Even with particulars lacking, they have our best wishes for a "flowery" future.

The new flower store of R. Preuss & Sons, Twenty-sixth street and Lisbon avenue is expected to open January 28. Unforeseen delays caused a five weeks' postponement.

The regular Florists' Club meeting will be held February 2 and the new president hopes the attendance will be as great as at the January meeting.

SHORTAGE OF STOCK STILL NOTICEABLE.

There were no new developments in the market this week in regard to local business. The stock coming in is offered to the trade which is buying very cautiously and in small quantities. The independent air of the salesmen show that they must have an outlet for a part or all of the amount they are receiving from out-of-town points, as they will not come down in price. Carnations at present are more in demand than roses and the abnormally high prices of the latter the last few weeks has reacted on the market, for the shops will buy only what they absolutely need. When other cities are obtaining enough stock locally, and cease purchasing here prices will be where the average person can buy flowers, other than for funerals. Sweet peas and violets are selling well now, although they are still high in price. Orchids, gardenias and other stock are not meeting any great call and usually carry over from one day to another.

The Gardeners and Florists' Club held ladies' night at Horticultural hall, January 24.

Israel Leibman, the Winter street florist, has sold his business to M. Marksman, the new owner taking possession February 1.

OBITUARY.

J. George Bayer.

With the death of J. George Bayer, January 9, Toledo, O., lost one of her most respected pioneers and the Florists' Club one of its most devoted and honored members. Death followed a week's illness, which began with a cold that later developed into pneumonia. He was very hale and hearty up to the time of his illness, having had practically no sickness during his long and useful life. His death came as an entirely unexpected shock to his family and to the members of the trade here among whom he was universally beloved and respected as a leader.

J. George Bayer was born in Toledo, O., January 22, 1854, and grew up with the city. At the early age of 21 he gave up a growing contracting business, in which he was associated with his father, and began his successful career in the growing of vegetables and flowers at that time. He started out with the old fashioned hot beds, but very soon erected greenhouses. He was one of the first to build greenhouses in this section. He made a specialty of growing a few crops, combining vegetables and cut flowers. A crop rotation which he has maintained in his plant for more than 15 years has been chrysanthemums, lettuce, tomatoes and sweet peas. Major Bonnaffon chrysanthemums were his favorites, and to these he devoted such care and rare ability until Bayer's Bonnaffons became a name in his locality and nationally, synonymous with superb excellence. His success with these can be traced to a trait that was characteristic of the man, thoroughness and persistency. Whatever he tackled, he pursued until brought to successful completion.

Mr. Bayer was formerly a member of the Toledo city council and took a great interest in the city's progress and welfare. He was one of the founders of the Toledo Florists' Club, serving as president for several terms, and was an advocate of organization and every movement of the club that was for its benefit found him heart and soul engaged in co-operation. He was also a member of the Society of American Florists and of the Toledo Vegetable Growers' Association, as well as the national association.

The business will be continued under the firm name of George Bayer & Son, by his son, Edward I. Bayer, who has been associated with his father as a partner since 1910. Mr. Bayer is survived by his widow, the son just mentioned, and two daughters.

A. C. K.

Melvin S. Griffith.

Melvin S. Griffith, president of the Griffith & Turner Co., Baltimore, Md., died at his home in Catonsville, a suburb of that city, January 11, of heart trouble. Mr. Griffith was apparently in the best of health when he returned from his office on the evening of January 10. At about 11:30 o'clock he complained of pains about his heart and shortness of breath and passed away shortly after the physician arrived.

Mr. Griffith was born in Baltimore County, Maryland, his father being the late John M. Griffith and founder of the Griffith & Turner Co., seed and implement dealers. The son early associated himself with the firm and was its active head for many years and was well and favorably known in the trade. Mr. Griffith was a member of the Florists' Club of Baltimore, Old Colony Club, Rotary Club and the Trinity Protestant Episcopal church, of Ten Hills, Md.

The sympathy of the trade goes out to his family in their irreparable loss. His widow, Mrs. Sue Watson Griffith, a son Melvin, Jr., and a daughter, Miss Lewellyn surviving him.

Otto B. Robold.

Otto B. Robold, of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Pa., died at his home in that city, January 13, aged 58 years, from a relapse following an operation performed for kidney trouble in July, 1921. For over 30 years he had been the traveling representative for the Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, and his passing away will stand out most prominently in the records that city can produce for men of ambition and energy. Mr. Robold was an untiring worker, faithful to his trust and loyal to his friends and employers.

The funeral services were held from the late home, 16 East Gravers lane, Chestnut Hill. Besides his widow, Mr. Robold is survived by four grown children.

Hollis H. Hunnewell.

Hollis H. Hunnewell, proprietor of the Hill Crest estate, Wellesley, Mass., died at his home in New York, of Bright's disease, January 24, age 53 years. He was the son and namesake of the man who made the gardens of Hill Crest estate famous. Mr. Hunnewell was a well known sportsman.

His widow, two daughters and a son, H. H. Hunnewell, Jr., survive him.

A. F. F.

J. B. Hay.

J. B. Hay, for 50 years, a seedsman and florist at Brantford, Ont., died January 10, age 84 years. A son, Chas. T. and a daughter, Miss Agnes Hay, both of Hamilton, Ont., survive him.

RICHMOND, IND.—Recent visitors included Frank X. Stuppy and Dr. B. W. Murphy, of the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., with their wives, also Paul Weiss, Chicago.

TORONTO, ONT.—The Princess Florist, bankrupts, made an authorized assignment to Keenan, Walker & Co., accountants, auditors and trustees, 410 McKinnon building, this city, January 9.

RUTHVEN, ONT.—Robt. Gustin & Sons are planning to build greenhouses, at an early date, to cost $5,000. Walter Scott and Bruce Fox, of this city, are also contemplating the erection of new houses in the near future.

MCALISTER, OKLA.—Wm. Weaver says the holiday business was good, especially the demand for plants, but, he adds, too much hangs over on the books. Personally, he is not afraid of hard times, but they require more work and less profit to even things.

STAMFORD, CONN.—The Stamford Horticultural Society elected the following officers for 1922 at its January meeting: Henry Wilde, president; J. Rutherford, vice-president; A. Pedersen, treasurer; T. F. Chrystal, corresponding secretary and O. A. Hunwick, Greenwich, Conn., secretary.

LINCOLN, NEB.—The C. H. Frey Floral Co. is the name of a new firm, recently established here, which is a result of the consolidation of the Enslow Floral Co., and C. H. Frey, Florist. CINCINNATI wants the next convention of the American Carnation Society.

CHAIRMAN GEORGE ASMUS of the National Flower Show committee, and Secretary John Young, who were in Cleveland this week, say arrangements for the big exhibition, March 25-April 1, are progressing satisfactorily.

Personal.

John P. Cleary, of the Fruit Auction Co., New York, was in Chicago this week, attending the convention of the Fruit and Vegetable Shipping Association. Mr. Cleary had a hearty greeting from the many friends, who recall his compelling eloquence on the horticultural rostrum.

F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., passed the sixty-seventh milestone this week, apparently still an exotic in the Rip Van Winkle country, judging from his well maintained energy and activity.

Samuel Murray, Kansas City, Mo., vice-president of the Society of American Florists, entertained Sir Harry and Lady Lauder, on the occasion of their

A THRIFTY Dutch bulb salesman pleads for trial orders to celebrate his birthday, and reports show that this event travels with him from place to place.

Fifth National Flower Show.

CLEVELAND, O., MARCH 25-APRIL 1.

President S. S. Pennock, Secretary John Young and Geo. Asmus, chairman of the National Flower Show Committee, met in this city, January 22 with the chairmen of the Cleveland Committees of the National Flower Show, in order to secure a preliminary report to take with them to Hartford, Conn., at the meeting of the committee there, January 26.

Reports given by the various chairmen as to the progress made during the last month were quite satisfactory. The publicity committee reports that they have arranged for the use of 132 billboards for Cleveland and vicinity, advertising the show during the entire month of March. The National Flower Show Committee has issued a very attractive poster stamp for distribution among retailers and supply men, for pasting on all outgoing mail, letters, catalogues, etc. Requests have come in for more than 100,000 of these attractive stamps. The committee will be glad to supply them in any quantity to any one interested, who will write to the Cleveland office, 368 Lennox building.

Robert Brydon, chairman of the aquarium committee, held a meeting January 21, of his committee and has expressed the opinion that there will be over 100 exhibits of rare fish by fanciers and breeders all over the country; that they are working hard with the local Aquarium Society to make this part of the exhibition one of the most interesting and unusual that has ever been held. Promises of rare fish from the waters of India, Japan, China, South America, Mexico and the Philippines have come in to date. There will also be innumerable kinds of gold fish on exhibition in this department.

Letters have been received from a number of Chambers of Commerce, in Arizona, promising an exhibit of rare plants and flowers from the deserts of that state.

Secretary Pochelon, Detroit, Mich., of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association and Michael Bloy were in Cleveland, January 23, in conference with A. D. Taylor, chairman of the decorating committee, arranging for the construction of a temple of flora, as a big feature exhibit illustrative of the work of that association.

L. C. VINSON, Sec'y.

Japanese Beetle.

The federal horticultural board quarantine against the Japanese beetle (Popillia japonica Newm.), a notice of which appeared in our issue of December 17, 1921, page 1080, became effective January 1.

Two classes of quarantined areas have been established, depending upon whether they are lightly or heavily infested. In New Jersey the former includes Florence, Springfield, Easthampton, Medford and Southampton townships, in Burlington County; Gloucester, Voorhees, Clementon and Berlin townships, in Camden county, and West Deptford and Deptford townships, in Gloucester county. The heavily infested areas in that state embrace Palmyra, Cinnaminson, Delran, Riverside, Chester, Mount Laurel, Northampton, Evesham, Lumberton, Westhampton, Burlington, Willingboro and Beverly townships, in Burlington county; Pensauken, Delaware, Haddon and Center townships; city of Camden and the borough of Magnolia, in Camden county. The lightly quarantined areas in Pennsylvania are Cheltenham, Abington, and Moreland townships, in Montgomery county; Southampton and Middletown townships, in Bucks county, and Wards 33 and 42, of the city of Philadelphia, in Philadelphia county. Heavily infested regions in the same state are: Bensalem and Bristol townships, in Bucks county and Wards 23, 35, 41 and 45, of the city of Philadelphia. Regulations governing the shipment of plants are established for each class of territory, with the state governments co-operating in their enforcement.

The order provides that garden, orchard and farm products of all kinds; nursery, ornamental and greenhouse stock and all other plants; soil, compost, and manure, other than fresh manure, shall not be moved interstate from any of the infested areas of the two states, in any manner or method or under conditions, other than those prescribed under the rules and regulations of Quarantine No. 48, as amended.

Cottage Gardens Nurseries.

A well informed correspondent writes as follows: "All of the real estate belonging to the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, Calif., was foreclosed under a mortgage and the equity of redemption has gone by. The last foreclosure was of its property on which is grown the shrubs and plants, and that was consummated about a year ago. The only thing the concern has left is the shrubs and plants which are in the hands of a receiver. The assets and credits are not obtainable at this time, but the receiver says that very shortly he will issue a statement. Payment of the claims looks very doubtful."

She Stoops to Conquer.

A. Lange, Chicago, commenting on "Lauder's Love of Flowers," to which reference was made in last week's issue, said many other notable men and women have peculiar notions regarding flowers and their uses. When he was on State street many years ago, a well known theatrical celebrity, then struggling to get hold of the first rung on the ladder of fame, came to the store and ordered flowers sent nightly to the theater, where she was engaged in a minor part.

Window Glass Prices Reduced.

Pittsburgh, January 19.—The American Window Glass Company announces a reduction in prices amounting to 25 per cent in the price of common window glass. In April, last year, a reduction of 22 per cent was made in prices. The company is operating 60 per cent of capacity.

Primula Obconica Suit.

Janitan & Kunan, Cambridge, Mass., defendants in a suit for damages, amounting to $15,000 and brought by a lady alleged to have been poisoned by a Primula obconica plant purchased from the firm, were held not to be responsible, the court recently dismissing the suit.

Birds Must Sing or Talk.

In the Maxwell street court, Chicago, Morris Blaz, was recently fined $50 and costs for selling a canary that wouldn't sing and a parrot that wouldn't talk, having guaranteed they would do so. Judge John A. Bugee said it was obtaining money under false pretenses.

FAIR DEMAND FOR MOST STOCK.

Funeral work has been especially active and since that is the backbone of the trade usually, the demand is good. Party decorations are not very numerous. The demand is running largely toward loose flowers and corsages; outside of funeral pieces. Roses, carnations, violets and sweet peas are the most popular flowers in the market, Sunburst, Premier, Columbia and Butterfly leading in roses and are rather scarce, selling from $4 to $10 per dozen. Carnations are of excellent quality and sell from $2.75 to $3.25 per dozen. There is a good call for violets and sweet peas. Narcissi are getting scarce and the season is waning. There is a fair demand and supply of freesias. Easter lilies of the storage variety are expected to be on the market soon. Active preparations are being made for St. Valentine's Day and indications point to a good demand. The business being booked now is about one-half of that at Christmas.

FLOWER GROWERS' AND DEALERS' ASS'N.

The regular meeting of the Flower Growers' and Dealers' Association was held at Helm Bros., January 17. The attendance was about 20, showing increasing interest in the affairs of the association. The principal subject discussed was that of an advertising campaign for the six or seven days preceding St. Valentine's Day. A subscription was taken up among the members amounting to $350, which will be spent on a co-operative advertising campaign calling attention to the giving of flowers for St. Valentine's Day. A subscription for the advertising campaign of the Society of American Florists was also collected and a nice sum was realized. Owing to the fact that many business matters came up the usual rule of having a set speech was not carried out. It is planned however to have a subject discussed at every meeting and in addition matters of credit will be taken up. The next meeting will be held at the floral establishment of S. F. Stephens & Son.

Burpee's Asters

The Burpee Beauty Asters are of inestimable value for cut flowers. The individual blooms measure 4 to 6 inches across and are carried on long strong stems. This distinct type of Asters was first introduced by Burpee. They bloom after the Late Branching Asters have finished blooming and before the early Chrysanthemums have come into the market. The early kinds come into bloom almost as soon as the Royal Asters and produce flowers for a long time.

This variety as we have predicted ever since its introduction, is rapidly taking the first place as the most popular brilliant pillar or Climbing Rose.

Mr. S. S. Pennock in his recent address before the Philadelphia Florists' Club in speaking of the wonderful Bagatelle Rose Gardens at Paris, France, referred to this rose as the most brilliant in color and a subject that could be seen from all points in the garden, still in splendid shape after other Climbers had passed.

It is truly a wonderful rose and will find a place in every garden.

The price of $50.00 per 100 is special and will only hold good on orders booked on or before February fourth and for immediate delivery.

STOCK IS A TRIFLE MORE PLENTIFUL.

Stock is a trifle more plentiful at this writing than it has been for several weeks but roses are still on the short side and command good prices. Carnations appear to be in larger supply and have dropped somewhat in price the past week. There is plenty of lily of the valley to go around and the supply of orchids is equal to the demand. Jonquils are holding their own. Freesias are in good supply and the colored varieties are now included in the offerings. Tulips are to be had in fair sized quantities. Mignonette, stevia, snapdragons, calendulas and daisies are arriving in fair supply. Sweet peas are seen in fair sized quantities at some of the stores but are moving nicely and clean up daily. Callas are more plentiful and there appears to be more lilies around. Single and double violets are in good supply. Paper White narcissus are not as plentiful as they have been. Pansies are to be had. Heather and pussy willows are also obtainable. Business was fair last week and the supply of stock was just about equal to the demand with the exception of one or two items. Roses appear to be gradually increasing in supply and while there is no great surplus at this writing the wholesalers are finding it easier to fill orders. St. Valentine's Day is next on the programme and while stock in general promises to be in good supply it is advisable to place all orders well in advance.

FOLEY GREENHOUSE MFG. CO. FIRE.

Newspaper reports relative to the loss by fire, sustained by the Foley Manufacturing Co., January 20, which gave the impression that the damage was complete and almost irreparable, should be greatly discounted. The two vaults of the company, containing the standard drawings, records and correspondence were not destroyed. The fire loss in the warehouse was very slight and only a small portion of the firm's lumber yard was damaged. The shipping facilities remain unimpaired and a temporary office is being installed in the warehouse. Within a short time the company will have a temporary factory in operation, where it will be able to handle orders in a thoroughly satisfactory manner during the restoration of the main plant.

NOTES.

The Florists' Club will hold its annual novelty show at the Hotel Randolph, Thursday evening, February 9, at 8 o'clock. Growers having new roses, carnations or other items of interest are cordially invited to exhibit and are requested to send all shipments, express prepaid, to arrive not later than 8 o'clock to Chicago Florists' Club, c/o Hotel Randolph, 175 West Randolph street, Chicago.

Fred Lautenschlager of Kroeschell Bros. Co., has been obliged on account of sickness to cancel a four-week business trip including a stopover at the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society, at Hartford, Conn., January 25-27.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is now operating its new White truck which will be used for local deliveries and special trips to the depots. The truck carries the slogan, "Say It With Flowers" in addition to the firm name in good-sized letters.

Frank X. Stuppy and Dr. B. W. Murphy, of the Stuppy Floral Co., and their wives, spent the day here, January 20, enroute to the east, where they expect to attend the American Carnation Society's Convention at Hartford, Conn.

Wietor Bros. have several benches of young Columbia rose plants ready for delivery. The demand for carnation and chrysanthemum stock is strong and every mail brings in new orders.

The J. A. Budlong Co. is taking good care of their customers during the shortage of roses and other stock. This firm's shipping business is exceptionally good and constantly increasing.

A. L. Vaughn & Co. are enjoying a splendid shipping trade and have their share of the city business. Tulips, jonquils and other bulb flowers are in good supply here.

Bassett & Washburn are still cutting heavily in roses and are taking care of all their regular customers, besides many others during the present shortage.

Arthur Weatherwax arranged a big bank decoration in the loop for W. J. Smyth, January 25.

Ed. Jacob of the A. L. Randall Co., has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his father whose death occurred this week.

Peter Reinberg, Inc., reports a good demand for rooted carnation cuttings, which are being marketed for the accommodation of their growers.

Kennicott Bros. Co. is moving a splendid supply of American Beauty roses in addition to a full line of all other stock.

Zech & Mann are handling a good supply of bulbous stock in addition to their regular line of cut flowers.

Leo Wietor, eldest son of N. J. Wietor, is planning on making a trip to Los Angeles, Calif., next week.

Mrs. Peter Reinberg and Mrs. Henry Zender and daughter are visiting relatives at Ocean Park, Calif.

The Joseph Foerster Co. is supplying its trade with choice stock in all lines, especially Premier roses.

E. M. Lambert is opening a new retail store at 8 South Dearborn street.

Frank Jarel of the Zech & Mann force was on the sick list this week.

A. Lange and wife have returned from Mt. Clemens, Mich.

STOCK PLENTIFUL EXCEPT ROSES.

With the exception of roses, the supply of seasonable stock was equal to the demand the past week, there being no over supply and no stock had to be carried over. Many of the retail shops, however, are complaining, for with the exception of funeral work, there was very little business. American Beauty roses are still conspicuous by their absence on the local market, which is probably for the best, as inquiries for them are few and far between. The supply of roses has not increased to any extent and it is still impossible for the wholesale houses to begin to fill any orders complete. It is simply a case of divide up the cut each day among the regular buyers. Carnations are on the increase and the growers say that with a few bright days the offerings will be all the market can absorb. Lilies are still good property and clean up daily at good prices. Paper White narcissi are still in heavy supply, but are bringing better returns than at any time this season. Jonquils and tulips have taken their place on the list and are moving nicely. Freesia is another new arrival and is proving popular, while snapdragons cleaned up on sight. The finest sweet peas seen in years are coming in, but the quantity is limited. The call for orchids, lily of the valley and violets is limited, as these are used mostly in corsage work and there does not seem to be as many corsages worn this season as in former years. Baby primrose, yellow daisies, calendulas and pussy willow complete the list and each fills its own space in the retail shops.

RETAIL FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

All you florists who are members of the Retail Florists' Association, and those of you who are not but are in the territory covered by the association, remember that the next meeting is the first Thursday in February; the place—Hotel Chatham and the time—6:30 p. m. The attendance at the meetings has been poor and you are needed if the association is going to be a success. There is business to be taken up at this meeting that vitally concerns you, as the association is going to decide how it will spend your money and how much you are to be assessed for advertising, so that it is up to you to be at this meeting and help to decide what is to be done. If things are not done the way you think they should be and you are not there to have your say, you have only yourself to blame, so all turn out and make this the most successful meeting we have ever had.

NOTES.

Some complaints have been heard in regard to the high prices demanded by the growers, but who can blame them as it is the old story of supply and demand, and when the call does not use up the supply and stock accumulates, there is no bottom to it and the returns to the grower are not sufficient to let him break even, so that if he did not get the price when flowers are scarce and on special days, he would soon be on the rocks and ready to quit, and you retailers who own glass of your own know what it costs to operate a greenhouse these days.

E. J. McCallum, of the McCallum Co., is on a visit to the company's branches at Cleveland, O., and Detroit, Mich. While in Cleveland he attended a banquet given by the Cleveland Florists' Club. Henry Blend, one of the McCallum salesmen, also attended the banquet.

The A. W. Smith Flower Stores Co. have closed their Beaver Falls shop and hereafter their business there will be handled through their main store. They report business as good, having handled several large decorations the past week.

Wm. Wampler, manager of the cut flower department of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., has resigned his position, and Edw. Ashcroft who has been with the company for years, will take the position.

Edward Blind, of the Blind Floral Co., and George C. McCallum and John C. Walley of the McCallum Co., are among those who will attend the Hartford Show from this district, January 25-27.

This city honored the W. & J. football team January 21 by a banquet at the Wm. Penn hotel, the decoration for which was handled by Thos. Silverblatt, the hotel florist.

E. C. T.

Cincinnati, O.

FAIR BUSINESS REPORTED.

Business the past week was only fair. The supply is unusually short but the call is not great enough to cause any trouble. The trade is trying to remember when business was as dull in January as it is this year. Roses are very scarce and not the best that can be grown. They range in price from 12 to 35 cents. Bulbous stock is arriving in larger shipments, including freesia, both Purity and Rainbow, Paper White narcissi, daffodils and Dutch hyacinths. The last mentioned are in great demand because of their good quality and fair price. Carnations are the most plentiful of all the flowers. Lilies, both Calla and Easter, find a good market, but are very scarce. Calendulas have become quite popular and move readily, and are arriving in larger shipments, and are seen in excellent condition. Sweet peas show the effects of the sunshine and this is very welcome, for they have been quite scarce. Lily of the valley, violets, primulas and Roman hyacinths can only be obtained occasionally for not many of the local growers have them. Green goods move well.

NOTES.

There is a rumor out about starting an exclusive florists' bowling league here, and possibly by the next writing matters may materialize to such an extent that we can have it in reality and not just a dream.

VICK QUALITY ASTERS

A FEW GLIMPSES OF ASTERS GROWING FOR SEED ON VICK SEED FARMS
SUMMER OF 1921

Some Reasons Why VICK QUALITY ASTER SEED Is the Recognized Standard Everywhere

At the extreme left of the field on the Curtis farm shown on the above picture, grew an acre of specialties consisting of new varieties and improved strains of present varieties from which wonderful possibilities are expected as soon as type is fixed. This plot and two others on Orchard Farm and Highland Farm contained over six hundred different, carefully corded strains in course of development, the history of each of which we keep through several generations in direct from separate plant selections. Our reward consists in a steady improvement in established varieties and once in a while a new variety of merit. Each year we discard many selections, the development of which have proved disappointing start at the beginning with other single plants. This year we have recorded over a thousand plants out of which, careful comparison of their records this winter, several hundred will be added to our breeding tests. The best of all will take from three to five years for proper development and fixation of type, during which we run risk of loss by accident and unfavorable weather. For every new variety we introduce, we lose or discard a hundred or more upon which we have spent time and expense. Thus only can we improve old varieties and introduce new and better ones. We do not pretend to "create" new flowers, but we do modestly claim to be earnest students of the art of plant selection especially in the most popular Annual that American flower lovers have ever known.

VICK'S ASTER BOOK For Florists.

A handsomely illustrated, descriptive book on Asters for florists and commercial growers. The most complete work of its kind ever published. Better than ever before this year; containing many new pictures of Asters from our farms this season. If you have not already received a copy or if yours has been lost or mislaid, write for another copy. You cannot afford to be without it.

VICK'S WHOLESALE CATALOG For Florists and Dealers.

Do not get the idea that Asters are the only thing which sell. We have the most complete line of flower, vegetable, farm seeds, plants, bulbs, shrubs, insecticides and fertilizers between New York and Chicago. Our wholesale catalog is very complete containing practically everything that any florist or seed dealer requires in this line. Send for a copy at once. We shall be glad to send it to you free.

VICK'S

PEERLESS YELLOW

Another Recent Valuable Novelty.

By far the most satisfactory yellow Aster yet produced. The flowers are large, remarkably full and ball shaped, with centers so deep-covered with curled and twisted florets, that the variety is almost a record-breaker in fecundity of producing seed. Every flower will give a beautiful chrysanthemum yellow. The plants are of branching type and very vigorous.

Price: Per pkt., 20c; 2 for 35c.

HEART OF FRANCE

Our Most Popular Novelty

The best pure red Aster ever introduced. All others have somber shades of blue or too much yellow in the color pigments. Heart of France opens red as the purest ruby, deepens with age and retains its remarkable beauty to the very end. The petals appear strikingly changeable, showing now a glow and sheen quite unique, now a soft warm velvety texture. In any light, natural or artificial, Heart of France is startlingly beautiful and will command instant admiration.

SCARCITY OF ROSE STOCK DISAPPOINTING.

The scarcity of stock still continues, being most acute in roses of medium grade, for which there are not half enough for the demand. It is said that another two weeks will pass before there will be any material increase in the supply. The quality of all the standard kinds in the various grades is very good. Although the prices in the autumn were disappointing most rose growers are quite well satisfied up to this time and look for a good season from now on. Carnations have gained about 10 per cent in quantity and will soon be in full supply. Sweet peas are now a strong factor that will affect every other flower in the market until after Easter. In form, coloring, fragrance and general adaptability for all kinds of floral arrangements they excel any other flower, while their comparatively low cost also adds to their popularity. This season's stock was earlier and will attain its height in quality two weeks ahead of last year. Calendulas are much improved and sell up well every day. Formosum lilies are in; splendid flowers they are a great improvement over the cold storage Liliun giganteum; they run two and three buds and flowers to a fine long stem, well clothed with foliage. Freesia is now a standard stock, some of it very good and quantities, more than half buds or sprays with only one flower open. It is astonishing how few growers know how to finish their stock properly. Freesia should not be cut until there are at least three open flowers to a spray, then there will also be three white buds in addition which will open out in water later on. Cattleyas are still quite plentiful with $1 as the top price. White lilac, lily of the valley and gardenias are about equal to the demand. Violets move its next meeting, February 7. This is indeed good news. Every retailer in and about the city who desires pointers in up to date business methods in running his flower shop should make it a point not to miss this meeting. Mr. Stumpp is noted for his new ideas in featuring plants and cut flowers, each season bringing out something original and striking along these lines. Employees in all stores will be especially welcomed to this meeting.

WHITE LILAC.

A wholesaler in speaking of the beauty of white lilac said that many retailers did not know how to use or push it to advantage. It was most valuable in combination with other flowers showing up well in sprays or baskets with all long stemmed flowers, and also with the shorter stemmed cattleyas and violets. Many retailers were asked to try out such choice stock as lilacs and cattleyas. They put them in their cases, waited until they were asked for, and then said it was no use, their trade did not want them. Lilacs and pink roses made a fine combination in spray or basket as did Formosum lilies and pink roses, and there were many combinations of other stocks to help out roses when they were scarce, that the retailer would find profitable.

NOTES.

At last this city is to have a large convention and exhibition hall, situated on the Parkway. It is to be a memorial to the heroes of the late war and will occupy a whole city block at Nineteenth and Callowhill streets. It will be the last word in a hall for convention and exhibition purposes, costing several millions of dollars.

The palm men are having a hard time keeping up their various sizes the past year, the demand on some being stronger than others. When a few of the reserve in this or that size are occasionally handed out there is great difficulty to fill orders next year.

The Leo Niessen Co. are proudly showing the first Formosum lilies of the season and they are exceptionally fine flowers. White lilac, lily of the valley, choice carnations and roses are features of their stock just now.

AMERICAN FLORIST CO.
440 SOUTH DEARBORN STREET, CHICAGO

Choice roses, carnations and lily of the valley are the present headliners with Edward Reid. He is satisfied with business but would like to see more stock around.

The Philadelphia Growers' Cut Flower Market is receiving good shipments of roses but not enough for the call. Two new growers were added last week.

W. A. Leonard, who is cutting extra fine Double White Killarney, says this is the best and most profitable kind for both grower and retailer.

Fine cyclamens that were a little too late for the holidays are being shipped by the Robt. Craig Co., Norwood Station. K.

New York.

NO IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS.

There has been no marked change in the condition of business since our notes of January 21 were written. The supply of stock is gradually increasing and reports from the ranges indicate that a few days of good sunshine may bring in much heavier offerings. The last half of the past week was noteworthy for rain and fog, particularly the latter, and as an old fashioned January thaw, it filled the bill. There is an abundant supply, considering the condition of business, of all staple stocks. Orchids continue plentiful and cheap, for this season. In roses, the buyers are generally shy of special stock, but the shorter grades clean up. Carnations are on the increase and incline to slowness, but there is a fair call for sweet peas, with which the market is well supplied. The violet trade seems to be in poor condition. In Easter and Rubrum lilies, lily of the valley, white and yellow narcissi, tulips, freesias, wall flowers, callas, calendulas and minor offerings, there is an abundance to supply all purposes.

January 23.—The supply of stock was light this morning, that being usually the case on Monday. Rose prices are holding firm with but slight change in other staple stocks. The market is overstocked with southern asparagus. A cold wave struck the city last night and if it continues will have an influence on values.

GREEK AMERICAN FLORISTS' ASS'N.

The fifteenth anniversary entertainment and ball of the Greek-American Florists' Association will be held in the Hotel Commodore, 42nd street and Lexington avenue, Wednesday night, March 1. This association has always provided interesting and successful entertainments and dances and it is expected that the next one will be equal if not superior to the past efforts as there is an able committee of arrangements.

NOTES.

Secretary Piper of the Morris County, N. J., Gardeners' and Florists' Society, has the sympathy of the trade in the death of his wife, who passed away January 20, soon after giving birth to twins. The children survive her. Mr. Piper is an esteemed member of the staff of the Charles H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J.

Theodore Malandre, of Malandre Bros., is spending a month at Miami, Fla., and has been sending good blooms of gladioli to the store.

Secretary John Young of the Society of American Florists, left for Cleveland, O., January 21, on business connected with the Fifth National Flower Show to be held there March 25-April 1.

BROOKLYN NOTES.

William H. Toddy has been long established in the retail business at 8 Seventh avenue, Brooklyn. Calling recently, we found his store well stocked, a fine display of Premier roses being noteworthy. He had on hand large orders for funeral work.

Wm. A. Phillips, 272 Fulton street, has recently rearranged and improved the interior of his store. He has another store in the Clark street station of the Interborough subway.

George Papadakos, of the Apollo Flower Shop, Kansas City, Mo., arrived on the S. S. King Alexander from Europe, January 25. He has had a visit of several months.

An enterprising Brooklyn retailer is T. P. Daniel, 208 Fifth avenue. He has a fine store and we found him busy.

The Garden Florist, 198 Flatbush avenue, Brooklyn, has a neat and well kept store and seems to be prosperous.

Manager McCarthy, of Jas. Weir, Inc., is quite cheerful over the outlook and with his staff is keeping busy.

The Snyder Sisters have recently opened a retail store at 141 Seventh avenue, Brooklyn.

At Masur's, 256 Fulton street, we found the usual business activity.

A. F. F.

Indianapolis, Ind.

SCARCITY OF STOCK ACUTE.

The scarcity of flowers has been very acute since January 1 and with the continued cloudiness, florists see very little relief in sight. The demand the past week has far exceeded the supply. Carnations are now arriving and are bringing eight to 12 cents, each. The greatest shortage for several years is noted for high grade stock. Most greenhouses show a good supply of full beds, but very few blossoms. Roses are selling at eight to 39 cents, and are not nearly enough to go around. The same holds true for narcissi. Freesia are slow in arriving, but the offerings are of good quality and wholesale at eight cents.

NOTES.

Clarence Green, of Green's Flower Shop, reports trade as greatly improving. His window deserves special commendation, featuring one of the most attractive displays in the city. The entire ceiling of the window is draped with various colored grasses, as well as the walls and background, which is further enhanced by good lighting effects.

Edwin Morner, Shelbyville, a recent visitor, told us that he has gone one step ahead of the game by putting on his auto delivery truck: "Say It With Morner's Flowers," which seems to be very appropriate.

The flower exhibit of the State Florists' Association, staged at the Public library, January 10, was held over for an additional day, due to the great interest aroused by the public in the show.

A recent visit to the Smith & Young wholesale establishment reveal the usual fact that stock is exceedingly scarce, with doubtful prospects for future supplies.

John Grande, Jr., is cutting some very fine sweet peas and single violets.

Fine calendulas and sweet peas are being sent in by Albert J. Pettit.

Seed Trade Outlook.

Lester L. Morse, of C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, Calif., says: "Conditions generally are more hopeful than they were a year ago. At last a good many short items are showing up and it is going to be necessary to grow an increased acreage of our specialties. There is no doubt in my mind but that there will be an increased fill-in business for the wholesale jobbers this spring and I am looking for much better conditions in the trade.

"In this state we have had some excellent early winter rains. Local business is good and the farmers are apparently very cheerful."

Redtop Seed Illinois Crop.

Practically all of the redtop seed that supplies the demand in this country, as well as in Europe, is produced in southern Illinois. Some redtop cleaned from timothy seed produced in southern Iowa and Minnesota finds its way into the market, but the quantity thus obtained usually is commercially unimportant.

The Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, says of redtop: "The crop moved early and quickly last summer. It was much smaller than an old-time crop. Unfavorable weather conditions at the maturing period shortened the yield. The carryover from the preceding season was only moderate—much less than was generally believed. Redtop is native to America. Considerable has gone abroad this season. It can be safely said that today there is available of this seed much less than was actually used last season from January to new crop."

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

M. R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn., President; Paul C. Lindley, Pomona, N. C., Vice-President; Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

The forty-seventh annual convention will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 28-30, 1922.

Illinois State Nurserymen's Association.

The annual meeting of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association was held at the Congress hotel, January 19-20, President A. M. Augustine, Normal, in the chair. At the opening session, Treasurer Bryant, in presenting his report, showed cash on hand, January 20, $668.49, with disbursements of $89.95, leaving a balance of $578.54. The president spoke of the need of a state laboratory to do research work and thought that one could be established at the state university, Urbana, which would also serve as a headquarters for nurserymen. W. F. Therkildson, Chicago, who took for his subject "Tell It to the City Folk," aroused much enthusiasm when he pointed out the possibilities of developing new trade in the cities, through well organized advertising campaigns.

"Tell It to the Farmer," by F. B. White, Chicago, clearly showed that the nursery possibilities had scarcely been touched in the agricultural communities. "Sales Plus," by John Watson, Princeton, N. J., a very able address, advocated the policy of nurserymen in following up consignments of stock after they had reached the planter, by giving advice and even showing the buyer personally how to properly prune and spray stock. This paper was pronounced by many present as the best Mr. Watson has ever presented.

At the Friday morning session, January 20, L. F. Dintelman, Bellevue, presented a very instructive paper, on "Peonies—Their Distinction," which was further discussed by Geo. Klehm, Arlington Heights and W. A. Peterson, Chicago. "The Development of Landscape Gardening in the Middle West," by Prof. J. C. Blair, of the department of horticulture, University of Illinois, Urbana, showed the great future in the development of landscape art, which at present, was in its infancy. Stereopticon views, supplementing the lecture, brought out the work accomplished in various cities of the state.

The concluding address of the meeting, presented by Clarence Siebenthaler, Dayton, O., told of "Creating the Desire to Plant," and in a modest way Mr. Siebenthaler told how their firm was instrumental in conducting a tree voting contest among the school pupils of his home county, in Ohio. Before adjournment the members voted to inaugurate the co-operative advertising plan, 23 newspapers having been decided upon to publish nursery articles, to be paid for as advertisements. It was further decided to give the executive board authority to act with the state university, in establishing a nursery laboratory. The meeting then adjourned.

The officers elected for 1922 are: George Klehm, Arlington Heights, president; Alvin E. Nelson, Chicago, vice-president; Miles Bryant, Princeton, treasurer; John A. Young, Aurora Nursery Co., Aurora, secretary.

Lack of means of identification hampered the personal acquaintance problem.

Philadelphus Virginalis was talked of freely.

THE EXHIBITS.

The following firms had exhibits: Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, bulbs and nursery supplies; Aurora Nursery Co., Aurora, stocks; J. Oliver Johnson, Chicago, lawn grass seed; Highland Park Nursery, Sterling, bulbs; Geo. B. Carpenter & Co., Chicago, twine; Foley Greenhouse Mfg. EVERGREEN SPECIALISTS. LARGEST GROWERS IN AMERICA.

Eastern Nurserymen's Association.

The Eastern Nurserymen's Association held its first annual meeting at Trenton, N. J., January 18, with an excellent programme. Nurserymen from Delaware, New Jersey, Maryland, Pennsylvania and New York were in attendance. President J. Edward Moon called the meeting to order and introduced Paul C. Lindley, Pomona, N. C., the first speaker, as the coming president of the American Association of Nurserymen. Mr. Lindley took for his subject, "What a Sectional Association Can Do for Its Members," and characteristically reversed the order, pointing out what the members should do for their sectional associations. Miss Ruth Dean, a landscape artist told of home planting.

"The Selling Problems of Nurserymen," was ably handled by Nelson Coon, Rhinebeck, N. Y., giving concrete illustrations from personal experience in a most practical way.

The following officers will serve for the coming year: J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., president; Lester C. Lovett, Little Silver, N. J., vice-president; F. F. Rockwell, Bridgeton, N. J., secretary; Adolph Muller, Norristown, Pa., treasurer; Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa.; Thos. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; Wm. Fleming, Williamsport, Md., and Warner Harper, executive committee.

Vegetable Movement.

WEEK OF JANUARY 16-21.

Apple shipments increased 110 cars. In eastern markets, barrelled stock was in good demand, No. 2½ Baldwins advancing $1, at Philadelphia. Michigan stock, however, declined 50 cents at Chicago, closing at $7 to $7.50 per barrel. Northwestern boxed Jonathans showed no change in price.

Cabbage prices continue to decline, in spite of a 30 per cent reduction in movement. Northern and New York Danish type fell off $5 at Chicago and Philadelphia, bringing $38 to $42 per ton. Increasing shipments of Florida Wakefields has forced a decline to $1.75 and $2 per one and one-half bushel hamper. Shipments amounted to 692 cars.

Onion movement is rapidly declining, 100 fewer cars being shipped, and a noticeable increase in prices is reported. Middlewestern yellow stock has been sold to Philadelphia jobbers at $7.25 to $7.50 per 100 pounds, a gain of 50 cents and increases of 75 cents are recorded at Pittsburgh. Western reds brought $6 to $7 at Kansas City, although Australian browns had a premium of 25 cents over this stock.

Potato shipment amounted to 3,600 cars, 400 less than the previous week. Maine stock was in good demand at New York, closing at $2.50 to $2.55 per 100 pounds. At Philadelphia an increase of 20 cents was noted. Red River Ohio's brought $1.50 to $1.55 in middle western markets.

Florida celery is increasing in movement, 64 cars being moved, compared with six the previous week. A general decline in prices is noted throughout the country, due to increased shipments.

Sweet potato prices showed no change, except Tennessee Nancy Halls, which declined slightly at Chicago, closing at $1.25 to $1.35 per bushel. There were 370 cars rolled during the week.

Citrus fruits and truck crops have been severely damaged in California, because of heavy freezes and movement has been retarded to some extent.

Texas spinach has been sold to Chicago jobbers at $1 to $1.15 per bushel.

Thanks Friends

for your kindly words of sympathy and the hearty words of encouragement you have sent to us by wire, phone and letter in our time of trouble but it takes more than a fire to frighten Foley. Like the Phoenix, this Company has in a few short hours risen from the ashes of its own or old self, and will soon be stronger, fresher and more determined than ever to serve the trade. We can only see the bright side now.

Our two vaults containing our standard drawings, records and correspondence were not destroyed, and our lumber yard and warehouse were spared with very small fire damage. Our credit is 100% now, as always—and the unlimited cooperation of those from whom we buy has been assured.

Of you, also, we ask close cooperation and the indulgence of a short time on deliveries.

And those of you who are planning on building better built and heated greenhouses this year—write or wire, for Foley's old guard is serving the trade with the same old Foley Energy, Accuracy, Promptness and Quality.

We await your commands.

The Business Meeting.

The thirty-first annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society, full account of the opening of which appeared in last week's issue, page 89, held at Hartford, Conn., proved a well attended and interesting gathering, with a large and magnificent display of very fine blooms.

The sessions of the convention were held in the veteran's room of Foot Guard Hall the opening session on Thursday morning, January 26, at 9
a. m., being called to order by President Howard with an attendance of 35 members. In referring to the beautiful exhibition in the hall below Mr. Howard questioned whether the co-operative or combined displays of the roses and carnations were altogether for the best interests of the carnation society. It might be beneficial occasionally but he felt not as an annual event, year after year. He praised the work of Vice-President Osborn, Wallace R. Pierson, and the Hartford Florists' Club, in the perfect setting they had given the exhibition, and the hotel arrangements and warm welcome the members had received. He then read his address, a comprehensive paper, containing many valuable suggestions looking to the welfare of the society. The paper was very well received and on motion a committee was appointed, consisting of S. J.
Goddard, Wm. Sim and Harold Patton to consider its recommendations.

Secretary A. F. J. Baur read his report and also that of Treasurer F. E.
Dorner who was unable to be present.
Both showed the society to be in a progressive and prosperous condition being at the peak of its membership and in good financial condition.

Telegrams were received from Wm.
Nicholson, Framingham, Mass., reading, "With best wishes for a successful meeting from one of the old guards," and from Chas. Engleman, of London, Eng., which said, "Good luck and best wishes from your friends across the sea." Wm. F. Gude, of Washington, D. C., also telegraphed best wishes and regrets at not being able to be present.
On motion the secretary was directed to answer Mr. Nicholson's best wishes, with a "Say It With Flowers" telegram, and acknowledge the others by letter.

Letters were read from the Chamber of Commerce, of Cincinnati, O., and the branch there of the National Flower Growers' Association, urgently inviting the national association to come to Cincinnati in 1923. An invitation was also given to the American Rose Society to hold the exhibition at the same time.
S. J. Goddard at once voiced an objection to an allied exhibition, which he thought was not for the best interest of the carnation society. Such a meeting tried out in Detroit five years ago had been an absolute failure and at other times since then, when other various trade organization meetings when called at the same time and place as the carnation society conventions had always been at the expense of the carnation. Chas. S. Strout agreed with Mr. Goddard. It had been his experience that at the best there was not time to examine the flowers as they should be, as to their keeping qualities and other characteristics that are most important to carnation growers. It should be a carnation meeting and exhibition with no side issues to interfere. The presentation of the various medals won had been features of annual carnation dinners but which interesting events were lacking at last night's banquet. These he considered an incentive to ambitious young men in the business who look forward to the time when they would be so rewarded. Chas. W. Johnson also endorsed the single meeting. After considerable discussion along the same vein, final consideration was postponed until the evening session.

Nominations for officers for the ensuing year were then taken up. Mr. Strout said the only logical candidate was the retiring secretary, Mr. Baur. This was seconded by S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., who declared the society had been run so long and efficiently by Mr. Baur as secretary with the rest of the officers practically as figure heads, and as the burden of the work fell on him this honor should now be his. His nomination was then made unanimous. Henry W. Shepard, Cincinnati, O., received the nomination for vice-president. F. E. Dörner, La Fayette, Ind., was renominated for treasurer. A committee was appointed to consider various names for secretary and report at the evening session. Peter Fisher was nominated to succeed himself as director. C. W. Johnson, Rockford, Ill., asked to be relieved as a judge but finally allowed his name to be presented. Other nominees were John Hartje, Indianapolis, Ind., and Harold Patten, Tewksbury, Mass.

A. M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa., then read his extremely interesting paper on "The Carnation Industry; Past, Present and Future." James Wheeler in moving a vote of thanks, said it was one of the best papers he had ever listened to, being so full of suggestions and reminiscences. A standing vote of thanks was given and the paper placed on the evening programme for discussion. Wm. Sim suggested a change in the schedule so that more importance should be given to fragrance. This brought out considerable discussion, the consensus of opinion being that weather and atmospheric conditions had so much to do with fragrance that the schedule had best remain as it is. Most grower retailers present stated that what their customers wanted was first size and then color, while fragrance was desired but not considered necessary. Mr. Strout was strong for keeping qualities rather than size, as wide open flowers would not keep and this is the most important quality we want to insure in the carnation if we are to increase its popularity with the public.

Carnations in England.

T. W. Weston gave an interesting account of carnations in the English market. There was no point for fragrance in the English exhibition scale. Carnations were grown much more extensively there than here. One firm grew over 500,000 plants, in pots, mostly sold to amateurs for planting out and many as flowers for Covent Garden market. Many were produced under glass for cut flowers and forced all the year round. Their biggest cut is in June, after which it is light during the summer and comes strong again in October. They have great over stocks there the same as here, but these are taken care of by the costermongers of the Covent Garden market, who are always on hand for bargains, with as regular a business as store men. In fact they were so important a factor to the market that business could not be carried on without them.

Carrying carnation plants over into the second year was a real problem, but, Secretary Baur said, to the man who gave it the necessary attention, returns were very satisfactory, as he was sure to get a much larger and higher quality crop the second season. They required constant care in free watering and syringing, the latter particularly in the evening. There was always a splendid cut from the plants in the early autumn when carnations were scarce. He had cut five high grade flowers to a plant from Enchantress Supreme, during September. Secretary Baur thought it paid to keep them over if the plants get the necessary care but not otherwise.

Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O., reported Merkle Bros., Mentor, O., had 10,000 Laddie carnations in for the second year with splendid results. It was declared by several growers that cuttings were obtained much more freely from these second year plants, and also that they rooted much better. In spraying to keep down spider, salt in the water was most effective. Harold Patten liked to keep Laddie growing all the time without check or cutting back, for the best results.

S. S. Skidelsky, New York, referring to street competition in the sale of flowers in large cities gave an instance of good Ward carnations bought on the street in San Francisco, Calif., at 25 cents a dozen. These were good quality flowers and had kept well. He found the same grade selling in good stores at $1.50 per dozen and that while this situation prevailed with these and other flowers at all times, the retail shops did not mind it and said the people always came to them when they wanted something sent and were quite willing to pay the difference for the service. The secretary then read the judge's report in which it was shown that seven first year seedlings had qualified.

Wm. Sim suggested that quantities in the exhibition schedule be cut down for when the 100 classes were placed in the schedule, flowers were not nearly as large or long stemmed as they now are. It would be an encouragement to growers who had 50 choice flowers to exhibit but who were now barred because they could not put up 100. It was also a hardship on growers who made entries in a number of the sections, as it was necessary to bring so many flowers. He thought 50 of the choice flowers of the present day, made a better vase than 100 which on account of their size had to be so crowded into a vase as to make a solid mass and that 50 selected from these would show higher quality and make a better showing. Laddie it was thought should be given a class by itself as for the present it stood head and shoulders above all other varieties. On motion these various suggestions were referred to the schedule committee. Chas. W. Johnson reported the National Flower Show carnation prize list would soon be ready.

James Wheeler called attention to a line of colored labels on which was written the names of varieties of carnations, each kind given a color which when placed in boxes or cutting beds or larger ones in rows in the field, showed at a glance the name of the kind. The meeting was then adjourned, the final session to be held in the same room at 7 p. m.

Evening Session.

The evening session was called to order at 7:30 p. m., with the room comfortably filled. As the proceedings opened Samuel J. Goddard, on behalf of the members of the society, presented Secretary Baur with a handsome gold watch as a token of the esteem in which he was held and appreciation of his great service as secretary for so many years. Mr. Baur was taken completely by surprise; he thanked the members for this mark of their appreciation which would always be one of his most cherished possessions.

The judges reported that the seedling Winter Cheer, exhibited by Lacluse & Lacluse, Blue Point, N. Y., had been awarded a certificate; also that the shippers championship had been awarded to Strouts, Inc., Biddeford, Me., with 278 points.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY'S SHOW, HARTFORD, CONN., JAN. 25-27.

Changes in the schedule were again taken up, Mr. Sim emphasizing the smaller number of flowers to a vase, cutting out the hundreds. C. W. Johnson thought the public wanted to see the larger number. Mr. Goddard favored these large vases in the gold medal classes, while Mr. Sim thought the best vases in the show could be given the gold medals without making separate entries. T. A. Weston stated that in all the British shows 25 flowers made the standard vase. The consensus of opinion was that Laddie should be in a class by itself, there being no dissenting voice to this proposition. The shipper's championship class was discussed as being undesirable in some respects, and little if anything gained from it. All these suggestions were finally left to the judgment of the schedule committee.

Report on President's Address.

The report on the president's address was then presented by the committee. President Howard's suggestion regarding branch meetings and exhibitions was considered desirable and should be carried out. The emphasis placed on a fine showing of carnations at the Cleveland National Flower Show, by the carnation society was heartily endorsed, but changes of points in the schedule for fragrance was not thought necessary. In the suggestion of joint exhibitions of the rose and carnation societies the committee thought it was to the best interest of the latter society to meet alone and hold their meetings and exhibitions independently. A motion to accept the report of the committee brought out a most interesting discussion. By this time the room was uncomfortably crowded, many standing. All the rose, and many of the carnation men wanted to see an allied mid-winter exhibition in Cincinnati, O., in January 1923, but some of the carnation members felt that the interests of the society were being jeopardized by such allied connections and fought to have the exhibition entirely carnation.

George Asmus made an earnest plea for an allied exhibition, and thought it a great mistake when the trade watchword was co-operation, to have a separation of the rose and carnation interests when they could do so much better together. At this point he read a telegram inviting the rose society to meet in Cincinnati, which was objected to as having no place in a carnation meeting. Peter Fisher thought it a mistake to divide the carnation and rose interests as probably one-half the carnation men also grew roses. Mr. Asmus again made a strong plea for harmony; retailers were co-operating with growers in exhibitions everywhere, roses helped carnations and carnations helped roses and the allied show would be a much greater success than with carnations alone.

A. M. Campbell then asked Mr. Goddard to state the committees objections so as to get the carnation men's point of view. Mr. Goddard said the committee felt it would be very detrimental to the carnation society to continue such joint exhibitions. It costs the organization $500 to hold the annual exhibition, and the rose society nothing. The meetings were being encroached upon with other matters, the publicity feature was being overdone and he thought it best for the carnation people to run their own meetings. C. W. Johnson said that at the morning session, when it was proposed to accept the Cincinnati, O. invitation to hold their 1923 convention and exhibition with carnations alone, there was not a dissenting voice but now there was great opposition from the rose men. In the AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY'S SHOW, HARTFORD, CONN., JAN. 25-27.

Carnat on Rosalind Exhibited by Strouts Inc., Biddeford, Me.

Hartford exhibition there were 34 exhibitors of carnations and only five of roses. Mr. Sim asked what the rose society proposed to do next year; would they offer prizes, etc.? Wallace R. Pierson said that in the present show they had simply staged roses to help the carnation society make a fine mid-winter flower exhibition, that in all the preparations for that organization's meetings he had given the society all the time it had asked for and arranged the dinners, luncheons and other meetings so as not to interfere, in which Mr. Baur corroborated Mr. Pierson. The rose society's intention was never to detract in any way from the interests of the carnation society, only by their co-operation to make their exhibition better and stronger. James Wheeler could not see but what the roses would be a great help to the carnations, while Carl Hagenburger also thought the comparison with last year's Washington exhibition and the present show, in its magnificent display and enormous crowds of visitors, clearly showed the great benefits of co-operation. President S. S. Pennock, of the Society of American Florists, believed the combined shows advertised the business as nothing else would do, as unity was strength.

Co-operation and unity were the watchwords of J. F. Ammann. While the hard working carnation men who had done so much for that flower and the society, and were right in protecting its interests, yet he felt they had more to gain than to lose in these combined exhibitions. Secretary Baur feared that in such combination, there was likely to be a loss in membership as had been the case the year following the Detroit allied exhibition, although at this time the membership was at its peak.

After Wm. Sim, W. A. Manda, Geo. Asmus and others had again spoken commending the allied exhibition and Mr. Goddard explained that he and his associates were not in any sense antagonistic to other interests, a motion to accept the invitation to hold their next annual meeting and exhibition in Cincinnati prevailed. Carl Hagenburger then moved that an invitation be extended the American Rose Society to exhibit with them jointly at that time which was passed unanimously.

New additions to the membership were pledged, 20 by James E. Wheeler, Natick, Mass., and five each by Carl Hagenburger and George Asmus. Guarantees to the Fifth National Flower Show fund of $1,500 amounted to $835 and the secretary desired to increase it, so the following pledged $25 each, except A. M. Campbell, who offered $50: S. S. Pennock, J. F. Ammann, H. L. May, A. M. Henshaw, Roman J. Irwin, James E. Wheeler, W. F. Hasting, W. J. Keimel, S. S. Skidelsky, Jos. A. Manda, Heinz & Nash, Harold Patton, Geo. Asmus, W. D. Howard, W. O. Jahn, Carl Hagenburger, A. N. Pierson, the total amounting to $500.

The election of officers, nominated at the morning session, was then taken up. Vice-President Osborn cast the society's vote for A. J. F. Baur for president amid great applause. Mr. Baur, in thanking the organization for the honor conferred, modestly said that in his 19 years as secretary, he had not done as much as he would have liked. In his present position he would give his best efforts for the advancement of the society. The secretary cast the ballot for Henry W. Sheppard, of Cincinnati, O., for vice-president. The committee appointed to present names for secretary had agreed that O. E. Steinkamp, of Indianapolis, Ind., had all the qualifications, and the secretary cast the ballot electing him to this important office. Treasurer F. E. Dorner was re-elected, as was Peter Fisher, of Ellis, Mass., for director for five years. Two judges were to be elected from three nominated, the result being as follows: C. W. Johnson, Rockford, Ill., 31 votes; Harold Patton, Tewksbury, 28 and John Hartje, Indianapolis, Ind., 11. A standing vote of thanks was given to the Hartford Florists' Club and all those who had done so much to make the meeting and exhibition a success.

Resolutions.

The committee of condolences presented the following resolutions:

In that it has pleased Almighty God to take from our midst our fellow members, M. A. Patten, Peter Reinberg and J. F. Stewart, We, the American Carnation Society, here assembled, Committee.

The committee on final resolutions presented the following:

Your committee on final resolutions at the thirty-first annual convention of the American Carnation Society report as follows: That the hearty thanks of the society be tendered to the Hartford Florists' Club for the very satisfactory manner in which the arrangements of the exhibition were carried out; for the entertainments tendered the visiting ladies and to all who assisted in making the stay of the visitors both pleasant and profitable and to the Hotel Bond officials for the excellent service accorded to members.

Therefore, be it resolved that this society hereby express its most sincere thanks to the several organizations for their interest and pains taken to bring to a successful completion this convention, and that these resolutions be incorporated in the minutes of the society, all of which is respectfully submitted.

ERNEST SAUNDERS,
THOS. PEGLER,
ROBERT KIFT,
Committee.

After a short discussion as to length of future exhibitions, which was referred to the board of directors, a standing vote of thanks was given the president and other officers for their efficient work and the convention adjourned.

Retailers' Exhibit.

The decorated booths of the retail florists of Hartford were most elaborate and complete. They occupied one side of the hall and were at all times the center of attraction.

George G. McClunie had a decorated space, the features of which were well filled baskets of seasonable flowers all nicely arranged in good color effects.

Lane the Florist had an elaborately trimmed booth all done in black velvet. Hanging from the top were several baskets filled with long sprays of yellow acacia, with tall standards at the sides with the same flower. The central feature was an elaborate bride's shower bunch of lily of the valley. Handsome bridesmaid and maid-of-honor bouquets flanked either side. On velvet covered mounds at each side there were artistically made Colonial bouquets of various sizes and a set of corsage bunches of the choicest flowers in combinations. All of the arrangements were elaborately trimmed with appropriate ribbons. The whole exhibit was brilliantly illuminated with concealed electric lights.

Coombs the Florist, having two stores, had a decoration for each. One was quite elaborate, the feature being the figure of a bride, elegantly dressed and carrying an exquisite shower bunch of lily of the valley and orchids and was most striking. The background was of French window screens, decorated with green vines, palms and ferns. An elaborate maid of honor and a bridesmaid's bunch of roses were artistically arranged on both sides. There were also vases of other flowers so featured as to give an artistic setting to the whole display.

The other Coomb's booth represented a garden scene with high lattice sides against a green background, in front and on either side of which were vases of roses. At the rear of the central path was a large concealed mirror, which lengthened the effect of the wide graveled path leading through an open gate. A good sized kewpie gardener stood near a wheelbarrow of flowers. This exhibit was much admired.

Spear & McManus Co. also had a garden scene with a large, life-size terra cotta figure of a nymph bending over a conch shell, which she was holding in her hands and from which water poured into a basin below. This was perhaps more a wood than a garden effect, although a terra cotta garden seat held a large basket of spray orchids, and another, roses. There was a tall vase of Ophelia roses on either side, and altogether it made a complete picture.

Welch the Florist had a beautiful booth, at one side of which was a large gilt frame backed with velvet in front of a background of palms. This pictured a vase of beautiful oncidiums. There were also artistically arranged baskets of flowers and a number of corsages, all so placed as to round out and give a fine finish to the exhibit. The whole was canopied with southern smilax and complete in every detail.

St. Valentine's Day was featured by J. Albert Brodrib, and we could hardly imagine a better exhibit for February. A large red velvet heart three feet in diameter was the central feature which was set against a background of cut daffodils almost across the top. Diagonally across this was a large gilt arrow and these words in gilt: "To My Valentine." On the point of the heart there were several well arranged corsages. A good sized suspended cupid held red ribbons that led to the heart. In the space below on either side and in front, there was a display of corsages of small baskets and Colonial bouquets, each with its gilt arrow. The whole effect was such as to fix the approaching event in the minds of all who buy valentines, times.

Kenneth C. Mackey made a very good showing with his nicely decorated space, the central feature being a ribbon backed gilt frame with a half vase of roses in the center. Well filled baskets, a wreath of violets and lily of the valley, vases and bowls of flowers on pedestals, with velour velvet backgrounds gave a very pleasing finish and effect.

The whole exhibition when completed and all exhibits in place, was clearly the best ever made by the American Carnation Society. While there were more carnation exhibits than for a number of years and all of superior quality, the addition of the long-stemmed choice roses added much to the decorative effect. These after the carnations had been judged, were placed amongst them at intervals all over the hall, making the whole an ideal show.

There were a number of the carnation men, however, who objected to this arrangement as dwarfing their favorite flower and at future exhibitions it is thought they will be kept separate. Not many new carnations were shown, but the old were never featured so well. Ethel Fisher, a fine red, was shown here better than ever before. Wm. Sim's Bonny pink seedling was very distinct and an entirely new shade, for which he received a preliminary certificate and also a certificate of merit.

Betty Jane, a dark pink seedling, exhibited by A. Joblinsky, Olivette, Mo., was a very promising variety, being awarded a silver medal and for Olivette a red striped kind on a light background, a bronze medal was given the same exhibitor. Virginia, a dark pink, almost red seedling, exhibited by R. E. Wadsworth, Northboro, Mass.; white seedling No. 2, by A. N. Pierson, and a dark red seedling by C. Warburton, were all promising varieties that won preliminary certificates.

The arranged baskets and vases of carnations that occupied places of honor on the platform were very well arranged and a great attraction to the visitors.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY'S SHOW, HARTFORD, CONN., JAN. 25-27.
General View of the Main Hall.

Rose Exhibits.

The vases of long stemmed roses were numerous and of the highest quality, the A. N. Pierson Co. staging 20 of 50 roses each. These and all other roses were all arranged in the American Rose Society's willow covered vases, and made a beautiful showing. The feature of this exhibit was a vase of their dark pink sport of Columbia, certainly ideal in every particular.

The Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa., exhibited several lots of 50 roses, a vase of Butterfly being exceptionally fine. L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., staged several fine vases, one of a light pink sport of Premier, which was very distinct and beautiful.

Coombs the Florist also displayed a dark sport of Columbia and several other standard sorts, of very good quality.

Myers & Samtman, Chestnut Hill, Pa., had a vase of superb flowers of their new Rose Celestial, a light sport of Premier.

Wendel & Kiemel, Elmhurst, Ill., showed a vase of fine Premier and another of Crusader, both appearing well after their long journey. The Frances Scott Key vase, from F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., contained flowers of superior quality and has never been seen in better condition. The Bedford Floral Co., Bedford Hills, N. Y., staged a vase of fine Columbias. P. M. Pierson, Briarcliffe, N. Y., exhibited a vase of American Beauties, fine flowers. The E. G. Hill Co.'s new rose, America, made an excellent showing as a distinct finished flower of great commercial value.

Wm. A. Vert's vase of well grown Sunburst attracted considerable attention. Ethan A. Coon, Rheinbeck, N. Y., displayed some wonderful Marie Louise violets, all of which were bunched as violets ought to be. A. L. Miller, Jamaica Plains, N. Y., had a group on either side of the platform of acacias, heather, daisies and primulas, all well flowered.

The rose vases appeared so fine that the National Flower Show Committee had them photographed to use for publicity at the coming Cleveland show.

The attendance from the opening hour was continuous, and at times in the evenings the doors had to be closed until there was room made to admit more. It is estimated that there was an attendance in the three days of 35,000 people. As all tickets were only obtained through the flower shops who sent them to their customers and given to those who came after them, it should be a splendid publicity move for the trade. The weather was clear but cold, the thermometer registering below zero every night for five days. Several consignments of stock en route were frozen, including carnations of Harold Patten, Tewksbury, Mass., and begonia plants of J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati, O. Most of the stock, however, arrived safely.

Carnations kept very well, but began to droop the final day. The varieties that looked best at the close were Rosalia, Peter Ball, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Improved Ward, Morning Glow, Rosalind, Eastern Beauty, White Benora, White Delight, Pure Delight and Cottage Maid.

Wm. Sim, who staged 2,500 carnation flowers, and A. A. Pembroke, with over 600, unpacked their flowers the night before the opening and put them in water. Then they sat up with them until morning to see that nothing happened, thus emphasizing another phase of intensive culture.

The Banquet.

The dinner in honor of the visiting members of the American Carnation Society and the American Rose Society held at the Bond hotel, Wednesday evening January 25, was attended by 400 members and guests of the Hartford Florists' Club, with many ladies in attendance. In the center of the room, on a raised platform, was the table of honor at which was seated the governor of Connecticut, Hon. E. J. Lake; W. D. Howard, president of the American Carnation Society; N. C. Osborn, vice-president of the same organization; Roman J. Irwin, president of the New York Florists' Club; J. Fred Ammann, secretary of the National Flower Growers' Association; S. S. Pennock, president of the Society of American Florists; E. K. Hubbard, president of the Manufacturers Association of Hartford; Major P. F. O'Keefe, Henry Penn, Boston, Mass.; Geo. Asmus, Chicago; Wallace Thompson; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; S. A. Anderson, John Young, secretary of the Society of American Florists and Wallace R. Pierson, toastmaster. To the left of this table at a large round table were the wives of the gentlemen who occupied the platform. At another table were seated as guests of the Florists' Club the following retired florists of Hartford and vicinity, all of whom had spent over 50 years in the business: A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; D. A. Spear, John Coombs, Robt. Marchant and G. W. McClunie.

After the serving of an excellent menu, interspersed with selections from an orchestra, and a short programme of dancing, Toastmaster Pierson welcomed the guests with witty remarks and stories and introduced Wallace

Thompson, president of the Florists' Club, who in brief but well chosen remarks welcomed the visitors to the city. Governor Lake was then presented and at once began radiating good humor by his funny stories and description of the political campaign which won him the governorship. In a more serious vein he congratulated the florists for their calling in life which gave them the opportunity to add, with their beautiful flowers, to the joy of every occasion. He said there was no scandal or profiteering in that profession during or since the war. The governor was indeed glad to welcome such a body of men to Hartford and wished for them splendid business returns for the next decade.

E. K. Hubbard, president of the Manufacturers' Association of Hartford, first poked fun at Governor Lake, who in his college days was a famous football player, and on account of his shabby head of hair was dubbed the "human chrysanthemum." After referring to the importance of Connecticut as a manufacturing state, he praised the florists as manufacturers of flowers, saying there was no other industry in the state that could put forth such honored men, in one profession, with their 50 years' record, as sat around the veteran florists' table. The tenacity of purpose was an example that all of us should follow. In closing Mr. Hubbard said the florists' trade represented honesty, integrity and good will.

President Pennock congratulated the carnation and rose societies on their wonderful exhibits which were away beyond expectations. He had just attended the agricultural conference at Washington, D. C., where President Harding said that business of the farmers and other agricultural interests in the country required more diversified thought and energy, and yet received less compensation than any other line. The President thought intelligent organization and co-operation was their way out. Mr. Pennock stated it was much the same with the trade, which in their good co-operative organizations were being greatly benefitted. He was glad florists did not suffer from low markets like cotton, wheat and other products. He praised the slogan, "Say It With Flowers," and urged all in the trade to stand back of the society's publicity campaign which was certain to bring wonderful results.

Secretary John Young was loud in his praises of the splendid floral display and urged that such a combined mid-winter flower show be held annually in some large city. He spoke of the magnitude of the industry, which according to United States authorities, has as much money invested as has the manufacturing of steel. He asked the co-operation of all the trade in the great Fifth National Flower Show to be held in Cleveland, O., March 25-April 1. He could not begin to tell of the many favorable things now developing: the great co-operation of the people of Cleveland and the wonderful publicity already received. The building in which the exhibition will be staged is the handsomest and most commodious in the country.

Mr. Pierson said the florists of the country owe a debt of gratitude to Major O'Keefe who opened his address by referring to the florists of Hartford as live wires who had in their co-operative and publicity work made the present show such a success. In referring to the origin of the great slogan, he said, in thinking the matter over, flowers give expression to thoughts, so why not "Say It With Flowers?" He believes the national slogan had accomplished much to tide over the troubled business of the past few years. He gave splendid practical advice in regards to advertising and finished his remarks by presenting, in behalf of the Hartford Florists' Club, Mrs. E. J. Lake, the wife of the governor, with an enormous bunch of roses, and also a corsage to her daughter.

Mr. Pierson then thanked the florists of Hartford who had done so much to make the show and meetings a success. He then adjourned the dinner and the tables and chairs were removed to make room for the dancing which was enjoyed for several hours.

Ladies' Luncheon.

There were over 40 visiting ladies who were taken in hand by a committee of the ladies of the Hartford Florists' Club, of which Mrs. T. MacManus was chairman. They were first entertained at luncheon at the Hoebelin hotel at noon, Thursday, which was a most enjoyable event, after which the visitors were taken to a matinee performance at the theatre. This, with the visit to the beautiful exhibition, the banquet on Wednesday night, and the trip to A. N. Pierson's establishment at Cromwell, Conn., which was a revelation to many, filled in most of their spare time and made their sojourn in the convention city one long to be remembered.

American Rose Society Luncheon.

There was an informal meeting of the members of the American Rose Society, who came together at a luncheon on Thursday noon, January 26, at the Hotel Bond. After the repast, Wallace R. Pierson acting as presiding officer and who is also in charge of the commercial section of rose society at the National Flower Show, appointed the following gentlemen as judges: S. S. Pennock, Alexander Montgomery, Boston, Mass.; W. J. Palmer, Buffalo, N. Y.; Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.; Robert Miller, W. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; George Burton, Chestnut Hill, Pa.; J. F. Ammann, George Asmus, S. A. Anderson, A. B. Cartledge, Wilmington, Conn.; Frank Traendly, New York; P. Welch, Boston, Mass.; Emil Buettner, Park Ridge, Ill., and N. J. Weiter, Chicago.

The selection of a meeting place for 1923 was entertained and postponed after considerable discussion, until the matter of co-operation with the carnation society was settled by that body at their evening session. George Asmus presented a very interesting report of the situation that confronted the National Flower Show committee in reference to getting the use of the convention hall at Cleveland, which had been denied there by the new mayor. Mr. Asmus was happy to say that all of the mayor's objections as to danger of builder's claims, lack of money to run the building when completed, which latter important matter was being more rapidly pushed forward, had been met by a committee of bankers and other large interests who are guaranteeing the city against loss of any kind. It was said the show might have to be postponed four days but absolutely no later, and that the committee was certain it would take place perhaps on the advertised dates.

In speaking of the rose society's guarantee of $3,000 liability towards premiums, $1,200 had been subscribed to back this up.

J. F. Atkins earnestly advocated a larger membership amongst the trade. At first the membership was all commercial but now it is nearly all amateur, as so many of the latter class had joined. The $3 fee of the commercial men would be a great help to the fund to get new amateurs which would greatly increase the love for flowers.

The annual meeting for the election of officers was postponed until the society's convention at the Cleveland National Flower Show. The meeting then adjourned after which the executive committee held a short session.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY'S SHOW, HARTFORD, CONN., JAN. 25-27.
Carnation Laddie, Exhibited by Coombs the Florist, Hartford, Conn.

National Flower Growers' Association.

HARTFORD MEETING, JANUARY 26.

The annual meeting of the National Flower Growers' Association was held Thursday January 26, following the American Rose Society's luncheon at the Hotel Bond. Those attending were principally delegates of the various local branches that have already been organized. President W. J. Keimel read his annual address which contained much valuable information and suggestions to benefit the association's work.

Secretary J. F. Ammann presented the financial report and spoke of the great work already accomplished, particularly in co-operative and individual publicity, there being now $1,000 used for this purpose to every $1 that was spent before the growers' organization was formed. He also read the report of Treasurer Wallace R. Pierson, both of which were received and filed.

Jos. Kohout, Chicago, chairman of the cut flower committee on grading, sent a letter reporting progress. Getting the support of all the growers was a matter of education some desiring to wait and feel their way along while others, convinced, were ready for immediate action. The co-operative movement was gaining steadily as all were beginning to see its benefits. Mr. Kohout strongly commended Secretary Ammann for his great work. It was hoped soon to attain uniform grading in all markets.

The various district chairmen were called on for reports. E. Allan Pierce, of the New England district, stated while they had made good progress assessments had been hard to collect. The market the past summer and autumn had been in bad shape, and to quicken sales as they could get no co-operation from the retailers, they had advertised and thrown the two growers' markets at Boston, Mass., open to the public. This had made the retailers wake up and they immediately got together, formed an organization and it is now thought are willing to co-operate with the association during times of overproduction. Plans are now under way to consolidate the two Boston markets under one organization, in a suitable building of their own, with all up-to-date facilities. These results had been made possible because of the growers' association, which was already a great power in the cut flower business of New England.

Secretary Ammann reported having received letters of protest from a committee of Boston retailers in regard to the open market, but took no action as the matter was entirely local and would be much better settled by the parties getting together themselves.

Chairman Brookings, of the Buffalo N. Y. district, made a very favorable report showing that practically 100 per cent of the growers were united. Contributions to the publicity fund had been very liberal as with only 1,000,000 square feet under glass the amount raised last year was $10,000 and this year it would be $15,000. Questionnaires had been sent to all members to determine supplies of various kinds used annually, stocks and amounts of same grown, all of which information would be of great value in co-operative buying and selling. On much of the standard supplies they hoped to save from five to 20 per cent to the grower, who were now willingly contributing 50 per cent to the publicity fund where before organization they paid nothing. Periodical educational trips or visits to growers' establishments on stated occasions by a number of the trade are now made and have been wonderfully beneficial, Chairman Brookings said. Their publicity campaign in Buffalo was in the hands of S. Norcum who had been able to feature much interesting matter about plants and flowers in the reading columns of the newspapers, their advertising the past year having occupied 30,000 lines of space. Wallace Eiss also made a very encouraging report of the work publicity had done for the business there.

Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O., gave a comprehensive account of the Ohio District, in which co-operation among growers was progressing rapidly. Ten different cities and communities were already organized with a membership of 153 members, which had collected over $3,000 and $150 had already

Fifth National Flower Show.

Cleveland, O., March 25-April 1

Chairman George Asmus of the National Flower Show Committee telegraphed from Cleveland as follows, January 30:

American Florist Co.,
440 S. Dearborn St.,
Chicago, Ill.

Give prominent notice in this week's issue of your paper that the National Flower Show will positively be held with no change of dates. Growers of cut roses have been informed to look in your publication for this information, so that they have sufficient time to pinch their plants.

been saved in collective buying. Lectures on heating had been given and other interesting topics would follow. What was wanted was a live active paid secretary, who could give his entire time to the work.

An interesting report on the progress of the movement in Chicago was given by Peter Pearson. Growers now have the publicity in their own hands and retailers advertise individually, the former now willingly paying one per cent on their gross sales for publicity. A statistical report of the business was now under way and would be a great benefit to the trade. Last year $35,000 was collected, 60 to 70 per cent of this being from growers and $4,500 was given to the national publicity fund of the Society of American Florists. Before the National Flower Growers Association was formed not $1 was subscribed by growers, Mr. Pearson concluded.

The secretary reporting for Missouri said that last year $3,000 was raised. Now growers have assumed entire charge of general publicity, retailers to co-operate at times of plenty but advertise individually. That this is feasible he cited a large firm of retailers, Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, who had purchased thousands of chrysanthemums at $10 per 100, generally worth much more, and sold them at 19 cents each. They had also handled immense quantities of roses in special sales at 50 cents per dozen for which they had paid $20 per 1,000. Mr. Ammann referred to his tour of the country in the interest of the growers' association, covering many states from coast to coast, how he had been well received and found the spirit of co-operation spreading everywhere. Milwaukee, Wis., which had started this co-operative publicity was now on a two per cent basis on all sales, with all interests more than satisfied with results. New York was starting similar work among the growers, one of whom on a percentage basis, had recently turned in his first check for $1,600. Mr. Ammann said that when the five principal states were organized the rest would quickly follow, as they would find it greatly to their interest to do so. C. H. Plumb sent a very encouraging letter from Detroit.

Secretary Ammann stated that it was now the settled conviction that the growers should alone support general publicity, using this method when growers were plentiful, and that retailers should co-operate with them, but only by advertising sales from their own stores. Growers of plants and flowers were collectively the most slipshod business men in America; they were bulls to day and bears tomorrow, which also held true for many of the grower-retailers. Very few took account of the costs of crops either in time or greenhouse space. Flowers will be much easier to sell when advertised, the secretary concluded.

Revision of the by-laws was taken up, which Mr. Ammann said was always necessary year after year, as the Society of American Florists, with its 36 years experience, was still at it. It developed here that the secretary, although allotted a salary of $300 per month, had only drawn practically traveling expenses and could not get enough to afford an office stenographer. However, he made no complaint as his heart was in the work and he would be satisfied when the growers were all finally organized as he knew they would be.

The changes in the various articles of the constitution were not numerous or drastic. In Article Three in the attendance of representatives of district bodies, it is provided that a member could be selected to go in place of the president or vice-president if either were unable to be present. Article Four is amended so that a member selected can represent the district organization on the national board of directors, if local officers cannot be present.

In the matter of dues it was thought by some that $2 for each member of a local district association to be paid to the national association was too little, but after discussion it remained the same, as did the provision relating to Class B members, who reside outside the cities and who pay $10 annually direct to the national association. The amendments as presented were, with the few changes made, to be accepted for adoption at the next annual meeting.

It was proposed to have a national growers' association emblem or trade mark, which was to be used on all shipping boxes, tags and stationery. Several designs were submitted as about to be adopted by the Buffalo, N. Y. district.

The election of officers resulted in the retention of the present incumbents who are: W. J. Keimel, Elmhurst, Ill., president; Jas. W. Heacock, Wyncote, Pa., vice-president; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., treasurer; J. Fred Ammann, 201 Bank building, Edwardsville, Ill., secretary.

Cincinnati, O. was chosen as place of meeting in 1923. A meeting of the executive board of the association will be held at Cleveland, O., during National Flower Show week, March 25-April 1.

OHIO DISTRICT MEETING, JANUARY 24.

A most interesting meeting of the Ohio District of the National Flower Growers' Association was held at the Hotel Deshler, Columbus, January 24, with fully 200 florists present. During the year the membership in the Buckeye state increased from 87 to 155 and there are now 2,500,000 square feet of glass represented. One of the features was a talk by Max Schling, of New York, on "Flower Arrangement and Design," in which lantern slides were used to illustrate his various points. This talk was filled with interesting features and was followed by a number of questions. Thomas D. Miller, Detroit, Mich., of the laboratory division of the Consolidation Coal Co., of that city, spoke on "Coal—How to Specify, Buy and Test for Greenhouses." He urged summer buying declaring it not only better distributed the work of mining, but made cheaper coal because of more reasonable transportation during that time of the year.

J. Fred Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., founder and president of the national organization spoke at length on organization work. He demonstrated the good to be derived from the state and national associations. Prof. P. L. Lehenbauer, connected with the experimental station, University of Illinois, addressed the convention on "Fertilizers." He showed the general results of the use of fertilizers. A discussion of business conditions showed that flower growing business in all parts of the state is in good shape. Plans for expansions of plants to take care of increasing business are being made at many points.

Resolutions were adopted for changes in the constitution and by-laws in regard to dues. While no definite action was taken, the consensus of opinion was that some plans for equalizing the dues of the state association should be provided and a special committee consisting of George Bate, Cleveland chairman; E. M. Embeltz, Cincinnati; J. L. Schiller, Toledo and others were named to prepare amendments to the constitution and to submit it at the next meeting to be held in Cleveland, March 25-April 1 in conjunction with the National Flower Show.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: Walter J. Stephens, Columbus, president; L. F. Murphy, Cincinnati, first vice-president; J. L. Schiller, Toledo, second vice-president; J. C. Vineon, Cleveland, secretary and George Schiller, Cleveland, treasurer. Mr. Stephens takes the place of Carl Haenberger, West Mentor, who has been president since the founding of the state organization.

GRAND FORKS MEETING AND SHOW.

The annual meeting of the Tri-State Florists' Association, comprising the states of North Dakota, northern South Dakota and northwestern Minnesota, was held January 26 at the Frederick hotel, Grand Forks, N. D. The full membership of the association was present with two exceptions and it was generally declared by far the most successful meeting yet held.

At the annual banquet, which was held in the Blue room of the Frederick hotel there were 30 in attendance. Interesting talks were given by Ed. Goldenstein, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; B. F. Siebrecht, of Aberdeen, S. D., and Guy French, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago.

THE EXHIBITS.

The finest feature of the occasion was the flower show, which was held in connection with the meeting. Three gold bronze medals, offered by Max. Schling, New York, were given for the best exhibits in blooming plants, cut flowers and retail work. B. F. Siebrecht won first medal on the finest display of blooming plants, with an exceptionally good display of over 100 cyclamens. The Smedley Floral Co., Fargo, N. D., received first medal on cut flowers and also for the retail work.

The following exhibitors had space: Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York; B. F. Siebrecht, Shotwell Floral Co.; Smedley Floral Co., Fargo, N. D.; J. W. Briggs, Moorehead, Minn.; E. W. Schuster, Crookston, Minn.; McElroy's Flower Shop, Grand Forks, N. D.; Chicago Flower Growers' Association; E. C. Amling, Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago; C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, Wis.; American Bulb Co., Chicago, Ill.; O. R. Eckhardt Co., St. Paul, Minn., and the Lindsay Floral Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., were represented by W. Snyder and wife with the finest line of supplies yet brought here. Alan Humason & Co., Chicago, and O. R. Eckhardt Co., St. Paul, Minn., featured baskets and supplies.

The exhibition promises to be of far reaching benefit to all concerned, as approximately 1,500 persons viewed the display, which was the first flower show to be held in North Dakota and drew fine news write ups as well as editorial comments from the press. Local arrangements were in charge of T. P. McElroy, assisted by Mr. Lovell, of Lovell & Son, local florists.

Paul R. Klingsborn, of the Chicago Cut Flower Growers' Association, was in attendance, making a special trip from Chicago to meet the florists here.

The next meeting of the association will be held in Fargo on a date to be announced later, probably in June.

DECIDED SHORTAGE OF CUT FLOWERS.

Not in many years has there been such an acute shortage of cut flowers. Stock has jumped to almost prohibitive prices in the wholesale market, especially for roses and carnations. In fact these two items have commanded such high prices that many of the smaller stores in the outlying districts have dropped them altogether. This serious shortage is due largely to the unprecedented spell of very cold weather, which has existed since January 1. The intense cold has been general throughout the state and in many instances has been accompanied by polar winds. Much damage to various fruit crops is reported from all quarters. Every variety of rose is extremely short. Premier and Columbia are $3 to $4 a dozen for the best offerings. Mrs. Chas. Russell is hard to buy at any price. Hadley, Ophelia and Butterfly bring $8 to $10 per 100 for the shortest stock and almost as much as the larger varieties for medium quality. Short stock of all the foregoing varieties is in great demand but very little offered by growers. There is hardly any Cecile Brunner or Ward to be had at any price. Perhaps the most sensational jump of any flower is the carnation. First grade stock is now wholesaling from $8 to $9 per 100, which is perhaps the highest figures that this flower has ever sold for at this season of the year, in this market. Splits and poor stock go on sight at $4 per 100. While carnations are not as scarce as roses the shortage of the latter has made the call so strong that growers are now realizing handsome profits. Chrysanthemums from the Chinese district are now nearly at an end for this season.

Very good prices have been paid growers for this class of stock right up to the end. The weather continues to hold back the violet crop. Princess of Wales is particularly scarce and the Giant violet is being largely used. The demand is so heavy that growers are unable to take care of it. The shippers' strong buying of this flower keeps the supply here short.

NOTES.

A meeting of the Dahlia Society of California was held at the Palace hotel, January 26. Directors to serve during the coming year were elected and the auditing committee presented its yearly report. The past year has shown a steady growth in membership and the society is in a splendid position financially.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Wholesale Co-operative Flower Market was largely attended by growers and retailers. The report of the officers showed the corporation to be in a healthy financial condition. The progress made since the opening of the market last September has been most satisfactory and plans for expansion during the coming year were arranged.

Local newspapers have been giving much publicity to Luther Burbank's offering of novelties for the season of 1922. Among these is a new artichoke, a new strawberry, an improved variety of barley and a dwarf sunflower.

Friends of Emile Serveau will be pleased to learn that he is now enjoying better health than for a long time. He is still at his country home at Redwood City.

At the Western Evergreen Nursery several fine houses of Liliun giganteum are making a strong growth and Manager Roller says they will be used for the Easter trade. House after house of nephrolepis greet the visitor and all in perfect condition.

H. Plath says the Richmond Pottery, which is owned exclusively by plant growers of this vicinity, is being worked to capacity in order to catch up with orders.

Julius Eppstein, the St. Francis hotel florist, reports business as excellent in his shop. He is handling a fine grade of cattleyas these days and finds no difficulty in disposing of them at fancy prices.

Joseph Proietti, San Leandro, is beginning to cut daffodils from gardens on Washington avenue. He is probably one of the largest growers of narcissi and gladioli in the west for cut flower purposes. The soil here is ideally adapted to the growing of these bulbs and the mild temperature always brings them into the market very early.

One of the most attractive flower stores is the Belmont Florist, conducted by Dinucci Bros. It occupies a prominent corner at Fillmore and Washington streets and is fitted up with every modern convenience. Both the owners are always to the fore when there is any movement pending to improve trade conditions.

The Geneva Nursery, Caesare Hestani, proprietor, has become a large factor in the cut adiantum and asparagus supply of this market. His large range at 798 Geneva avenue also contains a great variety of pot plants. The aspleniums grown at these greenhouses for the Christmas trade have seldom been excelled in any market.

N. J. Ausbro is now proprietor of the Royal Florist at 1563 Polk street.

The Nelligan Sisters have disposed of their flower store on Sutter street and will retire from business permanently.

JAMES T. LYNCH.

WOODSFIELD, O.—J. M. Bishop & Son, florists, has been discontinued as a firm and the style of the business hereafter will be Bishop Greenhouses, with J. M. Bishop, proprietor.

THE S. A. F.

Additional Directors.

Owing to a misunderstanding, the official application of the Michigan State Florists' Association was not at hand when the appointees under the by-laws governing affiliation were announced, although qualifications were more than satisfactory. President Pennock, therefore, confirms the appointment of S. W. Coggan, Battle Creek, Mich., president of the association, and he takes his seat accordingly.

National Publicity Campaign.

A meeting of the publicity committee was held at the greater Bond Hotel, Hartford, Conn., January 25. Secretary Young presented a financial report of the campaign showing conditions in detail. The result was that with the amount of funds found available the committee was able to enter into contracts covering a resumption of magazine advertising for publicity for flowers. Details in regard to these contracts, giving the names of the magazines and the date of insertion of the different advertisements will be published next week.

The secretary was also authorized to publish once each month a report covering expenses and expenditures. These reports will also be printed and distributed to the members of the Society and the contributors to the fund, together with copies of the advertisements to be used under the advertising contracts closed.

Local bodies and allied associations undertaking local advertising campaigns are requested to send copies of their advertisements to the secretary, so that the work of all these bodies may be made familiar to our committee.

OBITUARY.

Phillip L. Carbone.

Phillip L. Carbone, florist of Boston, Mass., died at his home in that city after a long illness, January 30, age 54 years. He was educated at Derby academy, Hingham, Mass., and later took a course in horticulture at the Bussey institute of the Arnold arboretum.

Mr. Carbone's first place of business was a small flower stand which he opened in 1894, in the Women's Educational and Industrial union, on Boylston street, Boston, following this later with a small flower store on the same street and a large shop in Harvard square, Cambridge, which he operated for 10 years. After giving up this establishment he moved twice into larger quarters and had one of the finest flower shops in the country, at 338 Boylston street, Boston.

Early in life Mr. Carbone conceived the idea of importing pottery vases, baskets, etc., from Italy and other European countries, to use with flowers and plants, which proved very effective when combined with them. The business was incorporated in recent years. The wholesale department which sells the imported vases to florists and art shops the country over, is in itself a large and important business and it is no exaggeration to say that Mr. Carbone's ideas in the use of hand craft wares in conjunction with flowers practically revolutionized the flower business of the country.

William A. Lankford.

William Addison Lankford, a prominent florist of Charlottesville, Va., passed away at his home in that city, January 12, age 64 years, following a stroke of paralysis. He was born at Mason City, Md.

In 1902 Mr. Lankford purchased 30 acres of land and gradually developed one of the best known and largest wholesale greenhouse and growing enterprises in the state. Besides catering to a large and increasing patronage in cut flowers and pot plants he specialized in raising irises, peonies and gladioli for the southern and northern wholesale markets, many acres being devoted to the culture of these plants. As his business expanded, Mr. Lankford opened a branch distributing store on Main street, Charlottesville, which developed to be a center for flower lovers. He took a lively interest in civic affairs and was popular and respected in the community.

The funeral services were held from the First Methodist Episcopal Church, South, January 15, interment being in Oakwood cemetery. Besides his widow Mr. Lankford is survived by his daughter, Mrs. E. D. Campbell and three grand children.

Mrs. Julius Ludwig.

It is with regret that we announce the recent death of Mrs. Julius Ludwig, wife of Julius Ludwig of the Ludwig Floral Co. She had been ill for some time and it was decided that an operation was necessary, from which she never recovered.

Mrs. Ludwig was a member of several lodges and clubs and was known as a tireless worker in the interest of all of them. Mr. Ludwig has the sympathy of all the Pittsburgh trade in his loss.

John N. Callas.

John N. Callas, well known florist of Kansas City, Mo., died at his home in that city January 26, aged 35 years. He was born in Greece in 1886 and came to Kansas City six years ago, opening a flower shop on Twelfth street, between Main and Walnut streets.

Mr. Callas is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ruby K. Callas, a son, Nicholas, and a daughter, Katherine.

THE second edition of the "Book of the Gladiolus," by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, with valuable addenda, is now ready.

THE interchangeable mileage book railroad law has passed the senate. Books good for 1,000 or 5,000 miles are to be issued.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—D. Lumsden, former horticulturist at Cornell university, Ithica, N. Y., is now with the federal horticultural board here, in the department of special permits.

THE University of Maryland, College Park, is mailing an instructive card, dealing with chrysanthemum midge, telling how the pest can be recognized and the methods to curtail its ravages. It is just the thing for the grower in the greenhouse.

Personal.

H. Plath, the well known San Francisco florist, will sail for Europe the coming summer, via the Panama canal.

Society of American Florists.

AGRICULTURAL CONFERENCE.

The Society of American Florists was represented at the Agricultural Conference in Washington, D. C., recently by President S. S. Pennock and James McHutchison, chairman of the tariff and legislative committee. The nurserymen were represented by Edw. Moon, past president of the American Association of Nurserymen. The conference was opened by President Harding, with Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture as temporary chairman and Congressman Anderson, of Minnesota, as permanent chairman.

The subjects to be considered were planned by the Department of Agriculture, and general committees each with several sub-committees were arranged, the primary object being to alleviate and find remedies for the distress now existing among the farming interests. The delegates were allotted to the committees and sub-committees in advance, which gave critics reason to say that the conference was called partly to give the administration a vote of confidence by the farming interests and block the agricultural bloc in congress.

With such urgent national subjects pressing for a solution, we did not think it advisable to inject our particular grievances or problems into the conference, with the exception of demanding through the sub-committee compensation to florists and nurserymen for any stock destroyed or not allowed shipment by federal laws or regulations but this was turned down by the general committee under the plea that it was a subject for the state legislatures.

The grievances and problems of florists and the allied interests caused by federal laws are subjects for conference with the federal horticultural board and the Department of Agriculture officials, and what these men want in order to help us is constructive guidance rather than criticism.

J. M. McHUTCHISON, Chairman.
Tariff and Legislative Committee.

Parcel Post Special Delivery.

There need be little fear of the Steenerson bill providing for the withdrawal of parcel post special delivery privileges. This bill has stirred up so much opposition in the business world that members of congress have gained the impression that it is better to let the service alone and see what can be done to improve it. This information is made manifest in a statement just issued by Wm. F. Gude, national representative of the Society of American Florists.

Although still laid up with a broken ankle, Mr. Gude has found it possible to keep in touch with national affairs. On a stand at his bedside is a telephone and the line is kept busy all day either with inquiries as to his condition or in ascertaining the lay of the land. No legislation of late has attracted as much attention on the part of the florists as has this bill.

Thousands of letters have come to Washington addressed to the members of congress from all parts of the country and from men in all classes of business, protesting against the legislation. It was not the usual propaganda, but individual protests from men who knew what the result of the legislation would be insofar as their individual businesses were concerned. Mr. Gude also has been able to acquaint many of his friends with the situation and the following statement is based on his investigation:

"I have learned on good authority that there is little likelihood of further action being taken on the proposal of the Postmaster General, as carried out in the Steenerson bill, that the existing special delivery service on parcel post packages be discontinued.

"As a result of the publicity given this proposal in the several florist trade papers an avalanche of protests has swept down upon congress and was successful in blocking the consideration of the measure when it came up in the house recently. Of course, there is never any telling when legislation may be railroaded through, but I have every reasonable assurance that the bill will be permitted to stay quiet pending further investigation.

"I have been able to convey to a number of prominent members of congress the views of the florist trade and the effect a curtailment of the special delivery service would have upon it. They have agreed with me that it would be a very undesirable piece of legislation so far as they are concerned. The bill has a few friends in the house, but the florists have more, all of which leads me to believe that there will be no such legislation passed this session.

"It might be well, however, for those florists who have not informed their congressmen of their views on this subject to do so, just to show them the interest there is in this proposition, and the objections that all florists have to it."

Fallon Acquires O'Quinn Business.

The J. J. Fallon Co., of Lynchburg, Va., recently acquired the establishment of J. L. O'Quinn & Co., of Raleigh, N. C. The plant consists of 100,000 square feet under glass and growing stocks of roses, carnations, sweet peas, numerous other flowers and pot plants. The flower stores at Raleigh, Durham and Fayetteville, N. C., and numerous agencies in North Carolina and South Carolina are also included in the sales. This large addition to the facilities of the Fallon company will give them an excellent opportunity to render efficient service in the cities mentioned.

The style of the business is the J. J. Fallon Co., Successors to J. L. O'Quinn & Co.

Iris Conference and Show.

An international iris exhibition and conference is to be held in Paris, France, about May 27, to celebrate the centenary of the first varieties of garden irises raised in that country by M. de Bures. Full information can be obtained from the Secretary, Iris Commission, 84 Rue de Grenelle, Paris, which will be in session from April to July, when flowers will be examined twice each month.

Weather Forecast.

E. Bollinger, the weather seer of Lake Forest, Ill., says there will be plenty of sunshine before Easter, with prevailing winds from the south and southwest and west to north-west. The present cold wave, he thinks, will be the most severe of the season.

Indiana State Florists.

The February meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, will be held with the Smith & Young Co., Indianapolis, Tuesday, February 7, at 8 p. m.

STOCK MOVES SLOWLY.

The variety and quality of the stock arriving has not been equaled for many months and it moves well. Bulbous stock and cut flowers are improving right along, due to a certain extent to the mild weather of early January. Roses are the principal items and are in heavy supply. American Beauty moves slowly and Premier is the best seller, followed by Columbia Crusader, and Mrs. Chas. Russell. Milady is on the short side but sells well which also holds true for Ophelia, Sunburst and Butterfly. White Killarney is the only kind of that color on the market and the offerings are sufficient for all purposes. Carnations are arriving in excellent condition and all colors are obtainable, pinks and whites seeming to be the best. Some Laddie is obtainable bringing $15 per 100. Lily of the valley is plentiful cleans up daily, due mainly to the demand for corsages. Cut tulips in yellows and deep reds are being displayed prominently in many of the shops, in artistic made-up baskets. Cut hyacinths are on the market in fine condition, but the pot plants are not obtainable as yet. Paper White and Soleil d'Or narcissi are gradually increasing in supply and meet with good sales. The former bring $5 and the latter $8 per 100. Lilium rubrum is scarce but callas appear to be easily obtainable. There is a good call for sweet peas and violets, the latter bringing 50 cents per bunch of 40 blooms, and the same can be said for calendulas and cattleyas, the latter bringing $2 per bloom. Cypridiums are in excellent shape but do not seem to move well. Cyclamens and begonias of the Glorie de Lorraine type are plentiful and move well. The supply and quality of Primula obconica and P. malacoides is fine and they clean up of trees, overhung with Spanish moss, gave the show a semi-tropical setting. The cypripediums, in pots, were depressed in the leaves to such an extent that it gave the effect that the plants were growing out of the ground. Lalea-cattleyas, brasso-cattleyas, phalaenopsis, dendrobiums and many other groups were represented.

ST. LOUIS DISTRICT MEETING.

The St. Louis District of the National Flower Growers' Association held its annual meeting at the Hotel Claridge, this city, January 17, with 36 members in attendance. A change was made in the by-laws, in reference to dues. A flat rate of $10 per year is now charged, instead of $1 for every 1,000 square feet under glass. At the conclusion of the business session those present enjoyed automobile rides to the larger establishments in the city.

The following officers were re-elected: Walter A. Amling, Pana, Ill., president; W. J. Pilcher, first vice-president; M. Plexam, second vice-president. The secretary and treasurer will be elected at the February meeting of the executive board.

NOTES.

A beautiful window display recently featured the Fred C. Weber store. Vases of cut cyclamens, calendulas and primroses were placed on a box draped with purple and gold velvet, being illuminated at night with an electric spot light. Blooms of Cattleya trianae, gigas and Laddie carnations are popular.

Miss M. S. Newman is disposing of some excellent Laddie carnations, Sunburst roses and cypripediums. Sweet peas of all shades are seen there as well as good snapdragons.

The Foster Floral Co. recently moved from its location at 235 North Seventh street, discontinuing its former establishment.

Attractive baskets of snapdragons, Milady roses, lavender sweet peas were seen, recently at the Mullanphy Floral Co.

The Waldbart Floral Co. is displaying plants of Primula obconica, cyclamens and Scotch heathers in its windows.

A lively trade is reported by Fred G. Weber. Paper White narcissi, daffodils, and hyacinths are leaders.

Grimm & Gorly report a fine trade in begonias, cyclamens, and primulas, in pots.

A good business is reported by the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co.

The Ayres Floral Co. shop is beautiful with various colored flowers.

STOCK IS MORE PLENTIFUL.

Stock is more plentiful at this writing but is in fair demand and is cleaning up well at good prices. American Beauty roses are in fair supply and find ready buyers. Roses are good property and while prices have dropped somewhat the market is holding quite firm on this item but there appears to be a gradual weakening in sight. The quality of the roses in general is of the highest and the offerings include Premier, Columbia, Crusader, Butterfly, Sunburst, Milady, Mrs. Chas. Russell, Montrose, My Maryland, Victor, Golden Rule, Hearst, Double White Killarney, Hoosier Beauty, Nesbit, Cecile Brunner and Phantom. Carnations are more plentiful but are moving well considering the increased supply of bulbous stock arriving. Orchids are arriving in large numbers and exceptionally fine cattleyas are obtainable at attractive prices. Lily of the valley is in good supply and is selling at lower prices than for many months. Sweet peas are in heavier supply but are holding their own. Callas are seen in fair sized quantities at a few of the stores but the receipts of lilies do not appear to be as heavy. Freesias, tulips and jonquils are quite a factor in the market and while at times they appear to be plentiful they are not in any great over supply at this writing. Paper White narcissi, calendulas, stevias, pansies, snapdragon, cut hyacinths, mignonette, daisies, euphorbia, heather, statice and other miscellaneous stock is obtainable including pussy willows. Greens are in good supply. Business has been rather quiet the past few weeks but the demand is improving and is almost keeping pace with the increased supply of stock. Valentine orders are being booked and while plenty of stock is expected for this occasion it is just as well to place orders immediately.

NOTES.

The Florists' Club will hold its annual novelty show at the Hotel Randolph, Thursday evening, February 9, at 8 o'clock. Growers having new roses, carnations or other items of interest are cordially invited to exhibit and are requested to send all shipments, express prepaid, to arrive not later than 8 o'clock to Chicago Florists' Club, c/o Hotel Randolph, 175 West Randolph street, Chicago.

CHICAGO

George Asmus, chairman of the National Flower Show committee, returned from the east this week, having stopped off at Cleveland to find prospects for the big exhibition, March 25-April 1, more promising than ever. Incidentally he celebrated his fiftieth birthday anniversary at the home of Frank Traendly in Brooklyn, N. Y., January 24, a large number of floricultural celebrities being present for the occasion, later calling on the Dailedouze brothers.

Allie Zech, Matt Mann, T. E. Waters and James Morton started for the smoker of the North Shore Horticultural Society at Lake Forest, the evening of January 31, in Mr. Zech's auto, but the machine broke down at Wilmette, and the party had to return.

William Snyder, of Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s supply department, is calling on the trade in the west, principally in the Pacific Coast states. J. F. Wustenhoff is now on the road for this firm with the middle western states for his territory.

Harry Conn, proprietor of the Englewood Florist Shop, 341 West Sixty-

Be sure that the name MEYER is on every spool of green Florists thread that you are buying, and you will get the original and best green Florists thread on the market. A great many of the salesmen on the road and the Florists' supply houses are substituting a cheap and inferior green Florists thread to take the place of the Meyer Green Silkline and Florists' thread.

Therefore, if you cannot get the real article, send the goods back and order direct from the manufacturer and you will get the best. Guaranteed two ounces of actual thread to the spool, 16 ounces to the pound.

third street, will have his store fronted with enameled brick as soon as the weather permits.

The J. A. Budlong Co. is supplying its trade with fancy sweet peas in addition to its regular line of stocks. Lily of the valley is a big item at this house.

The Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co. is making very satisfactory progress in the re-adjustment of its plant, having been favored by mild weather.

Bassett & Washburn are having their share of business this year and were fortunate in having a heavy crop of roses during the shortage.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is strong on bulbous flowers in addition to a complete line of all other seasonable stocks.

Illinois State Florists' Association.

The Illinois State Florists' Association will hold its annual meeting and exhibition at Urbana, Tuesday, March 14, and among many matters to be taken up, there will be several important changes voted upon in the constitution, which are as follows:

Section 4 to be amended by striking out the word one and inserting the word, three, and striking out the word, ten, and inserting the word twenty-five, to read as follows: "Section 4.—The membership shall consist of annual members paying an annual fee of $3; life members paying at one time a fee of $25 and honorary members without fees. The fiscal year shall begin January 1 and end December 31."

Section 8 to be amended by striking out the word, third, and inserting the word, second, and striking out the word, February, and inserting the word, March and adding the word, in Urbana; striking out the words, "at which time the place of next meeting shall be decided by a majority vote of the members present," to read: "The association shall hold its annual meeting and exhibition on the second Tuesday of March in Urbana. Ten members shall constitute a quorum."

The above is considered a due and legal notice to the members of the association, the changes having been prepared by the committee on by-laws. Action on the above changes will be taken at the annual meeting to be held in Urbana, March 14.

HEAVY SUPPLY SELLS WELL.

Market conditions here the past week have been good. Stock is arriving in larger quantities and moves well, because of the unusual amount of funeral work. Roses are still the scarcest flower and range in price from $12 to $35 per 100 for Premier and Columbia, and from $10 to $30 per 100 for Ophelia, Killarney and Butterfly. Bulbous stock is in heavy supply and moves well because of its earliness. Freesia is the poorest seller in this class. Lilies of both calla and Easter arrive in limited numbers and sell readily at $20 to $25 per 100. Carnations are holding their own but have dropped a little in price. Sweet peas are showing the effects of a few days of sunshine and are coming in larger shipments. Miscellaneous stock, including lily of the valley, violets, primulas and forget-me-nots sell well because of their scarcity. A number of large orders for southern smilax were filled by the local wholesalers recently.

NOTES.

This city will have the honor to entertain the delegates to the annual exhibition and meeting of the American Rose Society and the American Carnation Society, as well as the convention of the National Flower Growers' Association, in January, 1923.

An excellent business in telegraph orders is reported by H. W. Sheppard, who was recently elected vice-president of the American Carnation Society.

A lively trade is reported by R. D. Ruttle, Covington, Ky., and his buyer, Jos. Grim is very active in the local market.

Window displays have attracted considerable attention at E. A. Forter's establishment, recently.

Geo. Meyers, of the Avondale Floral Co., has completely recovered from an attack of the gripe.

Choice snapdragons and Purity freesias are being received by C. E. Critchel.

J. Baer reports general business conditions good.

Visitors: Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Harry Calisch, New York. G. K.

Boston, Mass.

NO IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS.

The market this week showed no appreciable change in regard to the amount of local business, the buying of the retailers not amounting to more than 20 per cent of the total sales at present. The bulk of the stock arriving at present, aside from bulbs, is consumed by the shipping trade and this keeps the market fairly clear and also stops much fluctuation in prices. Roses strengthened somewhat over last week's prices though this is neutralized by the sharp drop in the price of bulbs. Jonquils and freesias are not moving so freely and consequently they have declined considerably in price. In the main, business is exceptionally quiet, with buyers cautious and hesitant.

NEW ENGLAND FLORISTS' ALLIANCE.

At the meeting held at the City Club, January 28, to form a New England florists' alliance similar to that now in vogue in Chicago and other western cities, the attendance was large and apparently enthusiastic. The principal speakers were Geo. Asmus, Chicago and J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill. They certainly gave very interesting talks and also lucid and very glowing reports of what the alliance has done in the west by co-operative advertising.

The writer's personal feeling in the matter is that it will be a failure unless the growers who are strongly in favor of it take a very decided stand and force their individual commission men to also become members of the alliance. This they seemed very reluctant to do at the meeting except in a few scattered cases. It seems too bad that an opportunity of this kind can be aborted by a few selfish individuals. The formation of the alliance is expected to

STOCK MOVES WELL.

The scarcity of roses here is very noticeable and is far below the supply of last year. While there are always some roses that sell more rapidly than others, the growers find no trouble in disposing of any of them now. The extreme cold weather is partly responsible for the scarcity. Sweet peas are not very plentiful, as the growers are having difficulty with dropping buds. Quite a few daffodils are now to be had and some tulips and hyacinths are now in bloom. Cinerarias and cyclamens are quite plentiful and the stock is very good. There are quantities of excellent ferns reasonably priced when considering the size and quality. Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri sell very well.

This section of the country recently experienced some very cold weather, the thermometer registering as low as 11 degrees below zero.

The Miller Floral Co. of Farmington, has a large supply of good cyclamens. They are probably the best to be had in this part of the country. Frank Robinson is traveling in the southern part of the state in the interest of the company.

HOSPITAL AND FUNERAL TRADE FEATURES.

The offerings of flowers do not vary much from day to day, except carnations which were very plentiful for two or three days, the best grades wholesaling at $6 per 100. Narcissi are in liberal supply and are largely used in funeral work. Roses are none to plentiful and they clean up daily. Sweet peas are arriving in heavier quantities and the quality has greatly improved due to the bright weather. Freesias, tulips, calendulas, Liliun rubrum, callas, snapdragons and violets attract the eye of the buyers because they greatly relieve the monotony of carnations and roses. Pot plants of Primula obconica, baby primroses, cyclamens, heathers, begonias and pans of tulips are going rapidly, especially for hospital and funeral work. The wholesale market reports business brisk with shortages on some days and the retailers find a remarkable call for hospital and funeral work.

NOTES.

It is with the deepest regret that we announce the death of John N. Callas, Twelfth street florist. See obituary column for further particulars. Shortly after his death, while Mrs. Callas was making the funeral arrangements down town, her automobile was stolen and found later in the country, burned up.

The Misses Grace and James Murray, at 212 East Tenth street, who have been in America 30 years applied for citizenship papers at the United States District court January 27. They intend to vote at the coming city election.

The annual convention of the Missouri State Nurserymen's Association, held here January 24, will be found fully covered elsewhere in this issue.

A. F. Barbee has given Lord & Burnham the contract for his new show house, 30½x122 feet, to be completed about August 1.

W. S. Puffer, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, was in the city this week, attending the nurserymen's meeting.

OVERSUPPLY OF STOCK.

Zero weather for several days the past week followed by a blinding snow-storm on Saturday, interfered very materially with business, so much so that the wholesalers' storage boxes were so filled that much stock had to be carried over. From the great scarcity of two weeks ago, there is now more than sufficient to supply the demand and all of excellent quality. Prices have fallen at least 20 per cent in nearly all lines, but this appears to have little effect on buyers, who say the demand is so light they are not encouraged to lay in stock. Something will have to be done soon to start things moving, as each succeeding week will add 20 per cent to the volume of the shipments.

HARTFORD VISITORS.

The members of the trade from this section who attended the carnation convention at Hartford, Conn., were S. S. Pennock, A. M. Campbell, E. J. Fancourt, Wm. Geiger, Edward N. Kroninger, John Andre, O. J. Sawyer and John F. Horn. All were delighted with the allied exhibition and their fine reception by the Hartford florists.

A fine display of cut flower arrangements in valentines, corsages, baskets, etc., is promised at the meeting of the Florists' Club, Tuesday, February 7, as a compliment to Geo. E. M. Stumpp, the prominent New York retailer, who is to address the club on "How to Sell Flowers."

J. J. Karins, of Henry A. Dreer's, J. P. McCarthy, of the M. Rice Co., and H. J. Geiger, of the Jos. G. Neidinger Co., are making western trips.

CARNATION SUPPLY INCREASES.

There has been very little change in the market since last week, the only noted change being an increase in the supply of carnations and bulbous stock which brought a drop in the price of both. Business has been slow with the retailer; the principal call is for funeral work and not much of that. With the exception of short and medium roses, the wholesale houses are able to fill all orders. The weather has been extremely cold for a week, which has helped to slow up business, as the people have not come out during the cold snap. Roses in the shorter lengths are still scarce, but those willing to pay the price can usually find a few fancy ones when needed. The supply of lilies has not increased to any extent and clean up daily at $25 per 100. Carnations are more plentiful and with a week of bright weather there should be plenty for everyone at more reasonable prices. Bulbous stock is coming in heavy and includes Paper White, Golden Spur narcissi, tulips, both single and double, and freesia, which find a ready market with the exception of Paper Whites, and these are hard to move at a decent price. Sweet peas are in demand and still command fancy prices. Calla lilies clean up daily and many more could be used were they obtainable. Yellow daisies, calendulas, baby primroses, and pussy willows are arriving in quantity and sell well. Lily of the valley moves slowly, even at reduced prices. Violets are in the same class and from all reports this business here is a thing of the past. The retail stores are all preparing for a banner St. Valentine Day's business, and from all reports stock will be plentiful, and if this is the case, with the proper advertising there is no reason why it should not be as large as in former years, but it is going to take publicity to do it.

NOTES.

Gass & Grabert have opened a new seed store with salesrooms at 119 Federal street, and warehouses at 601 Gettysburg street and 525 Suisman street. Both Mr. Gass and Mr. Grabert are old seedsmen and have a large following. The trade wishes them luck in their new venture.

The A. W. Smith Co. is specializing in gold fish and canaries and is handling the largest stock of both of any firm in this section. They captured practically all the prizes at the recent aquarium show held at the North Side conservatories, in West park.

BULBOUS STOCK IN GOOD DEMAND.

The cold wave of the past week, which seems to have been quite impartial in its visitations throughout this section of the country, had a rather depressing effect on business. This city escaped the severe weather that our friends up-state, Vermont and other New England states had to endure, but the thermometer got near enough to the zero mark. There was some relief in the sunshine that was general until the afternoon of January 27 but snow began to fall at noon, January 28, and the end is not in sight at this writing. On account of the clear days during the early part of the week the supply of stock was not greatly reduced but there was a falling off which was about balanced by a lighter demand. The majority of the retail stores reported funeral work as the leading feature of the trade. There was the usual steady call for roses of the shorter grades, but special stock in teas was slow. American Beauty is in light supply. Considering weather conditions it is not surprising that the prices on roses and carnations continue firm. This is not violet weather and in any event, if an occasional large order for funeral work is excepted, are slow propositions. Cattleyas continue unusually cheap for the season and are more preferable than violets for corsages. There is always a demand for carnations, but the best grade of flowers is held at $12 to $15 per 100 and moves slowly. Excepting roses, for which there is constant demand, the greatest activity seems to be centered in tulips, narcissi and freesias, all apparently in fair supply. As minor features, mignonettes, bouvardias, snapdragons and cut primulas are worthy of mention.

January 30.—Business is about normal for the first of the week. January 29-30 brought a heavy fall of snow, but not enough to seriously injure traffic, as 8,000 men were put to work on the streets. There is a moderate temperature and good sunshine today.

HARTFORD VISITORS.

A large delegation left the Grand Central station, January 25, for the Hartford, Conn. exhibition and convention. It included Geo. Asmus, Chicago; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; I. S. Hendrickson, Flowerfield, N. Y.; Frank Abrams, Blue Point, N. Y.; John Canning, Ardsley, N. Y.; L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J.; Anthony Ruszicka, Chatham, N. J.; Oscar Boehler, West Hoboken, N. J.; Peter Beurlein, Westwood, N. J.; Robt. Simpson, Clifton, N. J.; Leonard Barron, Garden City, N. Y.; John Young, Frank H. Traendly, Roman J. Irwin, C. W. Scott, Chas. Schwake, W. C. Rickards, Jr., Herman Weiss, Paul Rigo, Maurice Glass, A. T. Boddington, Edw. Brenner, Aubrey Nash, Jos. A. Millang, J. Speelman, Chas. H. Totty, Wm. Duckham, Henry Hession, E. J. Hession, W. P. Ford and A. E. Booth, all of this city. A. M. Henshaw left for Hartford, January 24.

NOTES.

As a diversion and a topic of interest the exhibition and convention of the American Carnation Society, the American Rose Society, Hartford Florists' Club and the National Flower Growers' Association, at Hartford, Conn., were to the front during the past week. From this city and vicinity about 50 attended, including growers, wholesalers and seedsmen. All that have returned, at this writing, speak highly of the show, banquet and general hospitality that greeted them at that city. But if they want to see Hartford at its best they should visit it any time from June to September. Its parks, particularly the rose garden of Elizabeth park, its many fine homes and their grounds are particularly noteworthy. We learn there is talk of a movement to take the Society of American Florists' convention there in 1923. We are in hearty accord, for the convention could not go to a more suitable place.

At the M. C. Ford shop we have noticed a fine vase of the new rose, Celestial, grown by Myers & Santman, Chestnut Hill, Pa. It has large buds, short stems and is a delicate pink shade, with a pleasing perfume.

Jos. A. Millang, who was at Hartford, is so enthusiastic that he says that more New Yorkers should have gone there as they might have learned something.

There was a serious fire in the range of H. Richmond, Staten Island, January 25. The range comprised 20,000 square feet under glass and half of it was destroyed.

A. M. Henshaw was planning to sail for England, January 28, to visit relatives and take care of some business matters.

President Edward McCarthy, of James Weir, Inc., Brooklyn, is spending a month at Pinehurst, N. C.

ACTIVE DEMAND FOR FLOWERS.

Reports from various retailers show the floral business to be rather brisk. It is believed that trade is fully as good as could be expected under the circumstances and a general improvement is anticipated during the coming few months. Preparations have been made for St. Valentine's Day and indications point to a better business than usual. Funeral and party work has been active since the first of the year. Corsages have been selling better and the demand for loose flowers has also been lively. Roses, carnations, violets, narcissi and tulips are the principal flowers in the market at present. Roses are somewhat scarce and retail from $4 to $8 per dozen. Narcissi are selling around $2 per bunch while violets bring $2.50. Some lilies, sweet peas, tulips and other varieties are arriving for the first time and the quality is generally good.

NOTES.

The greenhouses on West Broadway, North, which were operated by Jessie C. Martin, and which were sold at a sheriff's sale some time ago, have been purchased by Miss Jessie C. Martin, the former proprietor who is operating them at this time. Miss Martin is an experienced grower and she is assured of success with the liabilities of the old concern off her hands.

McKeller the Florist had a number of table decorations at the Deshler hotel and other places, recently. Sorority dances were numerous during the latter part of January and many were held at the hotels. Mr. McKellar says funeral work is especially active. Stocks, which have been rather scarce are more plentiful now.

Walter Stephans of S. F. Stephans & Son reports business at the greenhouses operated by his concern as good. The concern is now cutting narcissi, tulips, jonquils and white miniature hyacinths. Funeral work has been rather brisk. Mr. Stephans believes that trade will continue to improve.

Wm. Metzmaier, of Emil Matzmaier, a grower at 1384 South Fourth street, states a stronger demand for flowers of all kinds is noted. The company is cutting narcissi, hyacinths and tulips. Prospects are good for an excellent supply of bulbous flowers later on.

The Franklin Park Floral Co. has been quite busy during the latter part of January cutting roses, carnations, narcissi and other seasonable flowers, which sell readily.

The Riverside Floral Co., 537 North High street, reports a good trade.

QUIET TONE IN MARKET.

Business has been somewhat quiet the last week but flowers are none too plentiful. Roses are scarce and bring $4 to $8 per dozen retail. Carnations, however, appear to be plentiful and the same can be said for white narcissi. Cyclamens continue to lead in plants and primulas are arriving, being obtainable in any color. Freesias, also, are more numerous. Funeral work, at the present time, is the standby of the trade.

Car lots of country timothy seed reached the highest price for several months. Some holders are now willing to let go after carrying the seed two years.

BOSTON, MASS.—John Fottler, of the Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., who was injured by collision with a wagon last fall, is still confined to his home. He sits in an easy chair most of the time, not being able to use his legs. In other respects, he is enjoying good health, and will probably be able to come to the store when the weather grows warmer.

ROBT. FULTON, of Robt. Fulton & Co., Yokohama, Japan, says he does not expect Japanese bulbs will be any cheaper or more plentiful the coming season, than they were the past season. Mr. Fulton and wife are in Chicago this week, for the first time in seven years, having arrived on the Pacific Coast with their family early in January. The family is at San Diego, Calif.

VISITED CHICAGO: Chas. P. Guelf, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y.; C. W. Scott, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., New York; Roy Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif., and wife; Geo. W. Kerr, representing the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; A. Luck, representing S. M. Isbell & Co., Jackson, Mich.; Morrell Lion, of Fosgate & Lion, Mountain View, Calif.; Robert Fulton, of Robt. Fulton & Co., Yokohama, Japan, and wife.

Field Seeds.

No improvement in the demand for field seeds was noted during the second week of January and prices remained at approximately the same level. A few markets were quoting red and alsike clover 25 to 50 cents per 100 pounds higher, but others were offering these seeds at lower prices than the previous week. Timothy, redtop, and Kentucky bluegrass prices were firm but mostly unchanged.

Red clover prices continued to show a premium of about $4 over those for alsike clover and the relative demand for each at present seems to be about equal. Some seedsmen with small stocks of red clover are averse to purchasing additional supplies until they are certain that the quantity available for exportation from Europe is small. Italy is anxious to sell stocks which have accumulated from last year, but there is not much disposition on the part of the majority of the leading American importers to buy red clover seed from that source at this particular time. During the week ending January 14 about 110,700 pounds of red clover from Germany and 51,700 pounds of alfalfa from Argentina arrived at New York, subject to the seed importation act.

Although the white clover seed crop for 1921 was much below normal, prices are somewhat below the average because of the largest importations of this seed ever recorded. During the six and one-half months ending January 15, 1922, there was permitted entry 1,266,900 pounds, compared with only 44,100 pounds for the same period a year ago and 979,041 pounds for the 12 months ending June 30, 1913, which was the largest quantity ever imported up to the current fiscal year.

The export demand for timothy is only fair, while that for redtop and Kentucky bluegrass is fair to good. Prices for each of these were considered firmer than a week ago and some of the larger seedsmen were quoting them a little higher on their weekly price cards. In sympathy with these grasses, Canada bluegrass, orchard grass, and Italian and perennial rye grass prices are firm. Foreign correspondents indicate that surplus stocks of rye grasses are smaller than usual, but the American demand for them is not generally large. The imports of both perennial and Italian rye grass have been larger than normal and seedsmen's stocks are considered to be fully normal.

Although millets and sorgos continue to be neglected by most seedsmen, a small movement to southern consuming sections is reported and millet seed prices have become better established. In the most important jobbing centers golden millet is being offered at $1.85 to $2; common at $1.50 to $1.80; Siberian at $1.70 to $1.80; Hungarian at $2.10 to $2.75; Japanese at $4.25 to $4.75; and broom-corn millet at $1.75 to $2 per 100 pounds. Amber and orange sorgo are being quoted mostly at about $1.75 and $1.85 per 100 pounds, respectively. Sumac sorgo prices are the same as or five to 10c higher than those for the orange variety.

White kafir for seed purposes is being offered mostly at about $1.50 per 100 pounds; red kafir at $2; milo and feterita at $1.75 to $2. Prices for these grain sorghums for feed purposes were considerably lower than the foregoing.

Rapeseed prices were fairly stable despite the arrival at New York during the week of 253,000 pounds of this seed from Holland. The imports during the past six and one-half months have been somewhat above the average and seedsmen's stocks are believed to be normal or above.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—C. B. Whitnall has been appointed secretary of the city land commission here, at a salary of $300 per month.

THE citrus fruit belt of California had temperature as low as 10 above, freezing oranges solid in some sections, the damage averaging 25 per cent.

FRESNO, CALIF.—The Central Nursery was recently incorporated with a capital of $20,000. T. Kimura, N. Kobayashi and I. W. Nielsen, all of this city, are the incorporators.

Western Association of Nurserymen.

KANSAS CITY MEETING, JANUARY 25-26.

The thirty-second annual convention of the Western Association of Nurserymen was held at the Hotel Baltimore, Kansas City, Mo., January 25-26, with an attendance of more than 100 members. After calling the meeting to order, President E. H. Smith, of York, Neb., stated that he did not anticipate any general reduction in prices for nursery stock, due principally to importation being cut off from Europe since the war and a scarcity of root stocks. "The Immediate Future of the Nursery Business," was ably handled by Henry Chase, of Chase, Ala. Chas. Sizemore, traffic manager of the American Association of Nurserymen, Louisiana, Mo., spoke of "Transportation, Overcharge, Loss and Damage Claims," and was followed by John Watson, Princeton, N. J., who delivered an instructive paper on "The Small Orchard versus the Commercial Orchard."

At Thursday's sessions "Renewing Land, Cultivation, Labor Saving Tools, Etc.," was presented by Homer Reed. Other papers read were: "The Future of Orcharding," by G. C. Marshall, Arlington, Neb.; "How We Handle Our Retail Orders," by E. M. Sherman, Charles City, Ia.; "Average Number of Marketable Fruit Trees Produced in Proportion to Number of Stocks and Grafts Planted in the United States Outside of the Pacific Slope," by Bert Lake; "How an Agent Can be Optimistic and Sell the Goods When His Customers Are Pessimists," by M. R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn.; "Co-operation Between Nurserymen," by E. H. Balco; "Home Made Fruit Trees," by Lloyd Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; "Grades and Proper Packing of Nursery Stock," by E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.

A very interesting report of the latest developments in propagating American grown fruit tree seedlings was presented by J. H. Skinner, Topeka, Kans. The concluding address on the programme was presented by C. W. Carman, Lawrence, Kans., taking for his subject: "Should the Nurserymen Handle Nursery Stock Through the Farm Bureau and County Agents?"

After Secretary-Treasurer Holsinger's report had been presented and Kansas City chosen as the city for holding the next meeting of the organization, the following officers were elected for 1922:

C. W. Carman, Lawrence, Kans., president; H. L. Merkle, Des Moines, Ia., vice-president; Geo. W. Holsinger, Rosedale, Kans., secretary-treasurer.

Illinois State Nurserymen's Ass'n.

At the annual meeting of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association an account of which appeared in our issue of January 28, page 128, held at the Congress hotel, Chicago, January 19-20, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Realizing that men and firms are held together in co-operative plans and endeavors by close association, and that the trade papers of the nursery and florist industries are doing much to bring the nurserymen into closer relationship both in social and business relation—

Therefore be it resolved by the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association in convention assembled that we heartily thank these publications for their untiring zeal on behalf of the nurseries of the country and that we urge all our members not only to subscribe for the various trade journals, but also to give them financial support by use of advertising space.

Be it further resolved that we aid our trade publications by furnishing items of interest concerning activities in the vicinity of our nurseries so that all may be informed of the close co-operation of members of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association.

J. A. Young, Sec'y.

Missouri State Nurserymen's Ass'n.

ANNUAL MEETING JANUARY 24.

The Missouri State Nurserymen's Association was held at the Hotel Baltimore, Kansas City, January 24. President Fred A. Weber in the chair. After the reports of the secretary-treasurer had been read the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the Missouri State Nurserymen's Association co-operate in every way possible with the Missouri State Horticultural Society in its efforts to encourage fruit growers throughout the state, to do more thorough spraying, and otherwise rid their orchards of San Jose scale and other diseases, and that it urges the society to make this a special feature of its work.

We indorse the activities of the Missouri State Horticultural Society in its educational work and in its offering of premiums on fruit and other horticultural products.

The following officers were re-elected for 1922: F. A. Weber, St. Louis, president; Paul Stark, Louisiana, vice-president; George H. Johnston, Kansas City, secretary-treasurer.

After deciding upon Kansas City as the next place of meeting, the convention adjourned.

- BEACON—Free flowering dwarf, bright red.

CHEERFULNESS—Beautiful variegated orange and scarlet with golden border. The florets are medium sized, but very freely produced.

CITY OF PORTLAND—A wonderfully attractive rose-pink. Excellent upright habit and free flowering. $15.00 per 100, $125.00 per 1000.

DR. E. ACKERKNECHT—The bronze foliage blends pleasingly with the carmine rose trusses. Vigorous and free.

DUKE OF MARLBORO—An old favorite with deep crimson flowers.

EUREKA—The best white Canna. A very strong grower blooming freely. The flowers are large and become pure white in the full sun. $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

FANAL—Exceedingly free flowering, deep bright red. A most effective bedder.

FEUERMEER—Another excellent old sort with a profusion of dazzling orange-scarlet flowers.

GAITY—Wonderfully effective. Deep orange suffused with scarlet and bordered with yellow. A brilliant bedder.
- GOLDEN GATE—Vigorous and free. A unique combination of yellow and golden shades, blending into rose as the flower matures. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

KING HUMBERT—The most popular Canna of this generation. The large orange-scarlet flowers and particularly the very deep bronze foliage make it one of the most useful.

LOUIS REVERCHON—The flowers are brighter and more freely produced than on King Humbert, while the foliage is a greenish bronze.

MRS. ALFRED CONARD—Magnificent trusses of large salmon-pink flowers. Unique and very ornamental. The stock of this variety is very scarce. We have a limited quantity and advise early ordering. $15.00 per 100.

MRS. KARL KELSEY—A tall, majestic, vigorous grower surmounted by great trusses of large orchid type flowers. Orange-scarlet, streaked and mottled with rose.

RICHARD WALLACE—A well known pure yellow.
- THE GEM—A seedling of Hungaria, more vigorous, with a profusion of large cream-colored flowers dotted with carmine. Very unusual and attractive. $7.00 per 100, $60.00 per 1000.

THE PRESIDENT—The greatest red Canna in commerce. Very heavy, vigorous growths surmounted by great trusses of immense florets of bright scarlet. We heartily endorse this as the greatest Canna introduction of recent years. $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

WYOMING—We know of no other Canna as effective as this for large plantings. A giant in growth. Extremely vigorous with its deep bronze foliage as an ideal background for large bright orange-colored flowers of the orchid type. It makes an ideal subject.

YELLOW KING HUMBERT—A sport from King Humbert to which it occasionally reverts. Green foliage with yellow flowers, dotted with scarlet. $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

We have good stocks of many other varieties, prices on which will be quoted on application. Order now for delivery in February and March.

THE D. HILL NURSERY CO., Inc., Box 404, Dundee, Ill. EVERGREEN SPECIALISTS. LARGEST GROWERS IN AMERICA.

Tennessee State Nurserymen's Ass'n.
The annual meeting of the Tennessee State Nurserymen's Association was held at Nashville, January 25, with an excellent programme. After the convention had been called to order by President Willis Shadow, Winchester, who spoke on "Improved Methods in Growing Nursery Stock." Secretary-Treasurer G. M. Bentley, Knoxville, read his report, showing the organization to be in a very good financial condition.

Other instructive papers were presented at both the morning and afternoon sessions and the question box proved of interest to all. Many exhibits of fruit, shade trees and ornamental shrubs were staged, as well as nursery supplies.
The Tennessee State Bee Keepers' Association, held its meeting, January 26, and proved of interest to the nurserymen and horticulturists attending their conventions, for it brought out the relation of bees to their work.

Greens Poisoning.

Cambridge, Ida., January 26.—Chas. W. Tuttle and five members of his family, died from botulinus poisoning, caused by eating preserved greens, it is said. Eight other persons, of this city, are seriously ill from the same malady.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, January 31.—Cucumbers, per crate, $7 to $8; head lettuce, per crate, $3 to $5; carrots, $3.50 to $6 per barrel; cabbage, $2.75 per 100-pound sack; turnips, $2.50 to $3 per barrel.

New York, January 27.—Cucumbers, Boston, $1 to $2.50 per dozen; mushrooms, per three-pound basket, $1 to $1.50; radishes, 100 bunches, $3 to $7; tomatoes, per pound, 20 to 55 cents; lettuce, one dozen bunches, $1 to $1.75; beet tops, per basket, $2.

Vegetable Movement.

WEEK OF JANUARY 23-28.

Potato prices have declined in most markets. Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota stock at shipping points falling off five to 20 cents per 100 pounds, closing at $1.60 to $1.80. Maine stock has been sold to New York and Boston jobbers at $2.25 to $2.50, a loss of five to 10 cents. Shipments amounted to 1,972, with Maine, as usual, leading.

Cabbage movement from the south is rapidly increasing, 326 cars having been rolled from that section compared with 192 of old northern stock. New Texas flat type brought $25 per ton in producing sections and Florida kinds sold at $1 to $2 per 1½ bushel container.

Onion values have increased considerably due mainly to a falling off in movement of 25 per cent. A gain of 25 cents to $1.25 per 100 pounds was noted on No. 1 Globes in eastern markets, bringing $7.50 to $8.25. Markets in the middle west, with less rapid advance, closed firm at $6.50 to $7.50 for red varieties.

Boxed apples continue to occupy an important place in the market, Washington having shipped 512 cars. Due to the light movement of barreled stock No. 2½ Baldwins advanced 50 cents to a range of $7 to $7.25 per barrel. Extra fancy Spitzenburgs have been sold to New York jobbers at $3.25 to $3.50 per box.

Sweet potatoes, although showing a falling off of 87 cars in movement, did not gain in price. Tennessee Nancy Halls moved slowly in middlewestern cities at $1.25 to $1.40 per bushel.

Celery from California has registered a sharp advance of $2 per crate at New York, closing at $10 to $11, due to the heavy frosts, recently in that state.

Texas spinach has been sold at $1.25 per bushel at Chicago.

TRADE IS QUIET.

Trade has been rather quiet the past two weeks and the cold weather has affected some of the stock arriving, but not to the extent of making it unsalable. Lilium Harissii is very plentiful and a few callas are arriving. Sweet peas are obtainable, although the stems are short and the quality only fair. There are large offerings of yellow and Paper White narcissi, tulips, daffodils and freesias. The supply of carnations is limited and the quality fair. Roses are still on the short side and due to so many cloudy days they are not up to standard. Columbia and Ophelia appear to be better than the rest. Lily of the valley is plentiful but cattleyas, cyripediums and orchids are scarce. Bulbous plants, of all kinds, move well and no shortage is reported.

NOTES.

The employees of Geo. T. Boucher's store and greenhouses had a sleigh ride and dinner dance, January 17, the latter taking place at Avon inn, Avon, N. Y. There were 26 in attendance. Mr. Boucher is selling good cinerarias, primroses, freesias and cyclamen in pots.

Geo. O. Havill featured an attractive window display recently, of yellow narcissi, daffodils, etc., arranged in a fountain design. Cibotium ferns formed the background.

Salter Bros. have a fine display of forsythia at their East Main street store.

H. E. Wilson is now growing cattleyas at his greenhouses on Hudson avenue.

Miss Hattie Ellis was confined to her home last week, with a strained back, having slipped on a narcissi stem.

Apple blossoms and wild smilax in huge quantities formed the decorations at the auto show, January 17-21.

Felix Alberts is making a feature of baskets of spring flowers.

Visitor: M. Blackshaw, of Morris Cohen, Inc., New York. CHESTER.

PRICES HOLDING FIRM.

The florists report that trade has been very good during the past week. Funeral work has been especially active but party decorations have not been numerous. The call is running largely to loose flowers and corsages aside from funeral pieces. Roses, sweet peas, carnations and violets are the leaders at the present time and the prices are holding up well and the supply has been equal to the demand. St. Valentine and Easter holidays are expected to swell the volume of business of the local firms. Florists say that there is no indications of reductions in flower prices in the near future as they now are paying their help practically the same wages that were paid them during the war. A good many weddings have been scheduled for this section during the months of February and March and these will help the business to a large extent. General trade conditions are improving and collections are holding their own very well.

C. L. Niednagel, of the Niednagel Floral Co., has been appointed to some

FIFTH NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW

Transferred From Cleveland O., to Indianapolis, Ind.

No Change in Dates, March 25-April 1.

Indiana Florists Begin Work.

The Fifth National Flower Show will be held at Indianapolis, Ind., March 25-April 1, due to the fact that the auditorium, at Cleveland, where the exhibition was originally planned to be staged, will not be completed in time. Because of the change the National Flower Show committee immediately notified the State Florists' Association of Indiana and a joint meeting was held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Indianapolis, February 7.

The meeting was opened by President
S. F. Hitz, of the state association, who handed the gavel to Geo. Asmus, of Chicago, chairman of the National Flower Show committee. Mr. Asmus briefly outlined the reasons and causes for bringing the show to Indianapolis and assured the association of the personal support of the national committee as well as the committee appointed in Cleveland. He submitted a report of the expenditures and receipts estimated by the executive committee of the show to be held in Indianapolis and told of the various plans that the committees in Cleveland had outlined. The posters, stickers, and other work accomplished by them were presented for consideration. Mr. Asmus was very optimistic as to the location of Indianapolis for holding the exhibition and endeavored to enlighten all those present on any doubtful points.

President S. S. Pennock, of the Society of American Florists, was present and on behalf of the society assured the state association of the untiring support of the committees already appointed and the help of every officer of the society. Herman P. Knoble, a member of the national committee, in an interesting talk, greatly helped to clarify the matter of finances. Treasurer J.
J. Hess, of the Society of American Florists, assured those present that the finances of the show would be well taken care of and spoke of the guarantee fund. W. H. Duckham, Madison,

N. J.; Frank H. Traendly, New York;
A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, and Jos.
H. Hill, Richmond, Ind., were other members of the committee who gave brief talks. Secretary John Young, of the national society, was present and will make his headquarters at Indianapolis, about February 17, to remain until after the show. Upon a motion made by Jos. H. Hill and passed unanimously, it was decided to hold the exhibition at the State Fair grounds, on the original dates.

John B. Reynolds, secretary of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce, spoke on behalf of that city and assured those present that the chamber would do all in its power to make the show a huge success and would fully co-operate with the local committees, offering the services of the members of the chamber, its rooms, records and general assistance in all matters.

Mr. Asmus then appointed Irwin Bertermann, 241 Massachusetts avenue, Indianapolis, executive chairman of the local committees and by a unanimous vote the appointment was confirmed by the state association. The general meeting adjourned and a special meeting, comprising the members of the national committee, officers of the association and Mr. Bertermann was held, the purpose being to appoint chairmen for the various working committees, under Mr. Bertermann.

The following is a list of the chairmen: Publicity, Fred Millis; admissions,
Claude Wallin; decorations—exterior,
Walter Bertermann; interior, H. S. Wie-gand; local exhibits, Henry Rieman; retail exhibits, Fred G. Heintz, Terre Haute, Ind.; transportation, Jos. Mc-Gowan; information, Oscar Carlstadt; concessions, Len Elder; lectures and school gardens, E. E. Temperly; music,
L. E. Hitz, Madison, Ind.; nurserymen,
Harry Hobbs; out-of-town exhibits, E.

H. Mann, Richmond, Ind.; printing, O. E. Steinkamp; special premiums, Fred H. Lemon, Richmond; special features, C. R. Green; club committee—composed of the five Indianapolis dinner clubs as follows: Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club, Optimists' Club, American Club and Chamber of Commerce.

What Babson Says.

Roger Babson, who makes a specialty of statistical information and market forecasts, claims there are 12 periods in each business cycle, as follows:

1. Every cycle begins at the peak of prosperity, accompanied by large profits and high wages.

2. This is followed by a period of inefficiency, accompanied by declining bond prices.

3. Next we have the period of dishonesty and profiteering, accompanied by declining stock prices.

4. Then comes the periodical crime wave, with declining commodity prices.

5. Lack of confidence is then everywhere apparent, which results in general unemployment.

6. People must then cut down living expenses, families double up, all of which results in declining real estate prices. This is the end of the general decline and improvement usually begins at this point of the cycle.

7. Thrift becomes more evident and this results in declining interest rates, allowing banks to loan money to start new building and again set the wheels of industry moving.

8. The unemployment period always results in greater efficiency, which is evident at this point in the cycle. Increasing bond prices are noticeable at this time.

9. People become more honest, fairer prices are asked by both merchants and labor. We get a dollar in value whether buying merchandise or labor, which we did not get during the period of prosperity.

10. Renewed religious interest is now evident, resulting in restored confidence and greater buying, with the strengthening of commodity prices.

11. This followed by great activity in all lines, with labor fully employed.

12. The cycle has been completed; extravagance and waste are again in evidence with high money rates.

Mr. Babson's opinion is that we have now reached No. 6 and the improvement is at hand.

DETROIT, MICH.—The Indian Village Greenhouses was recently incorporated, capital, $6,000. Michael Bloy, Geo. R. Doemling and Walter Walters are prominent stockholders.

OLMSTED FALLS, O.—John Klink, formerly located at Chicago, O., (now Willard), intends to start again in the greenhouse business here, and is looking up information on greenhouse building.

AMARILLO, TEX.—The Amarillo Florist is the name of a new retail establishment to be opened here, about February 10, by A. Alenius, at 419 Polk street. He will continue to operate the Amarillo Greenhouses at Fourth and Jackson streets, this city.

BEATRICE, NEB.—E. W. Dole, for 20 years president of the Dole Floral Co., recently sold his interests in the concern to Peter Durham, G. M. Johnston and his nephew, Walter S. Dole. Mr. Dole is planning to move to Peru, Neb., in March, where he will establish a 45-acre nursery on his property there.

PLANT NOTES.

Antirrhinums.

The grower of antirrhinums has an opportunity now to select the best plants from which to propagate the stock for another year, as the plants are now producing fine spikes and it is possible to select the best types. Those that have fine large flowers set closely together on the stem, and yet not close enough to crowd, are to be preferred. The earliness of blooming is another matter to take into consideration. It will be found in raising these plants from seed that there is little difference in their time of blooming, and for winter flowering the earliest that there are of good type should be chosen. There are plenty of good cuttings to be obtained now, for the laterals which grow from the axil of each leaf make the best cuttings and the flower is enlarged by their removal. Plants that are in bloom will be benefitted greatly from now on by feeding either with liquid manure or a strong mulch, and the next growth thinned to eight or 10 shoots, which will insure a much better crop for spring cutting than to allow all the small shoots to grow. Keep the plants tied erect all the time, for it takes but a few hours' sun to draw the tip up from a stem that leans away from the center with the result that a crooked stem is formed, which greatly impairs its appearance. These spikes of bloom should be handled very carefully, especially the long sprays, for they are very brittle and break easily. It is better not to cut too many at once. When cutting hold them with the heads hanging down, and when there are as many as can be easily held in the hand, cut, take them at once to the flower room, trim off all surplus growth and tie the stems a dozen in a bunch, then loosely tie strings around the center and toward the top of the bunch, and place the stem in a deep jar of water. This prevents crooked stems so often seen, for the plant continues its growth after being cut, and if allowed to hang away from the jar the blooms grow crooked.

Pelargoniums.

While all the plants so well known as geraniums are pelargoniums, yet it is the show of fancy type called by many Lady Washington geraniums that are generally known under this name. The plants that are wanted in bloom in April and May will now be in their blooming pots and beginning to show their blooming growths, but for June and July flowering the plants should now be shifted to the blooming pots, five or 6-inch as the plants may require, except large specimens, of which few are now seen. They like a turfy, coarse loam, to which may be added one-fourth well rotted manure, and if the soil is heavy a liberal amount of sharp sand to keep it open, and the plants should be potted very firmly. A cool, well-ventilated house should be selected for growing them, and until the days grow warmer and brighter, they should be watered sparingly. In early spring, when they are well covered with foliage and the blooming shoots begin to grow, more water will be needed. A little stopping may be necessary if the plants send forth strong, long growths, to make the plant shapely, but care and judgment should be used in this operation, which should cease upon the appearance of the bud shoots, which are easily distinguished by the different manner of growth. Do not attempt to take any cuttings at this time, for after the plants are through blooming is the best time for propagation, and any cuttings taken now are pretty sure to rob the plants of the bloom. These plants are very subject to attacks of both red spider and green fly, and should be fumigated or sprayed regularly. As the extremely hot, dry days of summer approach a slight shade will be found very beneficial to both the plants and flowers.

Verbenas.

The verbenas makes a very satisfactory bedding plant if properly grown, but the thin, spindly plants produced from late grown seed and planted in flats and baskets as closely together as is possible in order that they may be sold at a cheap price, seldom make any showing in the beds until very late in summer. The seeds should be sown early enough that the plants may be stopped and branched and grown in pots, and one plant so grown will make more showing during the season than half a dozen of the poor plants so freely offered at the spring sales. It is really better to buy the rooted cuttings of selected varieties that are advertised at this time than to sow seed after the middle of February. Seed sown up to this date, however, can be grown on to make fine plants. Care must be exercised in the germination of the seed, which is often blamed for the carelessness or lack of knowledge of the grower, for the seed damps off very easily when it germinates, being very sensitive to any change in temperature in moisture. Until they begin to make growth, the plants should be watched carefully, never allowed to become dry, or exposed to any draughts.

Genistas.

The plants of genistas should now be making their flowering growth and no further pinching will be necessary except in the case of long, strong growths which sometimes break from the stem and thereby spoil the symmetry of the plant, and these should be cut back as soon as they grow beyond the other flowering shoots. They can now be bloomed in succession by moving some into a warmer house, but those that are wanted at Easter are still better left in a cool house, one with a temperature of 45 degrees being the one that will produce the best results. These plants are never partial to great heat, reveling in a cool atmosphere, and often when taken into the warm living rooms where the air is extremely dry will soon drop their leaves. Those that are being grown to certain shapes, such as the balls, pyramids or baskets, will doubtless require some pinching back yet, but this should be done with great care or the flowering buds will be removed. A close examination of the tip of the shoot will clearly show whether the buds are forming and when this occurs all pinching must be immediately stopped. Any blind wood or extra strong growths that are cut out may be made into cuttings and young stock obtained. These will root much better in a cool propagating bench than in one where the bottom heat is confined. When the plants are full of bloom they will require heavy watering, and do not place them in a dry, warm location for any great length of time.

GENISTA RACEMOSA. STANDARD FORM.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

There is nearly always the need of a little quickening to the business and most of the time the pressure should be good and strong. To be satisfied to stand idly by and see flowers go to waste, or carry such a meager stock that would-be customers go out because they do not see what they want, fits in with the phrase "There is not much doing" and there never will be in a store where the business has to be forced on them by the customers.

The wide awake retailer by his progressive methods creates and invites business; he is always busy or if he thinks there is a lull coming is at once on the job to ward it off with additional attractive features that call attention to his stock and suggests its use in all the affairs of life.

KEEP CUSTOMERS AND PROSPECTS INFORMED.

It is safe to say that but 50 per cent of retail florists ever send a line to their customers or prospects. Some few of these perhaps do get out a Christmas or Easter card or invitation, thinking that is sufficient. Publicity in all its ramifications is the mainspring of the busy store. First, there is the outside or front of the store decoration that is neglected by at least 75 per cent of the shops. The nature of the business is such that the flower shop should always, with its decorated exterior, stand out and be more conspicuous than any other establishment in the block. This feature is then to be backed up by the window display, which should have a bright attractive story to tell every day. Then the pleasant inviting interior with its featured stocks has its compelling power on all who see it. These, however, in the course of a day are comparatively few.

The store at its best must have a more or less continuous stream of customers which to secure and maintain, one will find the greatest efficiency in printers' ink. The columns of the newspapers are expensive but if used intelligently always featuring flowers in connection with this or that current event, weddings in spring and autumn, or a special box of flowers at a price, always something specific, results are certain to come when the cumulative value of the repeated advertising begins to work. To get the best results there should be a well planned campaign for at least nine months in the year. Returns may seem disappointing for a time, but the cumulative value of last year's work will extend into the new year and add greatly to the new publicity.

Direct to customer advertising by postal cards and leaflets is an immediate and sure method of carrying the store's news and invitations to patrons and prospects when feature sales are being used to put new life into the business. When every one of two, three or 5,000 people, all flower buyers, receive such a notice in their morning mail satisfactory results are certain to follow, particularly if, when calling at the store, they always find something of interest, which is a matter that is most important, as advertising must always be backed up with the goods.

Do your bills go out regularly on the first of the month? This is most important. Many customers pay immediately on receipt of the account and others on the tenth when they are generally all received. It is a very important matter where there is not a regular bookkeeper, to look the order sheets over every night and see that all prices have been carried out correctly. It furthers the work to make out bills at spare moments and add the later purchases if any on the last day. When a bill rendered has gone out twice, it is time to give the account special attention. A polite request will generally bring results, but if not after 10 days, follow with another. Every dollar lost in bad bills amounts to the profit on $10 worth of trade and should always be looked at from this angle.

SPRING BOXES OF FLOWERS POPULAR.

The market is now full of flowers all of splendid quality, most of which can be sold at moderate prices. Sweet peas are at their best and should be featured in every possible way. Daffodils are plentiful and these two with a few others will make fine spring boxes of cut flowers that can be pushed successfully at this time.

The store's facilities should now be working overtime in making the most of the business of St. Valentine's Day. Those who have faith in its demand and make a bid for the business, with well arranged baskets, corsages and other features as well as decorated pot plants, all given a valentine flavor with arrows, ribbons, mottoes, etc., will have about all they can do. The demand for valentines is not nearly what it might be if the trade were united in pushing flowers for valentines and making it the general custom for all classes of people.

Proprietors who have learned the art of approaching and selling customers and the many little courtesies that can be used to such advantage, should take every opportunity to impart this information to their young men and women learning the business, and thus increase their efficiency.

Mission of the Flowers.

The progressive retailer who is deeply interested in increasing the popularity of flowers should be full of suggestions as to the many uses to which they may be put, and in every way possible keep these constantly before the eyes of his customers. The made-up box of flowers, the artistically arranged basket, the little cradle, the commencement bunch, and many other arrangements in window display, all with explanatory cards calling attention to their various uses, will often bring to the mind of the observer a transpiring event that otherwise would have been forgotten, or flowers are shown to be more appropriate than something else in mind.

The following list of every day events in life for all of which the sending of flowers are most appropriate, if printed in leaflet form, could be enclosed in boxes of flowers or other packages and all postal matter, which distributed without expense would provide the best form of direct publicity:

"Flowers are just flowers to many while to others they are full of life and have a language all their own that carries the message better than the written word. They are the jewels of the summer garden and landscape which they enrich and beautify, while in the warm atmosphere of the greenhouse, defying the winter storms, their summer glory of bloom is continuous.

"When the stork leaves his gift your message to the little stranger is best said with flowers.

"To express best wishes and many happy returns for the birthday nothing is more appropriate than flowers.

"There is no gift like flowers with which to pay an obligation.

"To brighten and bring cheer to the sick room there is nothing so acceptable as cut flowers or a beautiful blooming plant.

"One of the important events of life is the commencement. The memory of the flowers received at this time will be everlasting.

"In the spring time of life when hearts beat in unison, flowers reign supreme, their beauty and fragrance being far more expressive than words.

"The flowers for the corsage are the finishing touch to the costume.

"Flowers are a medium that express sentiment better than mere words.

"When the public man takes up the reins of office, congratulations should be voiced in flowers, and recognition of his achievements made in the same manner on the occasion of his birthday.

"As a bon voyage gift flowers are charming, while the welcome home box on the return of the tourist is certain to be appreciated.

"There is no more acceptable place for flowers than the dinner table, where with their beauty and fragrance, they add a refining influence that is most enjoyable.

"Flowers are especially fitted to carry your message of condolence to the bereaved and nothing could be more appropriate than a cluster of choice blossoms as a last tribute to the deceased friend."

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Rice Bros. are embarking in the greenhouse business, and will grow a general line of stock.

MEMPHIS, TENN.—W. C. Johnson, of Johnson's Greenhouses, and wife, have been calling on the trade of Chicago and Springfield, O. This firm planted 10 acres of peonies last fall, and expect to extend the acreage of these plants in the near future.

COLUMBUS, O.—The resignations of S. W. Moore, chief horticulturist of Ohio for eight years, and Chas. McIntyre, chief agriculturist, have been accepted by Dr. H. S. MacAyeal, director of the state department of public welfare. The two positions, each of which paid a salary of $3,000 annually, will be combined in the interest of economy.

THE ROSE.

General Care of Plants.

At this writing, February 10, we have had three clear days in the last 20, some rose weather, and one is fortunate to be able to keep the foliage on the plants under these conditions. However, the grower must take a chance now and then and do a little syringing or the plants will become so infested with red spider that they will be beyond recovery. We usually syringe about twice a week, rain or shine, and, in order to dry off the houses, we turn on a number of pipes and ventilate quite freely. After syringing, which is done quite early in the morning, we beat off the surplus moisture with a piece of hose about two feet in length, tapping the plants lightly near their base, and with the extra amount of tempered air, there is seldom enough moisture left on the plants by night to do any harm, care being taken to see that the night temperature does not drop below 60° after syringing on a cloudy day. We have been applying a light mulch right along through the winter about every six or eight weeks apart, about as much as can be taken out of a box with both hands, placed at the outside edge of the bed between each plant and washed out immediately, using a nozzle that cuts the manure rapidly and flows same evenly over the bed. This should be followed up with a good sprinkling of air slaked lime in the walks and around through the base of the plants. Be sure that the lime is absolutely dry, otherwise the good effects are lost as with the lime in the proper condition, it will create a fog throughout the house. By strictly adhering to the above methods, we have our plants free from spider and black spot, and although not blooming profusely, owing to so much dark weather, they are in excellent condition and ready to go to work with the aid of a little sunshine.

We have not removed any great amount of wood for cuttings up to this time, only enough stock taken from the plants at different times to keep the plants in good shape, as one has had to use great care in not stopping down the plants too much by removing the wood. Then again, with roses bringing top notch prices, the grower on the small range can perhaps realize more from the flowers than from the amount of young stock he could sell, particularly, if it was detrimental to the plants to remove much wood, which in our case it would have been so. We are only propagating for our own requirements, and as our plants are now in fairly good shape to give us some good wood for propagating this month, we feel justified in going slow with the cuttings up to this time. Mulching is a very important part of the work for February, and from February 15 until March 1 will be a good time to apply the mulch, which can be used a little heavier perhaps than the mid-winter applications. Still, one should use care at all times when feeding, and it would not be advisable to mulch a house where the plants are carrying very little foliage, as there is practically little or no root action under such plants, and they should be let run a little on the dry side, syringed frequently, and not given any extra feeling until they make new growth. The plants that will be benefited by the mulching are the ones that have not received a check. They will stand the feed, water and air at all times. Be sure to wash out the mulch as fast as it is being put on the beds, and not to leave any of the mulch unwatered overnight, or the ammonia may and will do considerable harm if the manure is of any account and even when watered in, we would suggest leaving a crack of air on the houses for the first night, unless there is a strong wind blowing outside, when it will be hardly necessary.

The young stock should receive the most careful attention at all times. Give the young plants a sunny location; the best place in the range is none too good, and see to it that the house is not a draughty one. They should be set up on raised benches that have been covered with an inch of finely screened soft coal ashes which should be given a good soaking and packed firmly. Never plunge a rose pot in the ashes, but keep them on top. Put a very careful employe in charge of the young stock and caution him about spotting out the dry plants here and there before giving them a general watering, and remember that they must be sprayed frequently and with plenty of force in order to keep them free from spider, etc. Therefore, they should be set up carefully, and if the bed should be too wide to let the pots finish snugly against the sides, a strip should be tacked inside to remedy this fault, and then the trouble of upsetting the plants when syringing them will be avoided. Fumigate frequently and keep the smell of sulphur around, nearly all the time, and when it comes time to shift them (which should be after one growth has been made), pot firmly and drain anything from a ¾-inch pot, up. Also avoid crowding.

TROY, N. Y.—H. W. Gordinier, president of the H. W. Gordinier & Sons Co., died recently. The business will be continued by J. G. Leverage, George Gordinier, and C. H. Gordinier, all of whom have been connected with the company for more than 20 years.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—Benj. Grote, formerly with the Park Floral Co., Denver, Colo., recently purchased a one-half interest in the store and green houses, of A. C. Kopper, this city, and will assume the management of the greenhouses the last of January.

SANTA ROSA, CALIF.—C. M. Leopold recently succeeded to the business of Leopold & Chappell, retail florists. Mr. Chappell, the retiring member of the firm, will devote his entire time to his greenhouse establishment on Sonoma avenue.

WITH THE GROWERS

Henry A. Dreer, Riverton, N. J.

The Henry A. Dreer greenhouses at Riverton, N. J., are interesting at all seasons and to the storeman and grower, particularly so during midwinter when the immense palm and fern ranges are filled with their growing stocks. Although the firm has just had an unusually large fall sale, which culminated with their early December deliveries of palms, ferns, fancy crotons and other ornamental foliage plants, there seemed to be not a foot of empty bench space in any of the houses, all being filled to the doors with growing or marketable stock.

The immense palm ranges which comprise more than half the place, contain a wonderful stock of which Wm. Taplin, in charge of this department, is justly proud. Kentia, Belmoreana and K. Forsteriana, in seedling boxes, flats and in 2½-inch pots, are seen by the hundreds of thousands, while there is house after house of stock in three, four and 6-inch pots and in tubs in various sizes from seven to 12 inches and some larger, all wonderfully well grown, mostly from seed sown on the place.

As this firm had before the war been large importers of palms they have since then been compelled to look elsewhere, and have found the out-door California stock a fairly good addition to their home grown. While palms make a quite rapid growth in California, yet during the dry season they are greatly troubled with red spider, which at times is so thick that its accumulation on the trunks of trees is such as to turn them red. Very fine plants of the various Phoenix are grown there, but freight charges on such stock are heavy, and they are from fifteen to twenty-four days on the way.

Keeping up their stock of various sizes for their regular trade has been reduced to a system by selections in all sizes, many blocks being marked reserved for making up, and others under number for growing on into larger sizes. While there are quantities of single specimens, made-up plants are also very popular. These are started in 6-inch pot sizes. Most made-up plants consist of four palms each, two large and two small about a year's growth apart, which is continued up into the larger sizes. The leaves of the taller plants are tied together when being made up as there is at times considerable soil removed from the roots and they are apt to sag if not tied up, and in their recovery remain in this undesirable shape.

The temperature in all the growing on palm houses is 56 to 58 degrees night, as at much below this they are apt to remain dormant. Newly potted or made-up stock is kept at 60. All the pot stock, 3-inch pots and below, is plunged in ashes on slate tables which keeps them moist and holds them erect while being syringed. It would be hard to find a more healthy and even lot of palms in their various sizes than can be seen here.

Areca leutescens is a quantity stock, as is Cocos Weddleania, which latter is started three seeds in a 2-inch pot. This palm makes a long tap root which in the small pots follows the curve and is easily transplanted without breaking.

FOUR NEW DRACAENAS INTRODUCED.

Dracaenas are a specialty, four new ones being introduced this year that are worthy of note. Juno is broad leaved with a rose pink variegation on the green, a strong and vigorous grower. Mrs. Andre might well be called a glorified D. terminalis having much broader and if anything much brighter colored leaves than this popular variety. It is very striking. Harmony is green and white with a bead-like edge of pink, which coloring also runs into the body of the leaf. It colors well in a 3-inch pot size. Mrs. Scott is a bronze green, edged with reddish pink, it has a fine habit with well balanced growth and a very pretty variety.

In the fern ranges Cyrtomium Rochfordianum compactum, which originated here, is grown by the housefull.

H. W. Sheppard, Cincinnati, O.

Vice-Pres.-Elect American Carnation Society.

a most dependable florists' fern. Asplenium viridescens, with its bright green fronds, is another headliner. There are quantities of that most valuable decorative variety, Cibotium Scheidei, which was first grown here commercially. Adiantum Farleyense has given way to A. Mooredrecht gloriosum, or commonly known as the Glory fern. It closely resembles A. Farleyense but is stronger and produces freely from seed which gives it a great advantage as a commercial fern. In spite of its apparent easy reproduction from seed, it is in such constant demand that little is now on hand except small seedlings that will not be much of a factor until next summer. Hundreds of thousands of little fern dish ferns pricked off in flats fill several houses.

A new bougainvillea called Crimson Lake on account of its color, will make a sensational Easter plant when it gets in the hands of some of the Easter plant growers. Its brilliant coloring is remarkable.

NO FOREIGN ROSE PLANTS AVAILABLE.

In view of the fact that no foreign rose plants are available the stock of budded roses as seen here is remarkable. There are at least 300,000, all to be sold in five and 6-inch pots, into which they are now being potted as fast as a trained force can do the work. These are all strong field grown stock which when potted are cut back to about eight inches to a foot above the pot. One hundred and fifty frames outside, each 6x150 feet are all filled, and a large range 150x200 feet will have its ground floor entirely covered with three and four tiers of 6-inch pots, set pot against pot. The list of varieties contains all the newest and best, amongst them a quantity of Paul's Scarlet Climber, the most brilliant of all roses.

At the firm's River View greenhouses, crotons are a feature showing a luster and brilliance of foliage that makes them most effective in decorative work. An immense quantity of French hydrangeas are now going out from these ranges to different parts of the country to be grown on for the Easter trade. They are exceptionally strong, well budded plants.

A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.

One of the most pleasant features of the American Carnation Society convention and mid-winter flower show, at Hartford, Conn., was the visit on Friday, January 27, to the immense establishment of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn. About 100 of the visiting craft accepted the invitation and were taken by special trolley cars starting from the Hotel Bond and landing directly at the greenhouses an hour later.

A view from the hill as one approaches shows a veritable sea of glass made up of 700,000 square feet in various ranges, one consisting of seven ridge and furrow houses, each 34x500 feet. This section was entirely filled with forcing roses. The largest house on the place, also filled with roses, is 80x800 feet. When the frame work of this house was about two-thirds completed, and fortunately before any glazing had been done, a violent windstorm blew it down. Immediately an additional force was engaged, repairs started and the work was finished in almost record time.

Roses are the chief specialty, some 300,000 plants being grown for cut flowers. The stock in all the ranges was in splendid condition. Premier, Columbia, Ophelia, Butterfly, Double White Killarney, Cecile Brunner, Pilgrim and Hadley are grown in large quantities. A dark pink sport of Columbia, which originated here, looked good to all who saw it. This certainly is an ideal flower and is being quite extensively grown. A house of Priscilla, as seen here, appeared fine enough for any market but while it has paid very well, they are not going to send it out. A number of new varieties were being tried out, amongst them Montgomery's 9,199, a fine full dark pink, a strong grower that seemed most promising to the rose experts. Hill's America was also observed in fine form.

The grafting house was very interesting; here 50 men are employed grafting roses from the last week in November, when the manetti stocks arrive, and then continuously for a period of three months, turning out about 1,000,000 plants, mostly for indoor forcing stock. Of these 100,000 are grafted on Japanese multiflora, in garden rose varieties for outside planting. Several houses are filled with roses to furnish eyes for grafting which later are lifted and potted for spring sales. Chrysanthemums are a quantity item, 250,000 plants being grown for cut flowers and later 1,000,000 cuttings are rooted for distribution to commercial growers all over the country. All the newest and up-to-date kinds are to be found here.

INTENSIVE USE OF SPACE.

Intensive use of greenhouse space is a feature. Following the earliest chrysanthemums, or before they were cut out, freesia was planted between the rows and furnished a crop, the first cutting being made at Christmas. Easter crops will now follow the freesia, which in some of the houses was already cut out. Easter lilies are a feature the year round and particularly at Easter for which 40,000 bulbs, all in 5-inch pots, were being forced for cutting. There were also large blocks of pot roses, hydrangeas, heather and other like stocks for the holiday.

A large range was filled with palms in florists' sizes, all in fine condition. Houses were devoted separately to gardenias, ardisias, lily of the valley, adiantums for cutting, and A. Lemkesii, which latter closely resembles A. Farleyense and which it has succeeded, as it is much easier to propagate. Flowering begonias and cyclamens are also largely grown. They have a large clientele of New England retail florists to which their stock is sold direct through regular orders.

At the No. 2 or hill range, a short distance from the main plant, there are 300,000 square feet of glass in very well built and splendidly situated houses, filled mostly with chrysanthemums and carnations. Seventy-five thousand carnation plants are seen here in an ideal state of cultivation. Varieties are Ruth Baur, Mrs. C. W. Ward and Hope Henshaw in pink; Matchless, White Wonder, Crystal White, White Enchantress, Harvester, White Delight and Thomas C. Joy, in whites. Aviator and Ethel Fisher are reds, showing up extremely well. Enchantress Supreme was a quantity kind with a good showing of Benora.

An immense propagating house was filled with cuttings of carnations and chrysanthemums, many ready for potting. Stock chrysanthemums, geraniums and other bedding plants, and several houses of asparagus for cutting filled the balance of this well kept section. Landscaping has become an important branch. An immense stock of evergreens, ornamental trees, shrubbery and herbaceous plants for the adornment of private grounds, are planted out in the large acreage surrounding the greenhouses. All the mechanical work on the place is done by their own employees, even to the building of greenhouses, there being blacksmith, machine and carpenter shops with all the necessary machinery. There are 340 employees engaged in the various departments.

The heating plant is interesting, as is the method in getting coal shipped by water in barges, which is cheaper and more dependable than by rail. There is a large ice house filled from an adjoining pond to supply ice for shipping purposes. These are just a few of the leading features of this remarkable place which was built up entirely in a single lifetime by A. N. Pierson, ably seconded by his son, Wallace R., who has grown up with and is now in his great energy an important factor in the business.

After a thorough inspection the visitors partook of a bountiful repast in the home house of the employees. A. N. Pierson is still in the harness and greeted the visitors most cordially, shaking all by the hand and greatly appreciating their visit.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY COMMITTEE.

A meeting of the national publicity committee was held at the Greater Bond Hotel, Hartford, Conn., at 2:30 p. m., January 25. There were present: Chairman Henry Penn, Boston; George Asmus, Chicago; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; President S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia; Secretary John Young, New York; Major P. F. O'Keefe, Boston; E. J. Fancourt, Philadelphia, and Wallace R. Pierson, the latter formerly a member of the committee, all by invitation. Treasurer J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb., was absent through illness, and Mark Mills, Philadelphia, sent regrets at his inability to attend. The minutes of the last meeting held in Toronto, Ont., were read and approved.

Major O'Keefe reviewed the recent advertising of the committee and explained the necessity for using small advertisements throughout the series, which was due to the small amount of money available for contracts. He also referred to the controversy to which considerable space had been devoted in "Printer's Ink" in regard to the origin of the slogan, "Say It With Flowers." While the statements published were wholly incorrect, he considered the matter was good publicity for the slogan. He proposed, he said, to place a page advertisement in that publication at his own expense in refutation of the claims made, and read a letter which he would use as copy to be signed by him and also by the original members of the publicity committee, if no objections were offered by the committee. There being none, he was given authority to proceed as suggested.

Mr. Pierson referred to his resignation from the committee, explaining that he considered his course wise in view of the fact that he had been appointed to the National Flower Show committee, on which he believed his services would be more valuable. He, however, pledged his support to the publicity committee whenever needed. A report by Mr. Ammann, who had been appointed a committee of one to dispose of the billboards in storage, was presented, and showed that 152 billboards had been distributed over a wide expanse of territory. Upon motion of Mr. Asmus, the report was received and Mr. Ammann was voted the thanks of the committee. Mr. Ammann advised that before the paint on signs commenced to peel, owners should paint them once or twice a year with a dressing composed of turpentine and linseed oil in equal parts.

Mr. Asmus made a lengthy report on the local publicity situation in New York, and expressed his belief that the situation in that city would ultimately work out satisfactorily as far as regarded relations with and support of the national campaign. He also stated that assurance had been given that the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association would arrange that its appropriation to the campaign fund of $2,500 for 1921 would be forthcoming, although through a misunderstanding it was not voted at that association's last annual business meeting in Toronto, Ont. In a lengthy discussion, the importance of carrying along and supporting the national publicity movement through the magazines was emphasized. Chairman Penn referred to the national publicity campaign as the hub, and the local publicity campaign as the spokes of a publicity wheel.

Secretary Young presented the financial report of the campaign to December, 1921, showing the balance of the fund at the beginning of 1922 to be $1,628.36. The secretary also submitted a progressive report as of date January 24, 1922, which showed the total amount then available for advertising to be $13,824.77. This amount included the 1921 appropriation of the P. T. D.

A long discussion was entered into concerning the progress of the campaign. There seemed to be a desire, it was reported, on the part of contributors to the campaign for detailed information as to the conduct of the campaign, both financially and as to the advertising engaged in. Major O'Keefe was requested, and he agreed to furnish a sufficient number of copies of all advertisements appearing in the magazines for distribution to all subscribers to the campaign and members of the Society of the American Florists. Secretary Young suggested that in addition he be authorized to publish with his letters to the trade papers a memo of the disbursements made each month, so that everyone interested might know just how the funds were being disbursed. The secretary was asked to request all allied associations to send copies of their advertisements both to him and the secretary of the National Flower Growers' Association.

On motion of Mr. Asmus, seconded by Mr. Ammann, an appropriation of $10,000 was made to the P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, to be used for magazine advertising in April, May and June, on a schedule prescribed by Major O'Keefe, which was as follows:

National Flower Growers' Association.

CINCINNATI GROWERS.

The regular meeting of the Cincinnati branch of the National Flower Growers' Association, Ohio District, was held at the establishment of Jos. Imholte, February 1. It was encouraging to note that the interest and enthusiasm which was displayed at our January meeting has not died out, but on the contrary is developing more keenly as time rolls on.

It is needless to say that all were anxious to know if any more subscriptions to the advertising fund had been secured, and while they are few, these came practically unsolicited: Julius Baer, $50; C. E. Critchell, $50; Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange, $25; P. J. Olinger, $25; Peter Weiland, $25; L. H. Kyrk, $10, and Gus Adrian, $5, per month. It will be noticed that some of the wholesale as well as the retail men have come to the front and are assisting with some very nice subscriptions. We believe that the benefits to be derived through advertising are understood by all and that the rest of them will be heard from before long. The constitution and by-laws committee were reluctant in handing in their report on the constitution and by-laws as proposed by them for fear they were too severe, for instance: "Any member failing to attend any regular meeting, regardless of cause, will be fined $1." But everyone thought that was the proper spirit. It was decided to hold the next meeting March 1, at the plant of Murphy Bros.

Tennessee State Horticultural Society.

NASHVILLE MEETING, JANUARY 24.

The eighteenth annual convention of the Tennessee State Horticultural Society was held at Nashville, January 24, President Robert L. Morris, of Ridgeway, in the chair. The president, in his opening address said the members were dealing primarily with pomology, or the science of fruit growing and that the society also covered expert gardening, such as growing strawberries, grapes and sweet potatoes. He pointed out that N. D. Peacock was the salaried general agent and representative of the organization and exercised a general supervision throughout the state and his work was warmly commended. President Morris stated that there were at present 75 members and that a membership drive would be started at an early date for new additions as well as to increase interest in fruit growing.

P. P. Claxton, former United States commissioner of education, in an able address, urged the use of home grown products instead of the increasingly popular canned goods. While head of a canning company in Alaska, he said that the cost of the tin for each can was six times as much as the value of the fish that went into it. Mr. Claxton brought out that the money expended for spraying and other attention to orchards was much below the cost of canned products. Capt. John Fuller, of the state department of agriculture, spoke of the possibilities of the state as a fruit growing section and urged the employment of scientific methods in the care of fruit trees. "The Fruit Growers' Relation to the Farm Bureau," was handled by S. N. Varnell, who told of the bureau's efforts in forming a strawberry association in his county, which had pledged 600 acres to strawberries and will endeavor to market advantageously other products.

"The Southern Horticultural Trend," was the subject of Geo. E. Murrell, of Washington, D. C., horticulturist for the Southern railroad. He said that Tennessee could be made one of the greatest fruit growing sections of the country. J. D. Ellis, Dayton, spoke of "Late and Early Apples for the State," and "Orcharding in Western North Carolina," was taken care of by Henry B. Cornish, Saluda, N. C. "Soil Management in the Apple Orchard," by N. D. Peacock, was full of instructive data. Other subjects of importance were discussed, with profit to all present. The meeting was closed with a banquet at the Commercial Club, members of the Tennessee State Bee Keepers' Association and the Tennessee State Nurserymen's Association who were in Nashville, to attend their conventions being present. M. C. D.

NEWTON, KANS.—The Newton Floral Co. reports already on hand more orders than can be filled for its new E. H. Kunze geranium.

SASKATCHEWAN, SASK.—The University of Saskatchewan has established a department of horticulture, with C. F. Patterson, Ph. D., in charge.

SALINA, KANS.—The Tatro Greenhouses were severely damaged, recently, when fire partially destroyed one of the houses and the firm's auto truck, the loss being considerably over $1,000.

MIAMI, FLA.—The Exotic Gardens report a greater volume of business for the 1921 Christmas than was the case of the previous year, with prices fully maintaining former levels. In cut flowers, excellent roses, gladioli, sweet peas, narcissi were plentiful enough to supply the demand, but orchids and sweet peas were on the short side. Bulbous offering were of good quality and went well. Plants, although in fine condition, did not sell as well as the previous year.

PEORIA, ILL.—B. Juerjens reports that the volume of business for the 1921 Christmas declined 20 per cent compared with the previous year, with a reduction in prices on individual items amounting from 15 to 20 per cent. An increased demand was noted for pot plants but little call was had for made-up baskets and fancy containers. The bulbous offerings, which were of good quality, were sufficient for all purposes. Roses were much better in quality than in 1920 and were sufficient to go around, but carnations and violets, which were inferior to the offerings of last year, were not equal to the demand. The florists realized the necessity of artistic displays and many windows presented an elaborate appearance.

OBITUARY.

Dr. W. Van Fleet.

Dr. W. Van Fleet, plant breeder of the United States Department of Agriculture, bureau of plant industry and one of the greatest rose specialists in the country, died at Miami, Fla., January 26, following an operation, aged 64 years. Dr. Van Fleet was born at Piermont, N. Y., and in early life entered Hahnemann Medical college, Philadelphia, Pa., graduating in 1880 and later completed a post graduate course at the Jefferson Medical college, the same city, in 1887. Following his profession only two years, he developed a deep interest in horticulture.

Upon embarking in his life work Dr. Van Fleet purchased a farm near Alexandria, Va., where he conducted experiments for many years, later becoming associated with the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa. After a sojourn in Tennessee of two years he moved to New York city, where he was connected with the Rural New Yorker, as editor. During his 20 years' association with the publication he was the company's vice-president for eight years.

In 1910 Dr. Van Fleet entered the service of the Department of Agriculture and was immediately given charge of the United States plant introduction garden, Chico, Calif., where he gained considerable prestige during the two years of his stay there. It was at Bell Station, Md., however, where Dr. Van Fleet was transferred after he returned from California, that he achieved his most notable success as a hybridizer. The George Robert White medal was conferred upon him in 1918, by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for eminent services in horticulture.

Dr. Van Fleet's long continued and untiring efforts in the improvement of outdoor roses produced many very fine varieties. In addition to his work in the investigation of economic drug and perfume plants he was always actively engaged in experiments for the betterment of hardy roses suitable for every garden. For the common dooryard garden he found hybrid teas, as a whole, not satisfactory, a number of the choicest kinds not having the stamina to withstand our rigorous northern winters. In 1916 Dr. Van Fleet returned temporarily to the government plant introduction garden, at Chico, Calif., where he made over 600 crosses of roses. Banksian, Cherokees and Mac Cartneys were used, with varieties, resulting from his crossings, while stationed there in 1911 and from which had developed noteworthy kinds. One of his famous introductions is Silver Moon, a cross between Devoniensis and Cherokee, and this later with Safrano. Other varieties that gained prominence are Miss Mary Wallace, named after the daughter of the Secretary of Agriculture and which was entered as a contestant for the American Rose Society gold and silver medal and a medal offered by Portland, Ore., for the best kind of rose, at that city in 1921; American Pillar, a garden variety; Dr. Van Fleet, named by others in honor of him; Birdie Bly, an ever-blooming climbing kind; Beauty of Rosemawr; the Lovetts—Bess, Alida and Mary and many other rugosas in the gardens at Bell Station, which were never introduced.

In other channels of horticultural activity Dr. Van Fleet displayed untiring energy. To develop a blight resistant pear, while at Chico, Calif., crosses were made with the native pear of China, a very strong grower, free from disease, but the fruit of which is not edible. After exhaustive experiments a variety, bearing fruit of very large size, was developed. Strawberries came in for his close attention and among other varieties Early Jersey Giant is one of his noteworthy additions to the commercial world. Chinkapins and chestnuts also attracted his interest, and at the time of his death, Dr. Van Fleet had a large orchard comprising a cross between the two which shows great promise as a commercial variety.

Dr. Van Fleet gave considerable attention to gladioli, two of his best known varieties being Principes and Mastodon, introduced by Vaughan's Seed Store, and assisted the late Matthew Crawford in the preparation of the only book on the gladiolus, the second edition of which has just been issued.

Dr. Van Fleet is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Sarah Heilman, whom he married in 1883. The burial was at Watsontown, Pa.

AN APPRECIATION.

President S. S. Pennock of the Society of American Florists offers the following in appreciation of the great esteem in which Dr. Van Fleet was held by all who knew him:

"In this morning's mail I received a letter from Prof. L. G. Corbett, of the Department of Agriculture, telling of Dr. Van Fleet's sudden death. This comes as a great shock to all those who knew him, particularly to those who knew him intimately, as some of us who have been associated in the American Rose Society with him for the past few years.

"His death is a distinct loss to horticulture. In roses he has made wonderful advances in their breeding, probably the most distinct success along these lines of anyone who ever hybridized roses. American Pillar and Dr. Van Fleet roses, that are known the world over, and many others of equal merit, we have him to thank for, giving us climbers that were better than existing varieties. One of his many ambitions was to produce an ever-blooming climber, and it would have been only a matter of a few years when he would have had something startling to give us along these lines.

"In visiting him at the experimental grounds and at his home at Belle Station, Md., one always felt a day, or part of a day, spent with him was a day added to one's life—a day full of interest and full of close intimacy that was not gotten in any other way. He was retiring and modest to a fault—a man that one loved to be with and loved to be counted as a friend, in fact, a real rich privilege to be numbered among those who were close to him.

"To Mrs. Van Fleet our very deepest sympathy goes out in her loss, and not only her loss, but a loss to the whole horticultural world."

Benjamin Dorrance.

Benjamin Dorrance, former president of the American Rose Society and a prominent rose grower died at his home at Dorranceton, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., January 23, of apoplexy, age 75 years. Mr. Dorrance was born on a farm near Kingston, Pa., August 14, 1846, and when 19 years old entered Princeton university. Upon graduation the degrees of A. B. and A. M., were conferred upon him and in 1871 he was admitted to the bar. He followed the profession of a lawyer until 1885, when because of failing sight he found it necessary to retire.

Like many others prominent in the trade Mr. Dorrance built his first greenhouse for amusement, in 1882, but upon retiring from the bar he decided to devote his energies to commercial floriculture and in 1884 erected his first rose house at Dorranceton. His work was most successful and in a few years he had nearly 200,000 square feet under glass devoted to the culture of roses, with an occasional attempt to do carnations in the best style. In his long experience as a grower Mr. Dorrance often asserted that the main secret of success was constant watchfulness and a good memory for failures.

Mr. Dorrance was a life member of the American Rose Society, member of the Society of American Florists, Sons of the Revolution, Society of Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Princeton Club of New York. He was the founder of the borough of Dorranceton, named after his family and at the time of his death was president of the Wyoming Commemorative Association.

Besides his widow, Mr. Dorrance is survived by two daughters.

Mrs. Emily Reed Reck.

It is with deep regret that we announce the death of Mrs. Emily Reed Reck, wife of Carl C. Reck, proprietor of John Reck & Sons, florists, of Bridgeport, Conn., February 1, at her home, 162 Oak street, that city, following a brief illness. Mrs. Reck was widely known there and throughout the state for her activities in organizing Republican women and was a member of the Republican town committee of the Sixth district, playing a prominent part in the recent municipal election. Due to her untiring efforts many women became affiliated with the Sixth District Women's Club.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to Mr. Reck in his irreparable loss. Two children also survive, a son, Thomas and a daughter, Cornelia.

E. D. Sturtevant.

E. D. Sturtevant, a well known horticulturist of Hollywood, Calif., died recently at his home in that city. His collection of water lilies, which had been developed by years of painstaking effort was justly famed throughout that section of California. Other plants were also the subject of his interest and care, many of the specimens being especially noteworthy. Mr. Sturtevant was well versed in horticulture and he took much pleasure in imparting the results of his experience to others. Mr. Sturtevant's collection of aquatic plants first became known at Bordentown, N. J.

NICOTINE prices have been reduced.

THE Cleveland trade has our sincere sympathy in the loss of the National Flower Show, after giving such a large amount of time, effort and money, and planning for its success in that city.

PETER F. HEMER, wandering greenhouse man, at home from the Narrows of the St. Lawrence to the Gulf, was punching the clock near Mt. Vernon, N. Y., February 2. He is now 51 years of age.

WE are in receipt of the preliminary premium list of the ninth annual spring show of the Horticultural Society of New York, and the New York Florists' Club, to be held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, March 13-19. Copies may be had on application to John Young, secretary, 43 West 18th street, New York.

THE Indiana florists deserve the highest commendation for taking over the work of the Fifth National Flower Show, which has been transferred from Cleveland, O., to Indianapolis, Ind., and should be given the unstinted support of the trade everywhere. This is a huge task, and the time at the disposal of the exhibition workers very limited, the dates remaining as before, March 25-April 1.

Federal Horticultural Board.

PROF. FRANK A. WAUGH ON ITS ACTIVITIES.

It is a very curious fact that this "horticultural" board is presided over by an entomologist. This seems to be the situation in reference to state boards generally. The first object of all such boards seems to be to find some insect to describe and some pest to inspect. The protection and promotion of horticulture, while theoretically uppermost in their minds, seems to receive little attention.

"I feel that the activities of this board, and all similar boards, are excessive, in a large degree unnecessary, and in many cases distinctly detrimental to the interests of practical horticulture. I believe that in general their activities should be greatly curtailed, and their policies largely changed. It would seem to be a good principle fundamentally to place horticultural interests under the supervision of a horticulturist. Entomologists and pathologists might be employed incidentally when necessary under proper direction.

"If Secretary Wallace or anybody else can bring about reforms along these lines I shall be very grateful."

[Prof. Waugh is in charge of the Horticultural Department, Massachusetts Agricultural college, Amherst.—Ed.]

Cornell University.

DEPARTMENT OF FLORICULTURE.

Carleton Fontaine, of the Lord & Burnham Co., New York, gave two illustrated lectures on "Greenhouse Construction," one at 10 a. m., and the other at 2 p. m., January 23, before the students of floriculture. His talks were very interesting and practical, and he answered a great many questions on all phases of greenhouse construction. A number of the students attending the winter course are practical florists, or contemplate entering the business shortly after they finish their course at Cornell, so this talk was very timely. Mr. Fontaine's address was the last of a series of lectures given by practical men of the trade on various phases of the floriculture work during the past semester.

The winter course in floriculture ends with the annual farmers' week. From the inquiries which have come in concerning the programme it is anticipated that there will be a large attendance. The New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs have arranged for a programme for the commercial florists of the state, Thursday, February 16. The date of its meeting has been advanced two days, as in previous years it has conflicted with the St. Valentine's Day business of the florists. It is hoped that by this arrangement a larger number of florists will be able to attend than formerly.

Sand, Soil and Earth Importation.

FROM PORTO RICO AND HAWAII.

The Secretary of Agriculture has information that dangerous insect pests, including Phyllophaga spp. (white grubs), Phytalus sp., Adoretus umbrosus var. tenuimaculatus (Japanese rose beetle), and several species of termites new to and not heretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the continental United States, exist in the territories of Porto Rico and Hawaii, and that there is danger of introducing these and other insects in sand, soil, or earth with plants or otherwise from the territories named.

It appears necessary to consider the advisability of quarantining the territories of Porto Rico and Hawaii in accordance with the plant quarantine act of August 20, 1912, as amended by the act of congress approved March 4, 1917, and to prohibit the movement from these territories to the continental United States of sand, soil, or earth, with plants or otherwise. If such quarantine action is taken, it will involve the inspection by inspectors of the federal horticultural board at mainland ports of arrival, particularly of plants, to determine freedom from sand, soil, or earth.

Notice is therefore given that a public hearing will be held at the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., Room 11, federal horticultural board, at 10 a. m., March 7, in order that any person interested in the proposed quarantine may appear and be heard, either in person or by attorney.

Have You an Idea?

Next to character, a new idea is the most valuable thing in the world. A new idea is something that anyone, rich or poor, young or old, can get. Every progressive employer will cheerfully pay for a new idea. The best way to get an increase in salary is to bring your employer a new idea. New ideas are the only things that have made money for me; new ideas are what every one makes money with. I have yet to hear of a person who carried a good idea to his or her employer and did not get rewarded for it. All of us can cash in something on every worth-while new idea.—Roger W. Babson.

American Dahlia Society Bulletin.

The bulletin of the American Dahlia Society, dated January 1922, has been received. It has a neat appearance, the coverpiece featuring a basket of flowers presented to Marshall Foch when he was in this country recently, by Boston admirers. President Richard Vincent, Jr., Geo. W. Kerr, W. W. Wilmore, Prof. Norton, Dr. Marshall C. House, curator of Bronx Park Botanical garden, New York, and A. W. Davidson, a former president of the society, are all contributors. The publication is an interesting compendium of dahlia lore.

Hildenbrand Acquires Young Business.

The wholesale firm of John Young & Co., of the Eighteenth street market, New York, was recently dissolved by the retirement of John Young, whose time is altogether taken up with his duties as secretary of the Society of American Florists. George Hildenbrand, who has conducted the business for several years, will continue it under his own name. He has had many years' experience and is popular in the trade and deserving of patronage.

UNPRECEDENTED SHORTAGE OF STOCK.

The unprecedented shortage of cut flowers in this market still continues and prices have shown a further advance. The cold weather continues and the first snow fell last week in 25 years. A buyer for one of the largest retail shops said that stock has never been so scarce and high priced in his 35 years' experience here. Premier, Columbia and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses, best grades sell at $4 per dozen; second, $2.50 to $3 and shorts, $2. Butterfly, Ophelia and Hadley are also bringing good figures. A heavy demand is also reported for carnations, Laddie bringing $15 per 100. Growers of bulbous flowers are receiving the highest price yet known in this market. For instance Paper White narcissi sell at $2.50 per 100; out door grown daffodils bring $1 per dozen and the stock is of poor quality at that. Tulips are $1 per dozen and Dutch hyacinths are snapped up quickly, $2.50 per dozen spikes. Romans are about finished for the season. Even at the figures above mentioned more bulbous stock could be used if obtainable. A strong call is had for violets, whose growth has been retarded by the severe cold weather. Lilium giganteum is arriving and goes readily. Acacia Baileyana, which in former years brought 25 cents per bunch, is now wholesaling at $1. Freesias have a fine call at $1.25 per bunch. Anemones bring $4 to $5 per 100 and gailardias move at $4 to $6. There is a liberal supply of cut Erica melanthera, but sweet peas are scarce and high and few gardenias are obtainable at any price. Lily of the valley is fairly well maintained. Azaleas and cyclamens are the principal flowering plants offered and sell readily. All foliage plants are in great demand, due to a switching of the call from cut flowers to this class. Shippers are unable to fill all orders.

NOTES.

Garibaldi Bros., who have been identified with greenhouse, building in this locality, have embarked in the growing of cut flowers. They have purchased a block of land and have erected six greenhouses 200 feet long. These are now planted with snapdragon and early vegetables, but will be devoted to cut flowers entirely, next season.

Angelo J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has tendered his resignation to Mayor Rolph as a member of the playground commission. His recent election to the Board of Supervisors of this city has made this step necessary, as the charter provides that two positions may not be held at the same time by one person.

At the greenhouses of E. Schwerin there are thousands of hyacinths and tulips growing for spring flowers. A large amount of this stock is grown outdoors, as Mr. Schwerin found several years ago that his soil is peculiarly adapted to the growing of bulbous stock of every description.

L. Garibaldi has opened a nicely equipped flower store in the Richmond district at 12th avenue and Clement street. He has hitherto engaged in the growing end of the business and is well known as a dahlia specialist.

The nursery and propagating department of Golden Gate park is being removed to larger and better quarters near the buffalo paddocks. A large public stadium will be built on the site of the old nursery.

G. Rossi & Co. are handling a fine grade of Acacia Baileyana these days. Prices are very much higher than in former years, due to the extremely cold weather experienced since the first of the year.

Frank P. Roach, of the Lynch Nursery Co., of Menlo Park, was a trade visitor last week. He has accepted the Democratic nomination for sheriff of San Mateo county.

Martin Poss, owner of the Floral

City Greenhouses at San Mateo, says the demand for plants of all kinds for spring planting is much better than last year.

Henry Avansino is making a decided success as a rose grower and is supplying this market with some excellent stock from his greenhouses at San Lorenzo.

Manuel Roller, proprietor of the Western Evergreen Nursery, has been critically ill at the Lane hospital. Late reports seem to indicate that the worst is over.

The Retail Florists' Association will hereafter hold all meetings at Native Son's Hall, instead of the Co-operative Flower Market.

Thos. Holmes, of C. C. Morse & Co.'s retail store on Market street, reports a steady call for roses and fruit trees.

John A. Carbone is sending in a steady cut of cattleyas from his orchid range at Berkeley.

HEAVY SNOW DEPRESSES BUSINESS.

"Oh my, what a storm!" Everyone has been using this expression the past few days and they have had reason for it. One of the worst storms since 1899 visited our city and state, covering this entire section with 26 inches of snow. All city traffic was at a standstill and residents of the rural districts were snowbound. Growers experienced great difficulty in getting their flowers to the market, while the retailers had trouble in delivering. What was the result? A great slump in business for several days, for the public had very little use for flowers. So far there has been only one report of a cave-in and this resulted in very little damage to stock. Local market conditions seem to be somewhat improved. There is a good supply of everything except roses, and the prices high for the quality of the stock offered for sale. Spring flowers are plentiful.

ARTISTIC WINDOW DISPLAY.

As one travels through the streets with ice under foot, snowbanks six to eight feet high, a chill cutting breeze striking one in the face, he suddenly pauses. Behold, right before him a florist window is a picture, the name which might be called spring. In the foreground is a pond of water with goldfish gaily splashing here and there and a background of pussy willows reflecting their silver catkins in the mirrored surface below; here a cluster of varied colored hyacinths, there a cluster of orange tulips with pansies and forget-me-nots forming borders. Right on the edge of the pond is a row of freesias intermixed with violets whose petals almost touch the water. Such a picture can be seen in the window of one of the local stores. It is indeed a breath of spring. The passerby catches the note of spring and pauses. Unconsciously he has caught the message of the flower. He passes on. You, Mr. Florist, have accomplished something. You have painted a picture on his mind; he is thinking, perhaps, of some sick friend; a birthday; a newcomer to this world; a departed friend—he turns back and enters the shop to send his message of hope, of cheer, of congratulation, or sympathy on its way.

FLORIST' CLUB MEETING.

Everything is in readiness for the next Florists' Club meeting, and ladies' night, Monday, February 13. Do not make any engagements for this date. S. S. Pennock is the speaker. Refreshments? Come and see. Our genial president reports a heavy fall of snow down on the "neck." He seems to be a trifle worried about the next meeting. Let us show him that we are all behind him and everyone be present for this occasion. He deserves the support of us all.

NOTES.

In a locality of this kind, where a snowstorm of this type so seldom visits us, everyone is so unprepared to meet such an emergency. Sleighs and snowploughs are very hard to find. A local concern, a public servant, called upon many times in an emergency, met the present situation admirably. They visited every old stable and auction place in the city and hauled out every old sleigh they could find, some of them all broken and ready for the fire. Nevertheless, they got them out, fixed them up and placed them on their emergency fleet.

St. Valentine's Day will soon be here. Are you prepared for it? This day has grown to be a big red letter day in the florist business. "Hearts and Flowers." Nothing can express the sentiments of the heart as well as flowers.

This severe cold weather has hurt the market business. In passing through one only sees wax artificial flowers fastened to the ends of laurel sprays; a poor substitute for the real thing.

Thos. Stevenson is still enjoying the warm southern winter, at Miami, Fla. He attended W. J. Bryan's bible class, 3,000 being in attendance.

The firm of Sieck & Glick report that they have secured the following shippers: The Akehurst Co., roses, and Mr. Siegart, orchids.

Representatives of Henry A. Dreer Co., S. S. Pennock Co. and Wertheimer Bros. Co., Philadelphia, Pa., visited this city last week.

The new concern of Glick & Guerth report business good. They are handling some excellent roses and freesias.

James Glass has some fine primulas and his cyclamens are also very good.

PRICES HOLDING FIRMLY.

The market this week held firm and steady and all theories advanced that it will break from day to day are of no avail against the fact that stock cleans up well at good prices. At the beginning of each week predictions are made that prices will take a drop before the week end, but up to the present there has not been any day when trade has been poor. Roses, of course, are the leaders and while they are not at all plentiful, all things considered, are bringing a good price. Carnations are inclined to fluctuate a trifle but it is hardly noticeable. Jonquils, sweet peas and violets are increasing quite rapidly, but they hold up well in price. Orchids, lily of the valley and gardenias while not meeting any great demand are not arriving plentifully enough to cause a break in the market.

NOTES.

Wm. Gibson, sales manager for Thos. Roland, Nahant, died at his home February 2. He had been ailing a long time with chronic bronchitis, although the direct cause of his death was pneumonia.

The annual meeting of the New England Nurserymen's Association was held at the American house, January 31-February 1, a full account of which appears in the nursery department.

The funeral services of the late Philip L. Carbone, an account of whose death appeared in our issue of February 4, page 145, were held at Mt. Auburn chapel, February 2. See obituary column for further particulars.

BULBOUS STOCK IS PLENTIFUL.

The past week brought the long expected increased supply all along the line, from the top to the bottom of the list, which naturally caused a slump in prices, but even with an increased supply there was no surplus until the latter part of the week, when carnations and bulb stock began to pile up, and for the first time for many weeks the wholesale houses had some stock left to carry over Sunday. The retailers all report that if it were not for the funeral work there would be very little doing. The bright days have hurried up the rose crop and improved the quality, but there are still too many fancy ones in proportion to the short and medium grades. Carnations are on the increase and the quality is of the best, but the end of the week found them bringing just about half of what they brought at the beginning. Easter lilies are still cleaning up daily, while callas are more plentiful and seem to drag at times. The heavy cutting of bulbous stock is really the cause of the oversupply and includes jonquils, tulips, both single and double, hyacinths and freesias, and all of these items are being received in quantity. The supply of sweet peas has almost doubled over the previous week, with a consequent drop in price. Lily of the valley moves slowly and at times is almost impossible to sell and it seems as though the shortage and high prices during the war has almost killed its sale and it will take time and publicity to get it back where it belongs. Violets, calendulas, snapdragons and baby primroses complete the list.

RETAIL FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

The February 2 meeting of the Retail Florists' Association was a failure due to the fact that there were only seven members present and three of them were wholesalers. Why is it that the retailers will not get together and work together for the good of the business? It seems too bad that they cannot get out and attend the meetings when they only come once a month. If the attendance does not pick up, and the members do not show more interest, there is no doubt but what we will have to give up the ghost.

NOTES.

The A. W. Smith Co. has one of the prettiest window displays seen here in a long time. In fact their whole store, facing on both Liberty and Seventh streets, is all large show windows, so they are never cramped for space to make a display. The background of this particular window is a lattice covered with southern smilax and artificial wisterias with about 50 canaries in different styled cages hanging from the lattice and placed in the foreground among the valentine novelties and plants. It has caused much comment and there is always a crowd in front admiring it.

The McClements Co.'s windows are always attractive with their fruit and flower combinations, and any rare fruit or flower desired that cannot be found there would be pretty hard to locate anywhere else.

The E. A. Williams Co.'s store has the appearance of spring with its display of pussywillows, jonquils, tulips, sweet peas, freesias and everything springy.

Funeral work, as well as other trade, has been very good with the E. C. Ludwig Co.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

Members of the Florists' Club at the February 4th meeting had a discussion on the retention of the special delivery feature of the parcel post. According to reports from Washington a bill in congress provides for the abolition of special delivery service in connection with the parcel post, retaining it only for first class mail. In a letter to William C. Gloeckner, Congressman Peter G. Ten Eyck, from this district, wrote he would do what he can to have the special delivery feature retained. The members of the club endorsed the action of Congressman Ten Eyck and in their discussion gave it as their opinion that they wanted the service retained even if the Postoffice

Gentlemen:

It gives me pleasure to state how pleased we are with the work done on the poplar tree in our home at Thetford, Vt. The work was done with a thoroughness that awakened admiration from every one who saw it, and included devices that must go a great ways toward making the work last. Let me add that we appreciated very much the courteous and gentlemanly young men who did the work. While they were working in the midst of a girls' camp they fell in with the camp spirit and so adapted themselves to its life that we regretted to have them leave.

Hoping that it will be possible for us to afford further work done on our trees at some future time, I am

Very sincerely,

Department decided to increase the fee considerably for it. The special delivery of parcel post is what makes it of great value to the florist.

Members of the club will attend Farmers' Week at the State College of Agriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, February 16, when a programme of special interest for florists and horticulturists will be given. This is the day selected for the meeting of the New York State Federation of Horticultural Societies and Florists' club, the delegates being guests of the college on that day. The local club will be represented by Fred A. Danker, Fred Henkes, Fred Goldring, William Hannell, and Joseph Traudt.

On motion of Fred A. Danker the club voted to advertise in the local papers once a week the slogan: "Say It With Flowers." The space, one inch or more, will be given over entirely to the slogan. The members, who are retail florists, agreed among themselves to conduct a joint campaign to advertise flowers for St. Valentine's Day. The committee of retailers named to collect funds and to look after the publicity is made up of Edward P. Tracey, chairman; Frederick A. Danker, and William McGinn.

The club has arranged for a public lecture on rose gardens by Robert Pyle, president of the American Rose Society, and of the Dingee & Conard Co., West Grove, Pa. The secretary was instructed to communicate with President Pyle in regard to a date. It has been suggested that the lecture be given on the night of February 24 in Chancellor's hall, State Education building, but the final decision will rest with President Pyle. The retail florists will be supplied with tickets to be distributed free among their customers. It is expected the lecture will greatly stimulate interest in plants and flowers among the people of the community.

Committees for the year were announced by President Jenkins as follows: Entertainment—Fred A. Danker, chairman; John Murmane, George Nagengast, and Frederick Henkes; finance—Fred Goldring, chairman; Wm. Newport, Fred A. Danker and Samuel Hanson; sick visitation—H. E. Eberhardt, Schenectady; W. O. Olmstead, Troy; Samuel Hanson, Troy; Thomas F. Tracey, Fred Henkes, Newtonville; Fred Goldring, Slingerland; flower show—Edward P. Tracey, chairman; Samuel Hanson, Fred A. Danker, Fred Henkes, W. O. Olmstead, Wm. Hannell, Wm. Maver, Fred Gloeckner, Wm. Newport, H. E. Eberhardt, Fred Goldring, Dale Carpenter and James Snyder.

FUNERAL WORK SWELLS TRADE.

A decided improvement in the demand for flowers and pot plants is reported. The dullness of the latter part of January has given way to a better tone. Funeral work is especially good and party work has also improved some, although social affairs are not taking the large amount of flowers as they did just previous to the holidays. Sorority dances were rather numerous during the week as the second semester started at the state university at that time. Sweet peas are now probably the best feature of the trade. They are being cut in large quantities and sell around $2 per bunch. Violets are also coming in well and prices have been reduced to $1.50 to $2 per bunch. Roses are still scarce at $4 to $12 per dozen.

Carnations are of fine quality and are plentiful. Easter lilies and tulips are arriving. Spring flowers such as yellow jonquils and Rainbow freesias are selling fairly well. Indications point to a continuation of the good supply. Pot plants consisting of primroses, cyclamens and hyacinths are very popular.

NOTES.

S. F. Stephens & Son, Greenlawn cemetery, is cutting a large number of bulbous flowers including tulips, jonquils and hyacinths. The quality generally is excellent and the stock is finding a ready sale at good prices.

Underwood Bros., on Twenty-first street, are having a good demand for various cut flowers, including narcissi, hyacinths and tulips.

Herman Kropp, owner and manager of the Neil House Flower Shop, is very much encouraged over the outlook and believe that the demand will continue good during the spring. A nice line of roses, carnations, violets, narcissi and sweet peas are features.

T. J. Ludwig, who operates a large retail store at 82 North High street, is selling a large number of loose flowers and corsages. He has had a brisk funeral demand lately which has helped to increase the volume of business. Mr. Ludwig believes that trade will continue good and that St. Valentine's Day will develop a strong demand.

The resignations of Chas. McIntyre, chief agriculturist for eight years, and S. W. Moore, chief horticulturist for the same length of time, have been accepted by Dr. H. S. MacAyeal, director of the department of public welfare of Ohio. The two positions, each of which paid $3,000 annually, will be combined in the interest of economy.

DEMAND IS IMPROVING.

The demand for stock is improving and the outlook is fair for a brisk St. Valentine business. American Beauty roses are arriving in good-sized quantities, but the quality could be much better. Columbia, Russell, Crusader, Butterfly, Sunburst, Milady, Montrose, My Maryland, Victor, Golden Rule, Hearst, Double White Killarney, Hoosier Beauty, Phantom, Nesbit and Cecile Brunner are plentiful and offer the retailer a splendid variety to select from. Carnations are in good supply and are moving fairly well. Lilies are inclined to be on the short side, but the receipts of callas are quite heavy. Orchids are to be had in quantity and the same holds true for lily of the valley. Sweet peas are in good supply and the receipts of home-grown single violets are large. Double violets are reported to be in good crop and regular shipments of singles are coming from California. Paper White narcissus is obtainable at all the stores and a few yellow are seen at some of the establishments. Freesias are quite a factor in the market, including the colored varieties. Tulips and jonquils are plentiful. Mignonette, snapdragons, stevia, pansies, daisies, calendulas, cut hyacinths, heather and statice are on the list of offerings. Greens are in good supply. The retail stores are making a strong bid for the St. Valentine business and are making special displays for the occasion in which the red heart-shaped box is given prominence. Blooming plants also play an important part in the retail store displays and the cut flower market is easing to such an extent that the dealers are able to make good showings in the windows again.

THE SUPREMACY

Of the Chicago market in variety, quality and quantity is achieved. Every day new buyers make their choice from the world's greatest stock of cut flowers. Every day old buyers are coming to recognize Chicago as the one reliable source of supply.

Our own responsibility in this great market is weighted with the years; our resources are more than adequate; our connections are with quality producers only.

NOTES.

J. Smith and E. Ryan are opening a new retail store at 5456 Ashland avenue under the name of the Boulevard Floral Co. Mr. Smith is known to the trade through his connection with the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, where he has been employed up to the time he resigned to go into the retail business. The A. L. Randall Co. had the order for the store fixtures.

W. Cleveland Johnson, of Memphis, Tenn., spent several days here last week after visiting the trade at Springfield and Cincinnati, O., and enjoying a pleasant visit with the Hills at Richmond, Ind. Mr. Johnson has just completed a new conservatory and reports business as gradually improving.

Henry A. Zender, president of Peter Reinberg, Inc., is a candidate for clerk of the Probate Court and J. A. Mendell, well-known retailer, is a candidate for county commissioner on the democratic ticket. Both were recommended by the committee of 17 to the full managing committee for ratification.

George Wienhoeber's store on Michigan avenue is beginning to make things hum under the able management of Peter Miller. The sales for Saturday, February 4, were unusually good and about equal to half of those of his South Wabash avenue establishment.

The Kanston funerals called for a large number of floral offerings last week. Oscar Kanston and wife and daughters, Dorothy and Aulyn, were killed in the Knickerbocker theatre disaster at Washington. The four were buried on the same day.

Mangel's artistic window displays in the Palmer House have been attracting much favorable attention. Azaleas play an important part in the showing this week, together with all seasonable cut flowers and a perfect blending of colors.

A. F. Gardiner, with J. M. Cochrane, 1107 South Michigan avenue, and H. T. Lemaire will open a retail store in the Fifteenth street public market, under the name of the Market Floral Co., about February 18.

The Elks opened their national bowling tournament at Bensinger's West Randolph street alleys, February 4. Allie Zech is bowling on one of the local teams and got a strike the first ball he rolled the opening night. O. Christman bowled with the Des Moines, Ia., crowd and others in the trade are expected to participate before the tournament closes.

The Alpha Floral Co. is making a grand showing of blooming plants and cut flowers for St. Valentine's Day. This firm is quick to fill the windows with stock the moment the market begins to ease up.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is receiving shipments of southern grown narcissus from August Juer-gen's farm in Mississippi.

Zech & Mann are handling a good supply of bulbous stock in addition to their regular line. Lilies are quite an item at their establishment.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are all set for the St. Valentine's business and are prepared to handle all the late orders that come in.

Phil. Weinberg, employed in Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s cut flower department, is the proud father of a 12-pound baby boy.

Wietor Bros. are making heavy shipments of young stock plants especially chrysanthemum and carnation cuttings.

The J. A. Budlong Co. reports a great improvement in trade the past week especially from out-of-town points.

Be sure that the name MEYER is on every spool of green Florists thread that you are buying, and you will get the original and best green Florists thread on the market. A great many of the salesmen on the road and the Florists' supply houses are substituting a cheap and inferior green Florists thread to take the place of the Meyer Green Silkline and Florists' thread.

Therefore, if you cannot get the real article, send the goods back and order direct from the manufacturer and you will get the best. Guaranteed two ounces of actual thread to the spool, 16 ounces to the pound.

R. W. Reed has joined the George Wienhoeber force at his Michigan avenue store.

MARKET CONTINUES TO IMPROVE.

Market conditions during the past week have been very good. Stock of extra good quality moves readily to meet a brisk demand. Both cut flowers and pot material are bringing good prices and have cleaned up daily. The call for roses has been very good, especially reds. Premier is probably the best seller and is bringing from $10 to $40 per 100. Mrs. Chas. Russell is in good demand but the supply is limited; they are bringing from $10 to $25 per 100. Sunburst and Ophelia are in very good demand at $6 to $20, the latter running a trifle higher. White Killarney are popular. The Crusaders and Columbia are in fair demand at $8 to $20. Cecile Brunners are scarce. Butterfly and Ward move readily, selling at $5 to $15. Carnations have improved in quality, Laddie still holding its own as the best seller. Reds, pinks and whites are all in good demand, however, cleaning up at $4 to $8 per 100, Laddie bringing as high as $12. Cattleyas, lily of the valley and gardenias, fine stock, are going better than at any time this season. Tulips, jonquils, narcissi, both white and yellow, freesias and hyacinths are in strong demand, both the cut and the pot material. The stock is of excellent quality. Pot tulips bring six cents per flower; jonquils and narcissi, eight to 10 cents and hyacinths 15 to 20 cents per bloom. The cut material moves very rapidly. Sweet peas move well and the material is good. Nearly all shades are obtainable and are bringing from $1 to $3 per 100, according to stems and blooms. Violets are also very active and are bringing from $1 to $1.50 per 100. The stock is excellent. The few snapdragons seen are soon sold. Calendulas are of excellent quality. There is a good demand for Easter lilies at the present time but the quantity is limited. They are bringing $4 per dozen. Calla lilies are also active, chiefly for funeral work. Stevias and mignonette are plentiful. Primulas, cyclamens and begonias are all plentiful and of good quality. Greens are in big demand. Ferns, adiantums, asparagus plumosa and A. Sprengeri, leucothe, galax and coontie foliage, which is similar to Sago palm leaves and are used in their stead, are cleaning up. Smilax is popular at $6 per crate.

NOTES.

Some good valentine suggestions were seen at the Ayers Floral Co.'s establishment recently. Bouquets of calendulas, sweet peas, freesias, narcissi and Sunburst roses were displayed in attractive books and made an excellent window. They also displayed two of their $2 Saturday special boxes, pink carnations and narcissi.

President S. S. Pennock and Secretary John Young, of the Society of American Florists, will be in this city February 8, on their way to Kansas City, Mo. They will be entertained during their stay by Louis A. Hoerr, of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co.

A fine St. Valentine's Day business is expected by the Grimm & Gorley establishment, 716 Washington avenue. Some very attractive suggestions for valentines in cut flowers and pot plants were displayed to advantage in the windows.

A record business was enjoyed by the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. last week. Stock moved rapidly and generally cleaned up before noon. It is hoped that business will continue good, and by all present indications it will.

The Florists' Club will hold its next meeting February 9, at the Windler Wholesale Cut Flower Co., 1320 Pine street. A good attendance is expected.

The Mullanphy Floral Co. displayed some excellent pot tulips, hyacinths and primulas, last week.

Cinerarias and primulas were features with the Teresa Bodara Co., 1316 Olive street.

BEST DEMAND OF YEAR FOR STOCK.

Business the past week was the best experienced since January 1. The trade is more fortunate than other lines, which have been more or less inactive. Sweet peas are showing the effects of the bright weather, the supply having doubled within the week. Roses are in heavier supply and find a good market, bringing $8 to $30 per 100. Carnations are holding their own and are better in quality than they have been for some time. Calla and Easter lilies are still scarce, although the former are a little more numerous. Bulbous stock seems to be moving well and the offerings are gradually increasing. Daffodils are selling as fast as they arrive. Rainbow and Purity freesias are in heavy supply, selling at $2 to $5 per 100, according to grade. Miscellaneous stock, including violets, lily of the valley, primulas and snapdragons are finding a ready market.

NOTES.

Thos. Nelage, of the Peebles Corner Flower Shoppe, has made a name for himself here because of the success he has made since taking hold of that establishment.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to C. E. Critchell in the death of his brother, Wm. Critchell, of the Hyde Park Lumber Co., this city.

Pans of early tulips and daffodils are being brought in by E. C. Rutenschroer, Price Hill, who reports sales as excellent.

fair, the result being that prices hold very well. Roses in the shorter lengths are still scarce and any one willing to pay a fancy price can get most any thing they want. The supply of lilies has not increased and clean up daily at $25 per 100. Tulips, daffodils, Paper White narcissi and freesias are coming in rapidly and sell at good figures. Callas clean up daily and many more could be used if they were obtainable. Yellow daisies, calendulas, pussy willows, violets and other small flowers are arriving in quantity and sell well. Lily of the valley sells slowly and even at reduced prices is hard to move now, although funeral work the past week used up immense quantities of orchids, lily of the valley, violets, sweet peas, roses, carnations and all fulbous flowers.

NOTES.

Henry A. Carpenter, one of the officials of the Grinnell Co., and one of the best known men here, died during the week and all the florists here were called upon to supply flowers for the most pretentious display that the city has seen in some time. The pieces were varied, and there were over 150 designs and sprays delivered, lily of the valley, orchids, violets and roses predominating, and several pieces showed the large amount of money spent for them.

BUSINESS GAINING STEADILY.

The usual post-holiday slump has passed and business has been gaining steadily and the prospects for a good spring trade are excellent. Funeral work has been exceptionally heavy lately and good stock for this class of work is very scarce. Roses, especially, are short but are picking up gradually. In spite of their scarcity the prices have held firm at $2 to $6 per dozen, retail. Carnations have been plentiful and of fair quality, bringing $1 for medium and $1.50 for best grade. Tulips, hyacinths, jonquils and many other spring flowers are making their appearance on the market now and the demand for them is good. Prospects are excellent for an extra fine supply of these stocks for the Easter trade. Prices for pot stock range from $1 to $4. Two dollars per dozen is the prevailing price for cut jonquils. Sweet peas, violets, freesias, forget-me-nots, mignonettes, snapdragons and calendulas are in fair supply and move slowly.

HEAVY SUPPLY MOVES SLOWLY.

The market the past week has been a great disappointment. A week ago there was a very good call for stock at top market prices, then on Saturday came the blizzard which put a quietus to all business, but appeared to increase the supply, and the market was soon piled high with flowers that had no place to go. There was a fair demand Friday and Saturday, particularly for roses, but quite a block of these, together with all the other surplus, had to be carried over into the next week. Bulbous stock is plentiful, especially Paper White narcissi and daffodils, both selling as low as $30 per 1,000, which is said to be less than the cost of production. Carnations are more plentiful and yet there are not as many as the market generally takes at this season of the year. The stock is fine, but the price is about one-half of what they brought a week ago. Sweet peas are a factor and seen in large quantities. The quality is fine. Calendulas are also a quantity stock. Callas are plentiful but Easter lilies are on the short side. Violets move slowly. Of the choice stock, cattleyas are a trifle scarcer while there is plenty of fine white lilac, gardenias and lily of the valley.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

Geo. E. M. Stummpp's address on "The Advertising of Flowers," was the literary feature of the Florists' Club, February 7, meeting at the Adelphia hotel. It was intensely practical and full of unique selling appeals, along an entirely new line, that were most forceful, making a great impression on the large audience present. The display tables contained a wealth of artistically arranged floral valentine vases of roses, carnations, other flowers and foliage plants.

ARE THERE TOO MANY FLOWERS?

In answer as to whether there are too many flowers or not enough demand, a large dealer stated that the market was not overstocked for the season, and that as many or more flowers should be sold every day, as are now coming in. The fault lay in their distribution in which both growers and retailers were to blame. In almost every other line, except flowers, the merits of merchandise of all kinds were constantly kept before the public in more or less elaborate advertisements, paid for by the manufacturers of special lines in making a market for their goods, and by large retail houses who had these and other lines to move. While no individual cut flower grower could afford to create a demand in this way, yet collectively all growers in a community could, when it was necessary to move a surplus, advertise their products to great advantage and in association with prominent retailers regarding prices and featuring of the stock sell a lot of flowers in a short time, and at satisfactory prices to all concerned. Retailers would advertise not collectively, but as individuals, each calling attention to his own shop and the special sale in progress. Special sales such as these with their publicity and other attractive features would attract new buyers and make lovers of flowers of people who had not thought they could afford them before. If a few of the leaders of the trade, practical business men would get together and try this out at the first serious overproductive period, results would justify its continuance.

Sydney Bayersdorfer, son of Harry Bayersdorfer of the Florists' Supply House of America, was married to Miss Netta Levy, of Manning, S. C., February 2. Among the valuable presents was a sterling silver tea set from the employes of the store. On his leaving the shop the ladies of the office, for want of a better opportunity, pelted him with rice. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bayersdorfer were also present at the ceremony. The happy couple will spend their honeymoon in Europe, sailing from New York February 7.

The trade learned with deep regret of the sudden death of Dr. Van Fleet, the eminent rose hybridizer of the Government's Arlington rose test gardens, Washington, D. C. His American Pillar, Dr. Van Fleet and Silver Moon are a few of the standard varieties that he has given to the world, and which are in every rose garden and collection of note. There will, no doubt, be found many valuable varieties amongst his seedlings of the past few years. See obituary column for further particulars.

H. H. Battles has purchased the store property at 1718 Chestnut street. This is a commodious shop, 20 feet wide, on a lot 152 feet in depth to a back street. There is a large "for rent" sign in the show window, and also rumors of another flower shop in this rapidly growing retail district.

store No. 1, to be followed shortly by No. 2, for which a location has already been selected.

"They can't be beat," said Edw. Reid recently, pointing to a vase of fine carnations in his store, which certainly had quality. High grade roses are also features of his large stock.

The Robert Craig Co. is delighted with the condition of their Easter stock, which in its quality and variety was never better. Their rambler roses are particularly fine.

Berger Bros. are featuring spring bulb stock, showing daffodils and tulips in quantity. Snapdragons and choice sweet peas are also leaders.

White lilacs, gardenias and cattleyas are features of the Leo Niessen Co. stock. Daffodils and high grade sweet peas are also quantity items.

The Philadelphia Growers' Cut Flower Market is featuring choice roses and sweet peas. At least one new grower is being added each week.

President S. S. Pennock paid a hurried visit to Cleveland, O., February 6, on business connected with the National Flower Show.

Charles H. Grakelow paid a flying visit to Montreal, Ont., Tuesday, January 31.

New York.

HEAVIER SUPPLY OF STOCK.

The outstanding features of the past week were a heavier supply of stock, a light demand and a heavy cut in wholesale prices. In tea roses and carnations values have declined all along the line. Extra roses that throughout the greater part of January brought $20 per 100 are now down to $12 and $15, with similar reductions in other grades. American Beauties and Scott Keys, not being so generally grown, are holding up somewhat better than the bulk of the stock. In carnations, Mrs. Ward went as high as $12 per 100, but is now down to $8, with inferior stock going at $4 and $6. In tulips and yellow narcissi there is almost a glut tulips, according to quality, running from 35 to 75 cents per dozen, the Darwins, of course, having greater value. Narcissus is going at about the same rate as common tulips. There is an increased supply of sweet peas with consequent reductions in prices. Cattleyas continue plentiful and comparatively cheap. The supply of acacias and gardenias is limited, the latter having advanced to $6 per dozen, being an exception to the general rule. Double violets are hard to move at 50 cents per 100 and the surplus is in the hands of the street vendors. Singles go somewhat better. The weather during the past week was generally mild with heavy rain on the night of February 1, which about cleaned off the snow from the streets.

February 6.—Heavy supplies continue to arrive with no increase in the demand.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

The next meeting of the Florists Club will be held in the Engineering building, 25-33 West Thirty-ninth street, February 13. Among important matters that will come before the meeting are a number of proposed and important amendments to the by-laws of the club. There should be a full attendance, as such matters after being voted on are not easily rescinded.

NOTES.

The wholesale firm of John Young & Co., of the Eighteenth street market has been dissolved by the retirement of John Young, whose time is altogether taken up with his duties as secretary of the Society of American Florists. George Hildenbrand, who has conducted the business for several years, will continue it under his own name. He has had many years experience and is popular in the trade and deserving of patronage.

Adam Trepel, whose activities have been previously mentioned in these columns, opened his new store for business, February 4, which is finely located at 892 Flatbush avenue, Brooklyn. Plate glass windows and a succession of mirrors are noteworthy features in the outfitting of the establishment. The location is one of the most popular in that borough, the Erasmus Hall high school being just opposite.

Mayor Hylan has appointed Mrs. Schenck, wife of Charles Schenck, of the wholesale firm of Traendly & Schenck, as a trustee of Hunter college, this city, which is located at Madison avenue and East Sixty-eighth street. This is considerably above the average, as far as merit is concerned, of the mayor's appointments.

A local newspaper recently published a picture of Miss Irene Hayes with the following comment: "Miss Irene Hayes, flower artist of New York, who on a recent visit to Chicago declared that flowerers cure all troubles. 'I wonder why doctors bar them from sick rooms?' she added." Miss Hayes is a well-known retail florist of this city.

Al Warendorff and wife started February 7 for a silver honeymoon trip to Miami, Fla. They were to celebrate their silver wedding February 10 at Mirimar inn, that city. Both have long been active and well known in the retail business of this city.

OAKHURST, ORANGE CITY, FLA.

Winter Residence of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dickinson, Chicago.

INVITATIONS are out for the wedding of Miss Marion Cuthbertson, sister of Frank G. Cuthbertson, of C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, Calif., and daughter of William Cuthbertson, of Dobbie & Co., Edinburgh, Scotland, to the Rev. Alison Reid Bryan, son of a Chicago minister, in the Indian Presbyterian church, Poona, India, where the bridegroom-elect is now located, March 2.

CAPITOLA, CALIF.—James A. Brown, of the Brown Bulb Ranch, and wife, have returned from Europe, and Mr. Brown reports excellent business there, in sweet pea seed contracts. Mr. Brown, who made many calls on growers, returning from New York, says many of the statements made with regard to iris and other California grown bulbs, are not true where these bulbs are properly cured.

Dickinson on Timothy Seed.

The following report on timothy seed was received from the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, February 1:

"Timothy seed is a large subject. Its volume in pounds runs into many millions. Clovers are cosmopolitan, while timothy is provincial, home made. It comes largely from the prairie states. The greater part of it is consumed in North America, although nearly every season important quantities are sent abroad. Market conditions reflect supply and demand. We would speak of this season's movement and the situation as it looks at present. We try to give it broadly, briefly, boiled down and predigested. We give comparisons, contrasts, rather than large figures, which could not be strictly accurate, and might mislead. At the close of the spring season of 1920, there remained a very considerable amount carried into the following season. This surplus, together with the entire crop of 1920 was reduced to relatively small proportions by July, 1921. The harvest outturn of this present season was undoubtedly smaller than of the year before, while the actual seeding demand this past fall was larger than usual, thus making heavy inroads into the supply. The new seed was sold freely by farmers and dealers in producing districts, so that today the growing sections are more closely cleared than for several years. The supply of timothy seed wherever situated is very much less than a year ago. In other words, there is less seed available today than was actually used last season, from this time on. Highest grade seed, for which the demand increases, is particularly conspicuous by its comparative scarcity so early in the season. The tendency among farmers is to revert to meadows. Timothy is still cheaper than some of the other seeds."

Henry Field's Business.

The Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, Ia., writes as follows, February 4: "All departments of our business are enjoying a most satisfactory trade, although garden seeds, clover seed, especially the new clover, Hubam, and seed corn seem to be the leaders. In one day, recently, we received 33 cash orders for seed corn, which is very close to a record for so early in the year.

"On January 30, 2,085 orders were sent in, amounting to nearly $7,000 in cash, being more than double for the same date a year ago, and probably exceeds even the big days of the war period. The gain in business over 1921 seems to be increasing as the season advances."

Hubam Clover in Ohio.

Hubam, widely hailed in many quarters as a phenomenal new white sweet clover, seems less desirable in central Ohio than the plain biennial white clover, its parent plant. Tests conducted on the experimental farms of the Ohio State university, Columbus, compel such a conclusion, says C. J. Willard, of the farm crops department there. His report states: Sown the same day in wheat, Hubam made only 100 pounds more hay than the white biennial, and the Hubam hay was of very poor quality, while the biennial hay was as good as alfalfa. The protein content of the Hubam was 14.6 pounds; of the biennial, 19.1 pounds. As to soil improvement, Hubam left only 260 pounds of roots in an acre of ground, while the biennial left 1,890 pounds. Had the two crops been plowed under on October 1, the biennial would have returned twice the amount of nitrogen to the soil. Hubam proved a wonderful seed producer. The university secured 223 pounds of clean scarified seed to the acre from a seeding of 1½ pounds. In view of this tremendous seed production, and the fact that 600,000 pounds of seed were produced in 1921, farmers should not expect to make a fancy profit on Hubam seed in 1922.

New Jersey Ass'n of Nurserymen.

ANNUAL MEETING, JANUARY 27.

The annual meeting of the New Jersey Association of Nurserymen was held at Trenton, January 27, President Lester C. Lovett in the chair. At the afternoon session, Dr. T. J. Headlee and Dr. Mel T. Cook presented annual reports relative to the insect pests of the state. F. F. Rockwell, Bridgeton, chairman of the market development committee, explained the benefits and necessity of this kind of work. At the close of the meeting Dr. Headlee invited the association to hold its summer meeting at the Riverton laboratory, which was heartily accepted, the date of same being left to the president and executive committee.

The following officers were elected for 1922: Fred. D. Osman, New Brunswick, president; L. C. Bobbink, Rutherford, vice-president; K. M. Van Gelderen, Long Branch, N. J., secretary-treasurer; Wm. F. Miller, Collingwood, membership committee; Wm. Flemer, Sr., Princeton, executive committee.

American Forestry Association.

WASHINGTON MEETING, JANUARY 26.

The American Forestry Association celebrated the fortieth anniversary of its founding at Cincinnati with an annual meeting at Washington, D. C., January 26, at which several resolutions were adopted having to do with forestry subjects. New by-laws of the association were adopted and other business transacted. President Charles Lathrop Pack appointed a nominating committee and the vote for new officers and several members of the board of directors will be by mail. The result of this vote will be announced shortly.

Among the resolutions adopted was one urging that congress adopt a national forest policy law; to improve fire prevention methods; tree research work and to provide additional national forests and forest land. The speakers were Hon. Irvine L. Lenroot, senator from Wisconsin, and Col. Henry S. Graves, former chief of the United States Forest Service, who is now dean of the Forestry School at Yale university, New Haven, Conn.

Coincident with the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the association, it also celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the first Arbor Day in this country, which was set aside by Nebraska in 1872, following a resolution introduced by J. Sterling Morton at that time. Later the state moved the date to April 22, the birthday of Mr. Morton.

The reports of the association show that there has been a tremendous revival of everything having to do with outdoor planting. The association is registering all memorial trees planted in a national honor roll.

P. S. RIDSDALE, Sec'y.

New England Nurserymen's Association.

ANNUAL MEETING, JAN. 31-FEB. 1.

The annual convention of the New England Nurserymen's Association was held at the American house, Boston, January 31-February 1, with an excellent programme. Richard Wyman, Framingham, Mass., chairman of the committee of education, presented his report relative to the association establishing a short course in nursery practice at the Massachusetts Agricultural college, Amherst. An experiment is being made this year with such a course for a period of 10 weeks and if the interest in it justifies the expense it will be held next year and probably be enlarged to include a two-year course in the near future.

An interesting discussion of the practices of the federal horticultural board, of the United States Department of Agriculture, developed, Wm. N. Craig, of Brookline, Mass., commenting upon its alleged abuses from the view point of the amateur gardener. He thought it a calamity to apply such a rigid quarantine, as was now the case, in the false hope of building up a purely American nursery business. As many rare plants, trees and shrubs came from foreign countries, the rigorous provisions of the federal quarantine laws were seriously affecting the future of amateur gardening in the United States, Mr. Craig believed. He cited many cases where the board had permitted certain growers to import as high as 20,000 plants while others had difficulty in securing permits for much smaller amounts. Dexter M. Rogers, Boston representative of the board, challenged many of the statements of Mr. Craig and by his good humor did much to ease a trying situation.

Many excellent addresses were presented, which included: "Business Conditions and Outlook," by Paul V. Fortmiller, Newark, N. J., and "Horticultural Finance," by Prof. E. K. Thomas, Providence, R. I.

The following officers were elected to serve for 1922: K. E. Gillett, Southwick, Mass., president; Jas. A. Tufts, Jr., Exeter, N. H., vice-president; Donald D. Wyman, North Abington, Mass., secretary; John R. Barnes, Yalesville, Conn., treasurer; Leonard W. Ross, Taunton, Mass.; W. E. Campbell, New Haven, Conn., and C. H. Groaton, Providence, R. I., executive committee.

BRIDGEBURG HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Bridgeburg Horticultural Society at a recent meeting, listened to a very interesting address on "Town Beautification," by Dr. F. E. Bennett, St. Thomas, Ont., with stereopticon views of the work being accomplished by the St. Thomas Horticultural Society, of which he is president. The Bridgeburg society has just completed a most successful year, with a membership of more than 150 and about 175 members have been enrolled in the organization for 1922. A drive is now on to increase the total to 200. The society recently distributed several thousand Holland tulip bulbs and a large consignment of rose bushes from that country is on the way. The officers of the organization are: Harry Hall, president; E. Riley Youngs, treasurer; R. B. Blair, secretary.

BARRIE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Barrie Horticultural Society was shown to be in a good financial condition, in a report by Treasurer Miss Mary E. Campbell, presented at the January meeting. Mrs. Douglas gave an instructive talk on horticultural subjects and J. A. McLaren and T. T. Young were appointed delegates to attend the Toronto convention of the Ontario Horticultural Society, in February. The following officers will serve for 1922: Arthur W. Smith, president; J. R. Cotter, honorary president; Miss Mary C. Campbell, treasurer and Miss Agnes Scott, secretary.

THE PRESIDENT—The greatest red Canna in commerce. Very heavy, vigorous growths surmounted by great trusses of immense florets of bright scarlet. We heartily endorse this as the greatest Canna introduction of recent years. $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

WYOMING—We know of no other Canna as effective as this for large plantings. A giant in growth. Extremely vigorous with its deep bronze foliage as an ideal background for large bright orange-colored flowers of the orchid type. It makes an ideal subject.

YELLOW KING HUMBERT—A sport from King Humbert to which it occasionally reverts. Green foliage with yellow flowers, dotted with scarlet. $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

We have good stocks of many other varieties, prices on which will be quoted on application.

EVERGREEN SPECIALISTS. LARGEST GROWERS IN AMERICA.

tary Rev. M. C. Tait, in presenting his report for 1921, spoke of the noticeable improvement that had been made in the city by planting flower beds on unsightly vacant corner lots, which, with a touch of landscape art, had added much to the beauty of Wallaceburg. The work is under the management of J. C. Cruthers & Son. In a vigorous campaign for members the past year, by the directors of the society, the membership had been increased to 400. Original recitations by Geo. Taylor and James O. Flynn brought forth much applause. Before adjournment the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: J. C. Cruthers, president; Mrs. A. D. Brauder, honorary president; Geo. Taylor, first vice-president; James O. Flynn, second vice-president; Rev. M. C. Tait, secretary. J. E. K.

Early Tomato Plants.

Where lettuce is the only crop in winter and low temperatures are carried for many months, it becomes exceedingly difficult to produce good tomato plants in time for the early crops under glass. We have seen the growers solve their problems in various ways, one being to commence early, about December 1, and allow the plants to come on slowly in the low temperature. However, we have always held that this is not the ideal way, as these plants, growing during all the dark weather and in cold conditions, never develop as well as those started well on in more heat.

We have seen growers construct special hot water coils and attach to a gas burner or coal-oil stove to produce extra heat, one of them having exceptionally good results with the former. In many cases gas is not available but one thing that is nearly always obtainable is fresh, horse manure. We still believe a mild hot-bed is the best way out of the difficulty, which is constructed right in the greenhouse. Put up a strong frame, 12 inches deep and as long and wide as needed. Fill almost to the top with hot, horse manure, well compacted. Three inches of soil is sufficient and do not sow the seeds too thickly. In such a place the young plants will flourish and need no attention.

Nothing is gained by frequent transplanting, in our opinion, and such being the case the manure heated frame is the ideal place to produce good, strong seedlings quickly and cheaply. In March when the last crop of lettuce goes in, the tomato seedlings are planted with the lettuce and a great deal of labor is saved. Of course, we know that many growers persist in producing 4-inch pot plants at great expense and labor. They should try a small lot on the above plan and save money.

MARKETMAN.

Citrus Fruits Via Panama Canal.

The latest of a series of three test shipments of citrus fruit from California to New York by way of the Panama canal left San Pedro the middle of January accompanied by a specialist of the bureau of markets and crop estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture. The tests are being made in co-operation with the steamship company and the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, which are displaying keen interest in the work, as it is expected to lead the way to larger shipments of western fruit to the east by water.

Problems of ventilating and refrigeration of the fruit while in transit are the chief difficulties encountered in the undertaking. One of the holds of the ship is equipped with a ventilation system devised by the representative of the department, who will obtain data on the condition of the fruit carried at certain temperatures and will test the system of ventilation he has worked out in connection with his studies. The shipment of citrus fruit through the tropics for the length of time required in water transportation has always been a hazardous undertaking.

The ship, which originally sailed with a cargo of apples from Seattle, Wash., put in at San Pedro to pick up a consignment of oranges and lemons. It is expected that the trip to New York will require between 18 and 20 days.

Ohio Horticultural Society.

COLUMBUS MEETING, FEBRUARY 2.

The annual meeting of the Ohio Horticultural Society was held at the Ohio State university, Columbus, February 2, in conjunction with Farmers' Week and was well attended. President C. A. Bingham, Cleveland, opened with a short address and Secretary R. B. Cruickshank, Columbus, submitted his annual report. The secretary showed that there are now slightly more than 500 members and financially the year was a good one.

The time of the meetings was taken up largely with the question of co-operative marketing and not much attention was given to flowers and shrubbery. The object was to aid, if possible, the fruit growers of the state and a state-wide marketing organization was the result.

The former officers were re-elected as follows: C. A. Bingham, Cleveland, president; W. F. Kampf, Cleveland, vice-president; Robert B. Cruickshank, Columbus, secretary; F. H. Beach, Columbus, assistant secretary; Paul Thayer, Wooster, treasurer. Wendell Paddock, Columbus, was selected as the new member of the executive committee.

J. W. L.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The regular monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, L. I., January 11. President William Milstead occupied the chair. Joseph Stobel of Oyster Bay, L. I., and James Sutherland of Brookville, L. I., were elected to active membership. The exhibits were judged by William Carter, James Sutherland and William Noonan and the awards were as follows: Six poinsettias first, James McCarthy. President Milstead presented Joseph Bonhler the Hitchings & Co. cup and James McCarthy the Stumpp & Walter cup.

The annual dinner of the society was held, January 25, at the Glen Head hotel. Exhibits for the February meeting will be a pot of Primula malacoides, a pot or pan of tulips and six tomatoes.

ARTHUR COOK, Cor. Sec'y.

Each and every part entering into their construction has been scientifically designed, laid out and tested for maximum strength with minimum shadow effect. A study of their specifications will show these features and their Proved Performance merits your careful consideration. Why not let us solve your Greenhouse problems?

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Sweet Peas.

A bed or bench of sweet peas sown at this time will produce a nice crop of flowers in spring when the winter-blooming plants are nearly through flowering and the blooms beginning to grow small and before any outside can be had. The newer Spencers make splendid varieties to plant at this time and, while they will not bloom as early as the winter flowering varieties, yet will flower before the warm summer weather, and the beautifully formed flowers make a welcome change. Select a bench with plenty of head room, for these easily grow to a height of six or eight feet under favorable conditions. The seed can be sown six inches apart in rows, with about three feet between rows, and lightly covered. It is just as well to sow two or three seeds together, and when they begin to grow, thin out to one plant. The beds must be watered sparingly until the plants are large enough to twine on the supports for they damp off easily, even when five or six inches high, if over-watered. As soon as the tendrils on the vines appear provide some support for them to twine upon and keep the plants growing erect throughout their culture, or crooked stems and worthless flowers will be the result. A cool house is far better for these plants than one having a warm temperature. Aphis is often troublesome in growing sweet peas, and a spray is far better with these plants than fumigation.

Chrysanthemum Stock.

This is the time to look over the chrysanthemum stock to see how the cuttings are breaking. There may be some varieties that are not throwing as many cuttings as they should, or some that are not in good health and there are yet some growers that have stock plants for sale, so where from either cause it looks as if the supply might not be sufficient, new stock should be purchased at once. Where the stock plants are in good health but there are not enough to furnish the requisite number of cuttings, the early cuttings may be taken and rooted and these grown in flats until it is time to propagate the plants for blooming, and cuttings made from these. There are also some varieties of which good cuttings can be procured at this time, but after the first growths are removed do not break satisfactorily. These should surely be taken now and grown on in flats. Notable as one of this class is Miss Virginia Poehlmann, and some varieties, such as President Roosevelt, are short-jointed and slow in their growth, so early cuttings are preferred. It is a good time now to look the stock over and be sure of good plants and enough of them for another season.

Begonias of Lorraine Type.

For the large plants for next winter's flowering we are placing the cuttings in the propagating bench now. The plants were selected before Christmas and strong, healthy specimens taken for propagation. The flowers were removed and the plants given a warm location that the best vigor might be maintained. Any leaf showing blemish is discarded, only clean, healthy leaves being used from which to raise the young stock. A warm propagating bed is chosen for these plants and the stems are inserted in the sand deep enough so that about half an inch of the leaf is below the surface. They are kept moist and warm until they are rooted, when they are potted in 2½-inch pots and placed in a warm house and shifted along as required. This may seem a trifle early by many growers to start the propagating of these plants, but there is always demand for some large specimens and fine leaves are obtainable at this time and they root easily during January and February when the propagating bench is warm. The plant will require considerable care and attention during the heated spell of July and August, but with plenty of ventilation and a light shade, they are easily kept moving and make fine plants for the holidays.

Spiraeas.

The spiraeas are always a very useful plant at Easter, but they are classed among the cheaper plants at that time, so should be grown in such a way that they do not occupy valuable space any more than necessary. They should be brought into a cool house by the middle of January and until the foliage begins to grow can be placed along the edge of the walks if room is not available, but they must not be left standing in this location too long for when the leaves begin to unfold they quickly draw toward the light and a plant growing to one side of the pot will be the result. So as soon as growth starts they should be placed on the bench in full light. They can be grown quite close together for some time, but when the foliage begins to touch that of the plant beside it they should be spaced out and given room enough for the plants to grow shapely. Spiraeas require a large quantity of water during the entire culture, especially those that are potted in as small a pot as possible, which is the general custom with all growers. To make the large specimens, two or three clumps are planted in the same pot when started. These will make large plants for church decorations at Easter. If the plants are grown in a house which is to be fumigated by tobacco smoke they should either be removed from the house or well covered with papers; the foliage quickly burns when subjected to tobacco smoke and the plants are blemished.

Carrying Callas to California.

A Reading, Pa. woman went to California to spend the winter a couple of weeks ago. She is a great lover of flowers, and her particular pride is a big Calla lily. When making a list of things to take to California she included the calla. In reply to her husband's objections she said:

"I never thought so much of a plant as I do of that calla, and I know it will be full of blossoms this winter, and I wouldn't miss seeing and smelling them."

Her first letter home contained this paragraph:

"As to that calla, it was the greatest bother. I almost wore myself to a shadow taking care of it. By the time I got into California, I was sick and tired of it. But I remembered the comfort the blossoms would be when they came. When I got up on the morning of the last day I looked out of the car window, and may I never see Reading again if the train wasn't running through a field of callas so big that I couldn't see its limits. I just sat down and had a good cry. To think that an ordinarily sensible woman should cart a 20-pound pot and lily over 3,000 miles just because she wanted to see it bloom, and then find millions of the same lilies growing wild. It was enough to make an angel weep. I took the — calla and threw it out of the car window."

The postscript read:

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Washington's Birthday.

A MID-WINTER EVENT.

Every national anniversary affords the florist an opportunity to show his skill as a decorator and attract attention to his store. The daily and Sunday newspapers devote columns of illustrated and interesting historical matter pertaining to the subject, and impressing the importance of its observance, all of which makes anything that the florist does in a decorative way in the celebration, doubly attractive and noticeable.

Washington's Birthday, February 22, is a national event of importance that gives a holiday to thousands of people, which is celebrated by all patriotic societies with dinners and is also the day selected for many more private social affairs. It is an event which the wide awake florist can turn to his advantage in many ways by featuring and suggesting flowers in connection with the observance of the day.

A striking window display with a bust of the "Father of His Country" artistically draped, with flags the prominent feature, together with a liberal display of the fabled cherries and hatchets that have so long been connected with his boyhood, all arranged to make a complete picture, is certain to attract more than ordinary attention and impress people with the importance of the establishment.

Many combinations with flowers and plants in baskets and cut flowers in boxes with hatchet and cherry decorations, tied with tri-color ribbons and miniature flags, will if properly featured well in advance create a demand and find a ready sale. It is this featuring and display showing their use in connection with the observance of the day that creates the desire and makes the sale. With specially directed publicity to emphasize flowers in all the day's celebrations, backed up by all the trade in its window and store displays, their universal use would soon become the custom and greatly increase the demand for flowers for this occasion.

MINIATURE CHERRY TREES ATTRACTIVE.

A good selling novelty suitable for a gift is a miniature cherry tree. These can be made from twiggy branches of cherry trees planted solidly in a five or 6-inch pot then decorated with artificial leaves and cherries. The pot is covered with crepe paper tied on with tri-colored ribbon a small hatchet is attached to the trunk of the tree with a ribbon bow, the whole making an attractive conceit that can be sold at a very good profit. Small baskets filled with any kind of flowers, having a little hatchet and cherry decoration and a knot of the tri-color ribbon, are at once in keeping with the day and make sales for themselves.

A large cherry tree four feet in height well covered with the fruit and foliage makes a good center for the table in connection with flowers in a wreath for a round table or with half centers where there is room. Cherries and a miniature hatchet are used with the corsage flowers and boutonnieres. For the large public function with long tables or large round ones, the small trees in pots make good centers alternating with vases of flowers.

An appropriate decoration for a box of cut flowers is a branch trimmed with artificial foliage and cherries which is tied on the outside of the box with tri-color ribbons with a miniature flag and hatchet at the knot. Various flowering plants may be put in the running with similar decorations, in fact, the whole stock will be found to lend itself to the celebration of the event.

Nothing will come to the man who is not enthusiastic and who does not prepare for or feature the event, or in some way make a bid for the business. Quantities of articles of all kinds are sold to people who before they saw them in their striking well arranged display had no idea of making such a purchase or would ever have asked for the goods. It was enterprise that made the sale. The same up-to-date methods can be used to the greatest advantage in the flower shop, particularly in featuring well in advance the use of flowers for all anniversaries and the social events of every day life.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

An interesting window decoration at this time is a collection of spring flowers arranged in vases in an artistic grouping, each vase carrying the name of the flower and its price per bunch or dozen. A few arranged boxes of a mixture of the same flowers in several sizes and all priced, will be almost sure to bring a certain percentage of interested persons in for purchases.

Have you laid in a stock of flowering primulas? Some stores are selling them at the rate of 100 or more plants a day. Given a little attention in the way of decoration, they are at once a gift plant, fit for almost any occasion and are useful as well in all the different work of the store.

Flowers are getting more plentiful at receding values of which the public should be kept informed by window displays with prices. Some retailers believe it good policy not to take their legitimate profit at a time when flowers are scarce and high, as they are generally from January 1 to January 20, as then with no special demand flowers appear very high to the transient purchaser. By favoring and holding customers at this time they are encouraged to come frequently as the flowers get more plentiful.

FEATURE THE NEWEST AND BEST STOCK.

It is the hustling, energetic, progressive florist who gets the business, for people soon learn to know that the newest and best in plants and flowers are to be found at his shop at reasonable prices. As a rule stock is never scarce with him, there is always something being featured in his assortment that is not exactly what they came for is just as attractive and satisfactory.

For good publicity, at low cost, nothing is better than a series of little leaflets each featuring a department of the business, seasonable stock, or giving useful information as to the arrangement of cut flowers, care of plants in the house, etc. A dozen of these little messages can be printed on one sheet which will make, when 1,000 sheets are cut up, 12,000 leaflets. These are kept in separate boxes convenient of access so that one or more shall be placed in every package or piece of mail matter that is sent from the store. Small blotters such as those issued by the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association publicity committee featuring this special service, will be found very useful, as lying around on the private writing desks of customers they will be always calling this country wide service to their attention.

There is much to be saved in design work for funerals, such as wreaths, pillows, bases of standing pieces, etc., by a liberal ground work of green, which supports the flowers and makes them go much farther. Fresh green lycopodium, boxwood, small green galax leaves will make a good moss covering while selected sprays of green hemlock are available as a backing for sprays.

CATTLEYAS IN SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS.

Cattleyas are now plentiful and as far as show for the money goes, they are quite the equal of many other flowers in special arrangements. Three cattleyas, with suitable green, will make a very acceptable corsage which will cost no more than the same value in roses, but will be considered more choice than roses to the recipient. Three bunches of violets make a full corsage, but replace one with a cattleya and a richer effect is obtained at probably less cost.

Keep the birthday anniversary always to the front; it is an every day proposition, always bringing to the mind of some one an event that they had overlooked. The florist who will make birthday celebrations a department of his business and go after the trade systematically will find it one of his most profitable assets.

A little postcard campaign with your fernery customers is well worth while. Many of these little dishes will become unsightly and set aside to be sent and refilled, but the matter is overlooked until some friends who are coming there necessitates a hurried call to have it sent for at once. The card will bring it to mind and result in many more fillings.

Always keep an eye on the window and see that it is up to the mark all the time. The display should always contain a special feature that will be sure to attract people who are at all interested in flowers. A snappy window is like a well written advertisement, it catches the eye and holds it long enough to get the story across, while the plain unadorned display is hardly ever noticed.

G. E. M. Stumpp At Philadelphia.

In his address before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia at its February 7 meeting, George E. M. Stumpp, brief account of whose talk appeared in last week's issue, page 210, startled his hearers with his advanced and practical ideas on advertising or publicity for flowers. Mr. Stumpp said he did not come to make a speech but just to give a little talk on advertising which, he said, was the most important factor in the florists' business. As far as possible all florists' products should be standardized, which in other lines of business had proved so successful.

In order to speed up things during the war he had featured a special box of flowers at $5, fixing this price because it was a popular amount of money that people liked to spend. When the Gillette razor was ready for the market, advertising men asked what it could be sold for and give a fair profit, and were told $1. As the advertising campaign was to be nation-wide and expensive, they made it a gift proposition and put the price at $5, as they said it would bring that amount as easy as $1, which proved correct.

In his $5 box advertising, Mr. Stumpp emphasized this gift idea and it had grown to be a feature of his business that kept him in the eyes of the public and brought many new people into the shop. In referring to store management he said good, efficient men were hard to get and that retailers should train them up by making wise selections in the boys they employed, and take pains to teach them the business, so that after a period of 10 years they would have a strong and continuing force, adding a new member each year.

Almost everything we do is a form of advertising; a new suit of clothes adds to our appearance and self respect. In his own store he had purchased for each of his store men a suit of clothes of the same material, which collectively had added greatly to their appearance, and which they took a pride in keeping clean and in good shape. The window and store interior should always be clean and effectively arranged. People will look in the window and if it is compelling will come into the store and then it is up to the stock and the salesmen to make the sale. So often the stock was not what it should be; a yellow leaf here and there, or a defect in the jar or basket in which it is placed, will lose the sale which a little previous attention would have secured.

EXPLOITING THE $5 BOX.

Every opportunity to exploit the business should be taken advantage of. Two cut flower boxes on which his name was conspicuously displayed were used in a play at one of the theatres, and Mr. Stumpp could trace direct sales from this publicity. He attached great importance to the selling power of well-decorated florists' windows. When he came to Philadelphia he always made it a point to visit and take a look at Pennock Bros.' window, which was always so beautiful and which they said had done so much in always bringing in new business.

A rather wide space at the top of his bill heads had been taken advantage of to feature some of his specials, such as "The $5 box is a hobby of mine." One month one idea followed by another the next, using a gummed slip for the space, he had found brought in quite a number of orders. He quoted Gladstone as saying, "Nothing but a mint can make money without advertising." He had placed an ad in Town Topics which read, "A man that wears a flower is sure of himself." Florists should do everything possible to make the wearing of a coat flower the custom as many still are afraid of being thought effeminate when wearing a flower.

There is much complaint of high prices at Christmas and Easter. Why not advertise and work up a trade between times? Much valuable publicity can be obtained at very little cost by keeping in close touch with your customers by mail, posting them as to all the new flowers coming in and preparing the way for Thanksgiving, St. Valentine's Day, Mothers' Day and Memorial Day, and other information that will suggest uses for flowers all the time. He especially advocated the early delivery of plants at Christmas and Easter, customers being told when purchases were made that it was best they should be sent to their friends at once so they could enjoy them at their best. This plan meant many more orders, as almost invariably gifts from the flower shop were sent in return. He had so impressed this on his clientele that they had but few plants to deliver on the last day.

Considerable money is wasted in advertising. Statistics show 40 per cent goes for bad copy, poor mediums and in placing at inopportune times; another 40 per cent barely goes across, 10 per cent about pays, while the final 10 per cent is the real go-getter kind that brings the business. "Say It With Flowers" is a wonderful slogan, but as used in its script form and made the prominent feature of floral advertising, it was more of a detriment than a factor, for as soon as the eye caught the slogan it said flowers, and unless vitally interested over went the page and the story did not get across.

One of the most important features in advertising is the copy. The greatest care must be given to its preparation. The great point is to suggest uses for flowers and show people how necessary they are in their daily lives and why they should buy them. Then the ad must have novelty in its set-up so as to catch the eye and hold it until the brief story gets across. A publicity campaign of the Allied Florists' Association of New York city ran last spring cost $4,000, was referred to as being very inefficient on account of poor copy, as it advertised flowers, featuring the various kinds in which the contributors were particularly interested, but did not tell people the good uses for which flowers were available and what a great pleasure and profit they would find in them.

GOOD AD COPY ESSENTIAL.

When this was pointed out by Mr. Stumpp he was asked to prepare copy along these lines, which he gladly did, submitting his ideas to an advertising expert who put them into attractive, catchy ads that get the story across in as few words as possible, standing out with plenty of surrounding white space and enclosed in heavy pen lines that makes the ad very conspicuous and striking. A number of these sample ads were shown and read. They were certainly most catchy and striking in appearance. Many of the appeals are to men in such phrases as "Does your wife know you think of her?" "Say It With Flowers; take her home a box tonight." In every ad the slogan was seen, but printed in the same type and used to back up the story.

This matter has all been copyrighted and it is expected will soon be run in the New York florists' campaign when its efficiency will be demonstrated. In addition to the newspaper copy, window cards containing an enlarged reproduction will be furnished all subscribers to the fund for display at the time the ad is running.

Mr. Stumpp is a great believer in direct-by-mail advertising, sending out 17,000 folders 10 times a year to his store's list of customers and prospects. He has kept this up for six years and finds the constant drive of greater efficiency as it goes along. He is satisfied that a great deal of new business has come from this service. He again emphasized the importance of backing up all publicity matter with goods and service, in which every store should try to excel as they must be prepared to handle the trade and make the most of it when the ads bring the people in.

There was considerable discussion at the close of the address in which Mr. Stumpp was asked if it was not advisable to feature prices in special sales at times when flowers were plentiful. He thought not, and that it would be better to increase the information showing the many uses for flowers, and in this way attract more buyers.

THE EXHIBITS.

As a compliment to the speaker several retailers exhibited samples of floral valentines. Chas. Henry Fox displayed several sizes of his bluebird surprise box, which when the telescope lid is removed, the inner box expanding, shows, on a lace background, a beautiful corsage of choice flowers amidst a setting of miniature artificial buds. The largest box contained a plaster cupid in a fluffy lace setting adorned with choice cattleyas and sprays of acacia that made a most artistic finish.

A large heart hamper filled with choice roses, violets, lily of the valley, etc., was exhibited by Victor Ridenour. H. Bayersdorfer & Co. sent a display of their valentine kiddies and vamp dolls, all with vases for holding flowers. C. U. Liggett's large display of fine carnations was very much admired, as was a vase of the new pink sport of Premier named Celestial, exhibited by Myers & Samtman, a wonderfully fine variety. Wm. K. Harris staged fine bird's nest ferns and other house plants. Anthony Rusicka and W. A. Manda were interested visitors.

The Finishing Touch.

When the demand is good and strong buyers are not as a rule particular. Anything that is seasonable and fair looking is acceptable and the stock moves off rapidly. Even at such times, however, the plants or flowers that for one reason or another are a trifle better than the others are the first to be selected, and where any inequalities show in the stock which can be corrected or made negligible by one of the many ways open to the decorator, it is soon given a finishing touch and put in salable condition.

Many cut flowers are received in the store as they come from the growers in commercial packages and offered in this way for sale. Such methods are very crude, not taking into account the great benefit from an artistic arrangement and color combination which with the addition of foliage and greens will show the stock to so much better advantage. A rose is beautiful in itself but combined with any one of a dozen other flowers and a fern leaf or two it makes a much better showing. A half dozen short roses with a few sprigs of mignonette and sprays of green in a small handle basket will with a ribbon bow as a finish, present a very salable article much more noticeable and attractive than if the flowers were left in their original packages. Mignonette and cypripediums with lily of the valley, or sprays of freesia is a good small basket combination. Calendulas, mignonette and pussy willows is another.

One bunch of sweet peas, with a little green, will fill a small basket which with its ribbon finish gives a very chic appearance. A number of these on a table together will receive much more attention than just one or two. A few corsages of violets, one with the addition of a gardenia, another with lily of the valley and Sweetheart roses are combinations certain to attract much more attention than if hidden in the case.

All kinds of floral work is the better for the last minute finishing touch. A full blown rose or a rosette made of several short buds set in the heart of a bow of ribbon give a nice finish. Where the ribbon is tied to the handle the addition of a few pussy willows and a bud or two is always pleasing. These are but a few of the many things that can be done to make the work more attractive and noticeable. The progressive florist is always experimenting with this flower or that in various forms of arrangement and in different receptacles so as to have something out of the ordinary that will be noticed and commented on.

POT PLANTS

Plants as they come from the grower vary greatly in quality, some giving their stock a much finer finish than others. It is this last touch as it were, this finishing polish, that makes them stand out from the others and sell almost on sight. The foliage is richer, the flowers larger and more brilliant in color and there is a vigor and quality to the whole plant that marks it as a superior product.

Much can be done in a decorative way to give the fair or rather indifferent plant a better chance. In the first place all pots should be covered. There are a number of coverings for pots; one of the simplest is a square sheet of white paper in the center of which is placed the pot on a saucer and the paper drawn up about it and tied with a piece of tape the color of the flower. The paper should project well up above the edges of the pot so as to mix with and if necessary augment the foliage. At times short sprigs of laurel may be stuck in the soil to advantage.

When plants well in flower, but lacking in foliage are found to be on hand, a good plan is to make such stock into pans, a number together, the result being a much better looking article that soon finds a purchaser. Sprigs of pussy willow and ribbon will often give a finishing touch to a misshapen plant that at once puts it in the running.

The box of flowers while it contains all that was ordered, is the better for the finishing touch or addition of a few sprigs of sweet scented leaves, some violets or a pansy or two over the top, just to make a pretty finish and a pleasant surprise when the box is opened. A sprig or two of green and a flower on the outside bound in with the tape or ribbon gives an appearance that is always noticed and admired.

The Late Dr. Walter Van Fleet.

HIS LIFE AND WORK.

By Peter Blisset, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Washington, D. C. For Obituary Notice and Portrait see Issue of February 11, Page 193.

Dr. Walter Van Fleet was born at Pierpont, N. Y., June 18, 1857. He was a graduate from the Hahnemann Medical college, Philadelphia, in 1880, took post-graduate work at Jefferson Medical college, that city, in 1887, and practiced medicine in central Pennsylvania for several years. His love for plants, however, led him to give up his practice for horticulture. He married Sarah C. Heilman August 7, 1883. He was associate editor of the Rural New Yorker from 1890 to 1909; during nine years of this time he was also vice president of the Rural New Yorker Publishing Co.

Dr. Van Fleet entered the bureau of plant industry, United States Department of Agriculture in July, 1909, and was appointed superintendent of the plant introduction garden, of the office of foreign seed and plant introduction, Chico, Calif. In October, 1910, he was transferred to the office of drug-plant investigations, where he carried on some special work in the breeding of drug plants. He was later transferred to the office of horticulture and pomology to carry on breeding experiments with roses and other florists' plants, as well as special breeding work with chestnuts, in an attempt to get a variety that would be resistant to the chestnut bark disease.

Long before Dr. Van Fleet entered the Department of Agriculture, he was recognized as a leader in plant breeding work. Early in his career he took up work in the breeding of gladioli, making a special study of these and originating some very fine kinds which are still grown commercially.

He did considerable work in an attempt to get a Persian walnut that would stand the rigorous climatic conditions of the eastern states and with this end in view made several crosses between Juglans cordiformis and J. regia. He also took up work with apples, crossing the crabs with some of the commercial varieties, such as the Baldwin. His work with the breeding of pears is well known, he realizing that it would be necessary for American fruit growers to get a variety of pear that would stand up under the ravages of the pear blight, which in recent years has caused so much destruction to pears throughout our country. With this end in view he made several crosses between varieties of Pyrus chinensis (which are quite resistant to blight) and many of the well-known commercial pears such as Winter Nellis, Sickel and Bartlett. Some seedlings were obtained from these crosses which have proven quite resistant to the pear blight.

He also did considerable work in crossing our raspberries with some of the wild species, making crosses between Rubus neglectus and ideaus; and R. neglectus and strigosus. From these crosses some seedlings are fruiting at the field station, at Bell, Md., that come into bearing long after the common varieties have fruited, and these, I feel sure, will be heard of later.

One of his outstanding accomplishments was the crossing of our native chinquapin, Castanea pumila, with the Japanese chestnut, C. crenata; and also C. pumila with the Spanish chestnut, C. sativa; and the chinquapin with our American chestnut. The seedlings from these crosses have proven to be very precocious, many of them fruiting when a year old and bearing heavy crops of nuts of very good quality. Moreover, they have proven to be somewhat resistant to the chestnut bark blight and give promise that eventually we may have a chestnut that will stand up under the blight. Unfortunately for the country, Dr. Van Fleet was cut down in the midst of his work in an attempt to get a chestnut, bearing nuts of high quality and yet one that would withstand the onslaughts of the chestnut bark disease.

His work with the callas is not so well known, but years ago he took up the crossing of Zantedeschia Elliottiana with Z. macrocarpa Pentlandii; Z. Rehmani x Z. macrocarpa x Pentlandii; and Z. Rehmani x Pentlandii; and from the crosses made he obtained many interesting forms, some of which gave us small plants ideal for pot culture.

Dr. Van Fleet's work with the freesias is well known to horticulturists who have visited the Arlington Experiment Farm and there seen freesias in many colors from yellows through the pinks to the beautiful cattleya colors. He has not only increased the size of the flower in his hybrids, but has also increased the number of flowers borne on each stem. The best of these no doubt will find their way into the trade in due time.

Dr. Van Fleet early became interested in that valuable and well-known group, the berberis. He made a cross, in the early years, between B. vulgaris purpurea and B. Thunbergii and obtained a plant resembling somewhat the foliage of Thunbergii with the beautiful purple color of purpurea. The habit is not as compact as Thunbergii, but gives us a variety of great beauty and value. He also had growing at his experiment station, crosses between B. Wilsonii and B. aggregata; B. Thunbergii x B. vulgaris; and many others, in attempts to get his ideal plant, which was one of close, compact habit, large beautiful fruits and showy flowers. During his later years he had been working with B. aggregata and B. Juliana, and obtained several very interesting seedlings from this cross which are almost evergreen, with beautiful glossy green foliage.

There are also, in his trial grounds, some very fine gooseberries which Dr. Van Fleet raised from crosses made with Ribes Missouriensis crossed on R. Grossularia; R. Missouriensis x reclinatum; R. Cynosbati x reclinatum, and some of the best of these bear, in the greatest profusion, berries as large as the finer varieties of English gooseberries and are of fine quality and splendid appearance, with the added advantage that the plants are not subject to mildew and the berries to sun scald, as are the large fruited English varieties.

Early in his career this tireless worker produced some very fine varieties of strawberries that are highly commended around Little Silver, N. J., where he lived before coming to the Department of Agriculture. Especially valuable are his Early Jersey Giant, John H. Cook and Edmund Wilson.

His work with roses is well known and many of his seedlings are now being grown in rose lovers' gardens throughout the length and breadth of the country. Those that stand out and are being propagated at the present time are such well-known varieties as Philadelphia—that beautiful climbing, crimson colored rose that is not so liable to mildew as the crimson Rambler, whose place it has taken in many of our gardens; Silver Moon, a beautiful semi-double, white flowered rose with superb foliage, flowering in the greatest profusion, and one of the strongest and most rampant growing of the climbing roses; Dr. W. Van Fleet, of a beautiful flesh pink color, which is a worthy companion of Silver Moon; the three Lovetts—Alida Lovett, a beautiful deep rosy pink flower, of large size, and which blooms very freely; Bess Lovett, a large red-flowered variety, not quite as rampant as Alida Lovett, but an excellent pillar rose and a bright red flowered climber; Mary Lovett, which bears a pure white flower and is a true climber—American Pillar is one of the roses that Dr. Van Fleet originated many years ago, the parentage of which is in doubt, but it looks as though it were a cross between Rosa setigera and wichuraiana.

The above has proven a splendid variety for nearly all sections of our country and the English rose growers thought so well of it that they awarded it a gold medal. One of the more recent of his roses to be put on the market is Aunt Harriet, a cross between Wichuraiana and Appoline; the flowers are semi-double and of a dazzling scarlet crimson color. Birdie Blye is a very free ever blooming rose of bright carmine color. Beauty of Rose-moor is a beautiful double rose of a fine shade of rich carmine rose color, delicately veined with creamy white. One of his last roses to receive recognition is Mary Wallace, which was last year awarded a gold and silver medal and was named in honor of the daughter of the secretary of agriculture.

The death of Doctor Van Fleet is an irreparable loss to the world of horticulture. His keen interest in plants and his wide knowledge of plant life, as well as his knowledge of the needs of the many sections of our country, helped him to work intelligently toward developing plants peculiarly suited for the different sections and varying climatic conditions. He had a keen interest in and desire to develop roses for our semi-arid colder states, where the farmers have few plants suitable for adorning their yards; and it was his aim to develop plants that would be able to resist the hot drying winds and severe winter temperatures of these sections so that our farmers in such sections could have roses in their gardens as well as those living in more favorable locations. At his experiment station at Bell he had assembled around him a splendid collection of plants that would be useful to him as a breeder and had he been spared for a few more years, we would have had many more plants of sterling merit than he had as yet produced.

In 1918 he was awarded the George Robert White medal of honor for eminent services rendered to horticulture. This was conferred upon him by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. It may well be said of Dr. Van Fleet that he passed away in the midst of his work and it is to be hoped that others will be able to take up the work where he left off in order that none of it may be lost.

He was one of nature's noblemen and it could be truly said of him "to know him was to love him." He was very modest, never flaunting his own work but always ready to praise that of others. It can truthfully be said of him that the world is better for his having lived in it.

This loving personality passed away at Miami, Fla., Thursday, January 26. His remains were brought north by Mrs. Van Fleet and the body interred at Watsontown, Pa., where he had made his home and first took up his practice in medicine.

THE S. A. F.

Fifth Annual Flower Show.

As previously announced in our issue of February 11, page 185, unfortunate conditions existing in the administration of the affairs of the city of Cleveland, O., insofar as regards the holding of the Fifth National Flower Show in the new city building there on the dates planned, have necessitated the withdrawal of the show from that city. The National Flower Show committee at an emergency meeting held in Cleveland, Monday, February 6, after deep consideration of the situation, decided, in the best interest of all concerned, to hold the exhibition at Indianapolis, Ind., on the same dates, March 25-April 1.

Proceeding to Indianapolis, the committee was welcomed by the florists of that city and their trade organizations; the Chamber of Commerce, and all city organizations, the Rotarians, and a number of the citizens. The city's big Manufacturers' building was placed at the service of the committee for housing the show, and was found to be wonderfully adapted for the exhibition, and for such trade exhibits as appealed to the public rather than the trade. The Woman's building, another imposing edifice only a few steps away from the Manufacturers' building, was offered for the housing of the trade exhibits, and it has the advantage of being reserved exclusively for the visiting florists with the public excluded. This is a condition which should meet the views of the majority of the trade exhibitors. Taken altogether, the committee believes that housing arrangements are ideal.

Indianapolis is a most prosperous city of nearly 400,000 inhabitants, within a day's ride of 60,000,000 people, a high percentage of them American born. The city covers an area of about 42 square miles, and is distinctly a home-owning city. It boasts a very large number of fine residences, and is a city of wealth and luxury. It has a close interurban connection, 13 interurban and 17 railroads serving it. The committee believes it to be a city in the National Flower Show class in every sense of the term.

A larger number of the subscribers to the guarantee fund have already expressed their approval of the change, and their guarantees stand accordingly. Without doubt, the others will be glad to fall into line. It is the same with the trade exhibitors, the change has already the approval of the majority of them, and their contracts stand, subject to detail changes which are the outcome of the new arrangements.

The rates for trade space in the Manufacturers' building, which will carry the competitive exhibits, will now be $1.50 per square foot, exclusive of any equipment, signs, etc.; and the space rate for purely trade exhibits, which will be staged in the adjacent Woman's building will be $1 per square foot. In the latter building all the meetings and functions usually held in connection with the show will take place.

All exhibitors who made space reservations for Cleveland are urged to communicate with the secretary at once, notifying him that they approve of the change made. New plans are being prepared and will be ready for distribution in a day or two. The committee is assured of the support of all those who had arranged to make competitive exhibits at Cleveland, and all the stagings arranged for will be set up in Indianapolis just as though no change in location had been made. The big exhibits of Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass., A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., and others will be prominent in the show, in fact, Wallace R. Pierson, of the Pierson concern, has expressed his intention of materially increasing the scope of his company's display.

The committee, while in Indianapolis, was the guests at luncheon of the Rotary Club, which organization is most enthusiastic in its support of the show.

National Publicity Campaign.

The 1922 publicity campaign continues to make good progress, and all engaged in pushing it are very optimistic as to the ultimate results, in fact, if interest keeps up as at present it is believed that the fund will go away beyond previous figures and the publicity resulting be something near the mark set at the inception of the campaign but not yet realized.

The dominating feature of the work is, of course, the collection of the funds. While those who have studied the publicity work to any extent are backing up their interest with prompt payments of the amounts they have pledged to the fund, many others are a little careless in this particular. It is very nice to look at the list of pledges, and plan to disburse the monies represented in the best possible way; still, if these monies are not in hand, action is held up and little can be done. It is the money that keeps the publicity wheel revolving, and without it the work hangs on a dead center.

It is hoped that all who have not yet met their pledges will take this statement to heart, and resolve that the interest they have already shown in the cause shall be backed up by a speedy taking up of pledges, so that the committee may accomplish what they have been spending a vast amount of time to plan. It should be remembered too, that contracts for magazine space must be made well in advance of date of issue, which is always long ahead of month of dating. Some magazines close their advertising pages three months or more in advance of the issue of a number, and this class of publication is, necessarily among the most highly desirable.

WITH THE GROWERS

Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa.

When David Fuerstenberg, of the Florists' Exchange Co., rose growers at Edgely, Pa., erected the first large greenhouse in this country, 50x300 feet, he was thought by most experienced growers to have done a very unwise and impractical thing. In the first place the wind would blow the house down, there was too much air space which could not be evenly heated, the snow would crush it in, and there were many other points in which it was not considered practical. However, when the stock was planted it made a wonderful growth and produced abundant crops the season through. An even temperature was maintained better than in the smaller standard houses of the day. The heavy winter winds did not blow it down nor the snow crush in the roof. Then straight away the critics set to work building much larger, longer and wider houses.

Some years later Mr. Fuerstenberg bought ground at North Wales, Pa., which he called Florex Gardens, and erected his first really large house, 150x600 feet, with which he was so much pleased that he followed it with another, 175x750 feet. These at various times were badly damaged with the weight of snow on their wide roofs, the smaller house being replaced two years ago with two Lord & Burnham structures each 75x700 feet. The larger house still stands and is now fitted with snow guards, some 2,000 of them in rows across the outside of the roof, about 15 feet apart which holds the snow from sliding until it gradually melts away without damage.

Many changes have recently been made in the interior of this large house. The beds which were but three feet in width are now five, and the steam heating pipes originally placed next to the roof are now on the floor of the house, a coil of 1½-inch pipe around each bed a few inches from the ground. The interior is being painted which makes a wonderful difference in the light. The stocks here, both in the large houses and those adjoining, are wonderfully fine. Varieties are Butterfly, Premier, Columbia, Double White Killarney, Citronella, Golden Ophelia and Pilgrim. Butterfly of which the original planting was 20,000 is their most profitable variety. A splendid crop was cut at Christmas and the same plants are now filled with buds showing color. Premier and Columbia are grown in quantity. There are 80,000 Columbia and almost the same of Premier. Both these kinds are doing wonderfully well. Some beds are now in and others coming back strong after their Christmas crop. Several beds of Pilgrim are the picture of health and this is here considered a good commercial rose. Golden Ophelia is a coming variety, a popular sized yellow on a stiff, straight, wiry stem. Wm. Geiger the rose expert and one of the best in the country, thought so much of this that he tried to get 5,000 plants but could only obtain 2,000, but more will be planted next year.

CITRONELLA CONSIDERED WINNER.

Citronella is another of the new ones that is considered a winner. This is rather undersized, essentially a rose for the corsage and very much in demand for this purpose. It is a splendid mid-winter variety, a number of plants carrying five to six flowers at this time. They force in all over 180,000 plants. Roses are not cropped here except at Christmas and even then a lot are held in reserve as they must be cut every day in the year. Their stock is all sold directly to retailers, the firm supplying over 100 stores, regular shipments going out every morning and afternoon. They filled orders for over 125,000 buds at Christmas one concern taking 12 and another 15,000.

In the large houses the stock is grown in ground beds with board or cement sides from eight inches to a foot high. Six to eight inches of ash cinders are under the soil in all the ground beds, for drainage. There are several other good sized houses which had been built for carnations but that are now filled with roses on raised beds, one house containing Sunburst which they retain as a yellow. In one of the large houses an experiment had been successfully tried with Premier in order to get a crop of medium length stemmed stock for Christmas. The plants were not cut back until September, given a pinch in October. They were a beautiful sight just previous to the holidays, many of the plants containing five to six flowers with stems 15 to 18 inches in length.

Double White Killarney is one of the quantity sorts, of splendid shipping quality and it is in constant demand from all the firm's customers. The stock of this kind in the various houses is in splendid condition, in fact, all the stock, under different conditions in the houses in which they were grown, in some the glass being 25 to 35 feet from the ground and in the smaller structures only eight to 12 feet, could not apparently be in better form. Light, heat, and general atmospheric conditions appear to be maintained the same in each house. After syringing, at this time of year, the foliage is given a light dusting with a bellows, of a powdered mixture of three quarters sulphur and one quarter lime which takes up any excess moisture.

A considerable business is done in rooted rose cuttings, 20,000 having been already rooted and sent out. A house of chrysanthemums is being followed by sweet peas, while two smaller houses are filled with snapdragons, all looking very well.

Boilers of a total of 1,000 horse power are required to heat the range, while an additional boiler of 250 horse power is being installed to be held in reserve. A railroad siding brings coal to the rear of the boiler house.

Mr. Geiger has taken up hybridizing and has crossed a number of varieties on Columbia, Pilgrim, Priscilla and others which are now filled with fine looking seed pods. He intends to take this work up as a hobby and see if he cannot improve or add something of value to the commercial forcing kinds. Roses are cut twice a day at this season, placed in the cold storage rooms in water, and graded after they have hardened. All are then wrapped in paper in bundles of 25 and shipped in this way to customers. This system of handling the stock appears most satisfactory, but one customer desiring them to be packed loose.

New England Florists' Alliance.

The executive committee of the New England Florists' Alliance announce that it has been successful in obtaining the services of Eugene M. Naukam as secretary. Mr. Naukam has had considerable experience in this line of work, having been secretary of the Western New York Florists' Association publicity committee and the Western New York District, National Flower Growers' Association for the past two years.

The committee feels that it has been fortunate in obtaining a man who has had experience and believe that with the co-operation of the trade in New England that the alliance will prove a wonderful success. It asks that all those interested in promoting the best interest of the florists' trade co-operate in putting the alliance on a strong foundation. It is expected that Mr. Naukam will assume his duties on February 20, and that he will devote most of his time to Boston and surrounding territory. However, he will continue to handle the western New York work for the next few months.

New York Florists' Club.

The New York Florists' Club held its monthly meeting at the Engineering building, February 13, President Irwin in the chair. Secretary Young read the minutes of the January meeting which were approved. The president appointed a committee of the good of the club as follows: A. T. De La Mare, Frank H. Traendly, C. H. Totty, Chas. H. Brown and Chas. Weathered. On the call for committee reports, Arthur Herrington spoke in an optimistic vein of the prospects for the spring flower show, to be held in the Grand Central Palace, March 13-19. Secretary Young continuing the same subject stated that the trade space had all been taken and that the trade tickets are now ready for distribution. He believed that the exhibition would be a great success.

Paul Rigo, for the transportation committee, spoke of the trip to Hartford, Conn., and the convention and flower show held there and said there was general satisfaction as to the success of the events. A vote of thanks was tendered the committee. Clifford Lowther, chairman of the essay committee, regretted that because of it being Farmers' Week, at Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y., Prof. White, of that institution, was unable to address the club. Wm. Saville, for the exhibition committee, reported disappointment because of the non-delivery of flowers for the evening, but some arrived later, however. Paul Rigo urged that reservation for the club banquet, to be held during the week of the spring show, be taken promptly by the members.

New members were admitted as follows: Frank Nielsen, 17 East 28th street; Maurice Schoenholz, 246 East Houston street; John Reickert, 4615 Boulevard, North Bergen, N. J.; William Mackie, 43 West 18th street; Albert P. De Martini, Vineland, N. J.; David Gordon, Hackensack Floral Co., Hackensack, N. J.; Peter Duff, Jr., Tenafly Road, Englewood, N. J.; David Duff, Tenafly Road, Englewood, N. J. Several of the new members were present and were introduced to the club. Six names were proposed for membership.

The report of the good of the club committee, which had recommended changes in the by-laws at a previous meeting was taken up and Chas. Weathered, in opening the discussion, questioned the legality of the proposed changes. Jos. Manda, Frank Traendly, W. A. Manda and Secretary Young spoke on the proposition and on a vote the recommendations were tabled.

Mr. Traendly, who had but recently returned from Cleveland, O., and Indianapolis, Ind., spoke on the outlook for the Fifth National Flower Show, to be held in the latter city, March 25-April 1, and thought that the exhibition would be a decided success. Secretary Young voiced the same views and in telling of his recent trip to St. Louis and Kansas City, Mo., was favorably impressed with what he saw and heard relating to general business conditions.

The death of E. W. Fengar, a member, was reported and a committee will prepare suitable resolutions. Arthur Herrington, in speaking of the Hartford show, said it was a success and mentioned a discussion at the convention, relative to holding the carnation and rose shows together, which has been fully covered in the February 4 issue of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, page 137. Aubrey Nash was also favorably impressed with the exhibition.

Before adjournment, President Irwin told the members that he was about to take a trip south in search of new plants to take the place of those excluded by Quarantine No. 37. The club wished him abundant success and advised him if he visited the Everglades of Florida to look out for the alligators. President R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., of the American Dahlia Society was an interested visitor.

THE EXHIBITS.

The Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, N. J., had a fine display of carnations, including Enchantress Supreme, Thos. C. Joy, White Enchantress, Hope Henshaw and Belle Washburn. Awarded cultural certificate.

Roman J. Irwin showed Carnations Thos. C. Joy, and Enchantress Improved, grown by M. Matheron, Hemstead, N. Y.; also Carnation Remington Red, grown by C. Warburton & Son, Fall River, Mass. Cultural certificate.

George Schubert and Jos. Schubert, West Hoboken, N. J. showed a new dwarf Boston fern. Vote of thanks.

W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., had a group of Solanum jasminoides. Cultural certificate.

Henry Hession, Brooklyn, exhibited a large vase of a new carnation, the same shade as Enchantress, named My Welcome. It was awarded 90 points and a preliminary certificate recommended.

TRADE ACTIVE IN ALL LINES.

With St. Valentine's Day a feature, business increased rapidly. Stock is of good quality and plentiful and prices within reach on most items. Carnations seem to be at their best and find a ready sale, first grades bringing $6 per 100. Roses are still a little scarce but the outlook is very good, if we have a few more bright days. Sweet peas are improving in quality as the season advances and it is expected that they will be quite plentiful, if our old friend "Sol" continues to shine. Snapdragons are now becoming a factor. The supply of Easter and Calla lilies is increasing, selling at $20 to $25 per 100. Bulbous stock, including tulips, hyacinths, freesias and daffodils find a ready market, because of a shortened supply. Some very good single violets, Princess of Wales, are seen and clean up quickly. Miscellaneous stock, such as lily of the valley, calendulas, primulas and orchids move well.

NOTES.

Miss Helen Brown, of the Wm. Murphy Co., recently underwent an operation for appendicitis, and according to last reports is getting along nicely.

The trade regrets to hear of the illness of C. E. Critchell, who is again confined to his home, having recently suffered a relapse.

The Wm. Murphy Co., has had a good week in greens and is receiving a fine lot of sweet peas from Sam Kuhn, Price Hill.

Geo. Durban says that wedding work has kept him busy and plant trade is exceptionally good.

The shop of H. W. Sheppard has been very busy the past week, in telegraph orders.

Louis Roth reports a large volume of funeral work the past week.

Visitors: W. F. Thomas, of the Burlington Willowware Shops, Burlington, Ia.; Jos. H. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; Geo. Taffel, of Schloss Bros., Ribbons, Inc., New York; Carl Heiser, Hamilton; Cleves Johnson, Memphis, Tenn., who reports trade as brisk in the south.

BUSINESS REPORTED GOOD.

Business has been good in spite of reports to the contrary. Of course stock is more plentiful but reduced prices have kept it cleaned up at all times, and the firms who go after business, who advertise and are wide awake, have no complaints to make. When we view other lines, such as department stores, music and in fact most every line, one can think of and hear their reports that in spite of special sales and every known device to stimulate business, they are doing nothing, then we know we should be thankful and keep on working harder than ever, for it is a known fact that the flower business in general all over the country is in a more healthy state than any other you can mention. Stock of all kinds is more plentiful and prices are down, but with few exceptions there is still enough left to give the grower a profit. Those exceptions have been Paper White narcissi, freesias, lily of the valley and violets, which we admit are hard to move at times at any price, and from all reports there will be fewer Paper Whites grown next season than for several years. American Beauty roses have put in an appearance once more and while not plentiful, the supply should increase from now on. Other roses are fine in quality and while the supply has increased, they are still bringing good prices. While the offerings of carnations is larger, the expected glut has not yet occurred, and with easier prices they are cleaning up nicely. Easter and Calla Lilies are still good property and clean up daily. Jonquils are now a big factor and some fine stock is being received. Both Narcissi Victoria and Golden Spur are seen in quantity. Tulips are another big factor and the quality was never better, a few Darwins being obtainable. The supply of sweet peas is larger and prices have slumped somewhat, but the demand still consumes all that arrive. Rainbow freesias are proving popular while F. Purity has been a drug on the market for some time. The storm in the east held up the southern shipments of greens for several days, but they are now arriving on time. The wholesale houses report advance orders for St. Valentine's Day as equal to other years and all look for a big day.

FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

The local Florists' and Gardeners' Club held its annual election of officers, February 7. The only office there was any competition for was for president, to which J. C. Walley, of The McCallum Co., was elected. It was also rose and carnation night, and the exhibits were better and more plentiful than they have been for some time. The club gave T. Malbranc a vote of thanks and a cultural certificate for his wonderful exhibit of Premier roses and carnations. The carnations shown by Mr. Malbranc included Nancy, White Wonder, Rosalie, Laddie, Philadelphia, Belle Washburn, C. W. Ward and a sport of Nancy, all well developed stock and a credit to any grower. He also featured a vase of Premier roses that caused much favorable comment. Jos. Murphy, of Sewickley, showed Laddie, Matchless and red seedling carnation produced by John Carmen, that were of the best, and won the highest number of points. The McCallum Co. had three vases of roses and one of Double White Killarney, which were excellent. The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. had an exhibit of the carnations and roses grown at their Bakerstown range and Mr. Clark gave a very interesting talk on each variety as to its quality and productiveness from a commercial growers' standpoint.

NOTES.

The new firm of Gass & Grabert, dealers in plants, seeds and bulbs, are ready for business at 119 Federal street, N. S. Andrew B. Gass, who is an expert landscape gardener, will have charge of the plants, trees and shrubbery. D. H. Grabert, for 24 years with Beckett's Seed Store, will be in charge of the seeds and bulbs. Both men are well known to the trade and have the best wishes of everyone.

The McCallum Co. is showing sweet peas with 12 to 15-inch stems, which have been declared the best ever received in this market.

Ed. Ludwig of the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co. has been confined to his home with tonsillitis for several days.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

An informal dance and buffet lunch tendered by President Otto Bauer and the S. S. Pennock Company to the members of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., and their ladies, made the February 7 meeting of that organization a decided success. The florists made short work of the business session of the meeting and contenting themselves largely with nominating officers for the coming year.

The list of candidates, to be voted upon at the March meeting of the club, is as follows: O. A. C. Oehmler, Adolph E. Gude, Harry Ley and R. E. West, for president; Chas. E. F. Gersdorf and Henry Witt, vice-president; Harry B. Lewis, the present secretary; W. F. Gude, present treasurer, and R. L. Jenkins, treasurer; Otto Bauer and Theodore Diedrich, directors, two to be elected.

The meeting was held in the store of the S. S. Pennock Co., on H street, Northwest. The large shipping and stock tables that occupy the center of the establishment had been removed and the stone floor covered with a glide-producing preparation. A three-piece orchestra was stationed toward the rear and what those colored boys could knock out of drums, piano and saxophone was not worth mentioning.

While there was no contest to determine the skill of the dancers it was remarked that Host Bauer and his assistant, Milton Redman, were certainly good. In fact, the colored drummer confidentially informed us that these two gentlemen were the "danciest men I've ever seen."

Mrs. Bauer showed her ability as hostess through the medium of a very delightful buffet supper that was served during the evening, and when the dancers lined the side walls with their dishes of ice cream, small cakes, sandwiches, and whatnot, it sounded like a very busy place with everybody laughing and chatting, and the vote informally taken showed that the ladies would not object to their husbands and sweethearts attending club meetings if they would plan a few more affairs like this one.

The meeting adjourned when the clock tolled out the midnight hour and so fine a time was had by all that none of the florist-chauffeurs grumbled because they had to drive, in some cases, many miles before home was reached, and a florist has to turn out early in the morning. Before adjourning the business meeting of the evening the secretary was instructed to send a letter to W. F. Gude expressing to him the hope of the florists and growers that he would be favored with a speedy recovery from the accident which made it impossible for him to attend the meeting. The letter was to accompany a box of flowers. Mr. Gude, as is known in the trade, recently suffered a broken leg when he slipped on the floor, at his home on New Hampshire avenue.

CUT FLOWERS MOVE SLOWLY.

Weather conditions were far too favorable to keep market conditions in a healthy state. Moderate cool nights and plenty of sunshine were the cause of bringing along the belated carnation crops, which were due long ago. In roses the supply was adequate to meet all the demands and this, coupled with the increased daily receipts of sweet peas and the various kinds of bulbous stock, had a tendency to weaken prices all around. Then, too, the great variety of bulbous offerings in pots, pans and boxes, appeals to many persons who prefer them to cut flowers. Green goods are plentiful and all other lines are well supplied.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

In order to gain a little more publicity and indirectly help to stimulate business, the Florists' Club at its February 2 meeting decided to hold its annual spring display of cut flowers and plants in a place where the general public could view the same without paying for the privilege. According to present plans this display will be held in the spacious lobby of the Public Library building, on Grand avenue and Eighth street, March 15-16. While exhibitors will not be allowed their usual display card it will not in any way conflict with our good intentions, as it should be an instructive affair. Needless to say all exhibits will have to be of excellent quality with the name of variety attached. Particulars of this display will be forthcoming at the next regular club meeting, March 2.

NOTES.

F. Ernst, who 10 years ago had the grit to buy a property at 3711 North avenue, which district was at that time sparsely populated and opened up a retail store plus a small greenhouse, sold out to the Bradish Floral Co., who took possession February 1. Through hard work and long hours he built up a good sized business, the fruits of which he and his able assistant, Mrs. Ernst, can now enjoy. For the present Mr. Ernst will stay with the new firm to help them get acquainted as they have only had limited experience.

The A. T. Kellner Co. has the decorations for the annual bachelors' ball of the Wisconsin Club, February 21, which is always an elaborate affair. This firm says that the February business will compare favorably with the same month of past seasons.

The board of directors of the Florists' Publicity Association held a meeting February 7, and appropriations for the months of February and March allowed. Every member was present and much good accomplished.

Hugo Locker & Sons, Wauwatosa, and Riels Bros., North Milwaukee, are again consigning large daily cuts of fancy sweet peas to the local market, both firms specializing in this line of cut flowers. E. O.

Boston, Mass.

NO CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

There really is nothing new to report on market conditions from a week ago. The prices are practically the same on all stock. There is every indication of an increase in prices for St. Valentine's Day, as the supply has decreased. This fact will likely cause a sharp advance in prices at the opening of the week. Violets will probably be the leaders and the supply will no doubt be ample for the call, as the salesmen are over anxious to book orders ahead, which indicates an abundance of violets.

NOTES.

An indication of the lack of employment in this state was furnished Monday, when 600 ex-service men appeared at the State house to obtain jobs in clearing up debris caused by the last ice storm. There were six men for every job and those who could not get work were turned over to the state employment bureau. Many men were in pitiful condition and several collapsed for want of food.

At a recent meeting of the board of trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, it was voted that all annual members of the society who had paid dues for 25 years or more shall be exempted from further payments and their names entered upon the list of life members.

Israel Leibman is now located at the Exchange. He is handling the plants and flowers of the Leominster Floral Company.

John McFarland, North Easton, is in a precarious condition at his home with rheumatism. E. F. S.

Denver, Colo.

SUPPLY OF STOCK INSUFFICIENT.

Tulips, hyacinths, jonquils and daffodils and sprays of pussy willow are making the window displays of local florists most attractive and bring thoughts of springtime to one's mind, in spite of the cold winds that are blowing. A week of zero weather has been followed this past week with several days of almost springlike weather. As a result stock has been more plentiful but still insufficient to fully meet the demand. A good supply of pussy willows is coming in but they are cleaned up almost as soon as they reach the market. Indications for a good St. Valentine's business are fair, and although the stock, which is favored for this occasion will be limited, there will be no actual shortage unless a last-minute rush of business comes in. Red carnations, although of good quality, will be limited in quantity. A good supply of violets are obtainable and fair offerings of sweet peas. Butterfly roses are plentiful in the short grades and are popular for corsages. Some very pretty designs for St. Valentine's Day were on display and a specialty was made of a corsage of violets with a single rose in the center for the occasion, at one of the shops. N. H. N.

OBITUARY.

Josiah Taylor Mareau.

Josiah Taylor Mareau, who resigned in 1912, as a justice of the Supreme Court of New York, died February 8, at Virginia Inn, Winter Park, Fla., age 80 years. He had maintained a summer home at Green Farms, Conn., and it was through the remarkably fine dahlias grown there that Justice Mareau's name became familiar to the members of the American Dahlia Society and visitors to the exhibitions held in New York and other cities.

Mr. Mareau was born in Broome county, N. Y., in 1842. He graduated from the New York State Normal school and for several years after was a teacher in the Brooklyn Polytechnic institute. He later studied and took up the practice of law and for 30 years was regarded as one of the leading lawyers of Brooklyn, his career being rounded out by his election to the state supreme court.

Hiram M. Munk.

Hiram M. Munk, founder and treasurer of the Munk Floral Co., Columbus, O., died suddenly at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. F. Bernhart, on East Main street, that city, age 70 years. Mr. Munk first entered the florist business in 1907, establishing greenhouses on West King avenue and for five years sold most of his stock to the wholesale markets. In 1912 he decided to embark in the retail end of the business and developed a thriving flower store at 19 South High street, still maintaining, however, his range of houses.

Besides the daughter above mentioned Mr. Munk is survived by three sons, Edmund A., Edgar R., Robert W. Munk, all connected with the company, and another daughter. The funeral services were held from the late home. J. W. L.

Edward W. Fengar.

Edward W. Fengar, proprietor of a large range at Irvington, a suburb of Newark, N. J., died in a New York hospital on February 9, following an operation for a tumor, age 58 years. Mr. Fengar had for a number of years occupied an important position with the Berwind-White Coal Mining Co., his office being at 1 Broadway, New York.

As a side line Mr. Fengar went into the growing of cut flowers and plants for the trade, having been quite successful with carnations. Bedding plants were also grown at the Irvington range. He was a genial and active man of business and had a wide acquaintance in the florist and seed trades. He was a life member of the Society of American Florists, a member of the New York Florists' Club and of Kane Lodge No. 55, F. & A. M. of Newark. Mr. Fengar had always made his home in Newark, of which he was a native.

Besides his widow, Mr. Fengar is survived by one son. The funeral services were held at the Home for Services, Newark, on the afternoon of February 12.

Herman C. Steinhoff.

Herman C. Steinhoff, a florist and nurseryman well and favorably known in the trade of New York and the neighboring cities of New Jersey, died at West Hoboken, N. J., February 9, age 65 years. He had been a sufferer from a complication of asthma and heart trouble. Mr. Steinhoff started in business in West Hoboken 45 years ago and later established a nursery and erected greenhouses at West Norwood, N. J. He formerly forced bulbs extensively at the West Hoboken range and had visited both Europe and Bermuda in the interest of his business.

In late years Mr. Steinhoff had given considerable attention to the growing and forcing of roses and other plants for the Easter and spring trade. A part of the West Hoboken property was recently sold, as in late years that has become a residential section of the city. He had been connected with various horticultural organizations and at the time of his death was treasurer of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers. He was of a genial and kindly temperament and had many friends.

Mr. Steinhoff is survived by his wife, three daughters and five sons; a sister, Mrs. Lena Dourge and a brother, Wm. Steinhoff.

Columbus, O. Notes.

S. F. Stephens & Son, Greenlawn cemetery, are considerably ahead of other establishments in bulbous stock. The writer was shown, by W. J. Stephens, a house that was quite out of the ordinary, Belle Alliance tulips coming into good bloom, January 23, and White Hawk and Murillo, January 15, all of the highest order. A Dutch hyacinth, La Innocence was seen in quantity, some of the spikes being about eight inches long and stems over 14 inches.

J. B. McKellar's store was about the busiest place one can imagine, when we visited it. He wanted to buy a line of spring bulbs, and finally did, but the salesman had to call four times before Mr. McKellar could take the time from his customers to make the purchase. The new shop, with its complete furnishings, presents a fine appearance and is helping this city overcome its reputation as a one-street town.

The Wilson Seed & Floral Co., 33 East Town street, recently moved from its High street location and with Mr. Wilson's unique advertising schemes is undoubtedly gaining in patronage. It is a question as to which is the side line in this establishment, as both flowers and seeds are sold. Frank Steffans was recently secured to superintend the latter department.

The Riverside Floral Co., North Side, is always a pleasant place to call and Mr. Ackerman has a smile for the traveling salesman that is worth while. When you show him that your prices and goods are of a high order he will buy, if in the market.

T. J. Ludwig's flower shop in the heart of the retail district was doing its usual good business, when we visited it. This city is considered a good florists' town and the Ludwig store is always able to handle its share of the trade. H. G. P.

IRONWOOD, MICH.—R. Lutey and wife, returned February 15, via Chicago, after a week's visit in Detroit.

OMAHA, NEB.—M. A. Fiersten, representing Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, returning from the Pacific coast, called on the trade here St. Valentine's week.

ISHPEMING, MICH.—Fire in the storage house of the Ishpeming Greenhouses, February 8, damaged the greenhouses only very slightly.

MARLETTE, MICH.—R. J. Rasmussen & Sons recently completed one house, 21x90 feet, doubling the firm's capacity. They will specialize in growing geraniums this year.

ALBANY, N. Y.—Plans for increasing the facilities of the college of agriculture, Ithaca, were given impetus, February 10, when representatives of four horticultural organizations of the state met with Governor Miller and the budget committee to suggest the building of a plant industry building, to cost $750,000, which it is expected will be started this year.

Plant Quarantine Conference March 15.

A conference is to be called by the Federal Horticultural Board at the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., March 15, at 10 a. m., for the purpose of considering the advisability of any modifications, additions to or deductions from, of the classes of plants permitted entry under permit for immediate sale under Regulation 3 of Quarantine No. 37. Such conference will afford opportunity for a full and free discussion of the whole subject of the classes of plants involved and the restrictions enforced under this regulation.

Regulation 3 now provides for the entry of certain classes of bulbs, representing 80 to 90 per cent of the importations into the United States prior to the quarantine, and also of stocks, cuttings, and scions of fruit, rose stocks, and seeds of fruit, forest, ornamental and shade trees and hardy shrubs. The purpose of the conference, therefore, is to consider the desirability of any restrictions in this list of plants or additions to it. Under this regulation open continuing permits are issued for the plants listed. In other words, there is no limitation on the number of plants which may be imported under such permits.

American Rose Society.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

The following rose has been offered for registration by E. M. Rosenbluth, Wallingford, Pa., and passed upon by the registration committee:

Name—Greatheart; class — hybrid tea; parentage—sport from Mrs. Walter Easlea, 1917; budded, 1918, under close observation in open ground; description—habit of plant, vigorous and good; character of foliage—good, not susceptible to spot or mildew; freedom of growth and hardiness—free and branching, erect, hardiness remarkable; flower—almost perfect, erect on strong stems; color—pale flesh shaded salmon; form—excellent, high center; fragrance and bud—mild, quite long bud; good in bud and open flower; petalage—of good substance, nearly perfect and lasting; freedom of bloom and lasting qualities—reliable bloomer, wonderful keeper, blooms well in spring, summer and autumn.

The rose is similar to and an improvement on Mme. Edmond Rostand, but a more reliable bloomer, better stems and every bud opening perfectly, but it is different in having more petalage, better bloomer, practically every cane terminus forming good bud and flower. It is superior for the following reasons: As stated above, longer stems, better form and color, more vigorous grower—uniformity of bloom from early to late season.

If no objection to such registration is filed with the secretary of the society within three weeks after this publication, the registration will become permanent. JOHN C. WISTER, Sec'y.

Fifth National Flower Show.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., MARCH 25-APRIL 1.

Inasmuch as the Fifth National Flower Show has been transferred to Indianapolis, Ind., a few facts regarding the situation there may not be amiss. To begin with, let us assure you that the facilities for staging the show are fully as good here as at Cleveland and there is absolutely no reason why it should not be as big a success here as it was expected to be at Cleveland. We have a splendid trade organization in this state and the way the members responded to the call of the local committee must have been gratifying to the National Flower Show committee, which met here, February 7.

True, the time is short, but we are well organized and with the co-operation of those who have carried the work up to this point, we will take it right along to a complete success. We will have the co-operation of all the civic organizations here, Governor McCray, the State Board of Agriculture, the Chamber of Commerce and others, besides many leading citizens who have already offered to serve on committees or do anything needed to make the show a success.

We have ample room for staging the exhibit and many more trade displays than are now booked. We urge every prospective exhibitor to bring here everything he intended to show at Cleveland as we have fully as much room here as would have been available there and in a building that is well adapted to the purpose. We will not be able to reproduce the gardens that were distinctly local in character, due to the shortness of the time for preparing stock. That, we cannot help.

Prospective exhibitors in the trade display are reminded of the central location of this city, which should mean a very large attendance of trade visitors. The committee has made a lower rate for space on account of the great amount of space available. The opportunity for business here will be unlimited and we urge you to make reservation of space with Secretary Yering at once. Unloading facilities for carload shipments are unexcelled. Railroad switching is within 500 feet of the building. Your "Hoosier" craftsmen invite and urge you to come. Remember the dates, March 25-April 1.

Rice Bros. Acquire Greenhouses.

Rice Bros., wholesale florists, of Minneapolis, Minn., recently purchased the J. P. Nelson range of greenhouses and 15 acres of land adjoining the city limits. The houses have been used for growing vegetables and were erected four years ago. A full line of stock will be raised, including many novelties, not heretofore grown in that section of the country. The range will be enlarged and rebuilt and it is hoped to make it one of the most up-to-date establishments in the state.

Having founded their wholesale business over 20 years ago, Rice Bros. have built up one of the largest enterprises of that character in the northwest.

National Flower Growers' Ass'n.

CLEVELAND GROWERS.

The Cleveland branch of the Ohio District of the National Flower Growers' Association is planning to hold a "Say It With Flowers Week" at one of the leading moving picture theatres, in the near future. This will include a big spectacle or tableau illustrating what might be called "The Seven Ages of Man in the Use of Flowers." As this theatre has an exceptionally beautiful and large lobby, there will be large exhibits by the various growers.

Palm Grove Preserved.

Washington, D. C.—Under the terms of a bill passed by the house, February 6, a tract of 1,600 acres, 60 miles southeast of Riverside, Calif., will be set aside as a national monument where large groves of natural wild palms will be preserved.

HEAVY SUPPLY SELLS RAPIDLY.

The local supply is improving with the last several days of sunshine, and it is very fortunate, for due to the slight wave of influenza that has afflicted the city, the death list has been climbing daily, and the call for funeral designs is very heavy. Carnations are very plentiful and are being taken up quickly at four to six cents. Laddie is going well at 10 to 12 cents. Roses are about the only scarce flower. In fact they are really not scarce, but are being bought as rapidly as they come in and the wholesale houses reported advance orders for all the roses they could obtain for St. Valentine's Day. Columbia, Ophelia, Premier, Hoosier and Killarney are the varieties most in demand and are selling very well at six to 20 cents. Jonquils are increasing in supply and what are arriving are selling at six cents. Paper White narcissi are plentiful. Sweet peas are very plentiful and exceptionally fine, bringing $1 to $2.50 per 100. Freesias are also numerous. Calla lilies are seen and the call for them quickly absorbs the supply. Violets are abundant, doubles selling at $1 to $1.50 per 100 and singles at 75 cents to $1. The variety of plants is very good and sell well, hyacinths, primroses and cinerarias being among the most popular offerings.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW ARRANGEMENTS.

The arrangements for the Fifth National Flower Show are being made daily and the state will soon be ablaze with literature, posters and billboards, as well as stickers and other mediums of advertising. Irwin Bertermann, executive chairman of the local committees, reports that the committees are now running along smoothly and the work of the show is progressing very rapidly. A meeting of the chairmen of every committee was held Tuesday, February 14, at the Chamber of Commerce, at which time every chairman advised as to the advancement his committee had made. The dates of the show are March 25-April 1.

Indiana State Florists' Association.

INDIANAPOLIS MEETING, FEBRUARY 7.

The State Florists' Association of Indiana held its monthly meeting at Smith & Young's establishment, Indianapolis, February 7, with an excellent attendance, many florists from other states being present. As the meeting was held on the evening of the same day as that of the National Flower Show committee, full account of which appeared in last week's issue, page 185, all the members of that committee were present, including President S. S. Pennock, of the Society of American Florists; George Asmus, chairman of the committee; Secretary John Young, J. J.

Hess, H. P. Knoble, W. H. Duckham, Frank H. Traendly, Jos. H. Hill and A. F. J. Baur. All spoke favorably of the location of Indianapolis for staging a successful exhibition.

Many new members were taken into the association, which is the result of the membership committee's vigorous canvass. The following were accepted: Henry Wishart, Walter Hasselman, J. Connor, Jr., S. V. Williams, Benj. Schrader and G. Rasmussen. Those proposed for membership were: Earl Fortney, O. K. Owen, Jack Marer, Henry Steckman, Harold Welcome and H. G. Baum.

President Hitz gave a very enthusiastic talk on the national flower show, to be held in Indianapolis, March 25-April 1, and urged every member of the association to put his shoulder to the wheel to make it a success. He stated that this was the one occasion where the florists of Indiana could show the state florists' associations of other states the way to put over a national show in a masterful way and that all should be proud that the exhibition, to a large extent, was in their keeping.

By a unanimous vote the association voted to support the show, every man to do his share and a little more. The florists in other states have voiced their intention of giving the exhibition publicity in their own localities as far as possible, and to urge their customers to come to it. It is expected that reduced interurban rates will be in effect at the time of the show. The meeting then adjourned.

National Flower Show

Manufacturers' Building

INDIANAPOLIS

March 25--April 1, 1922

The move from Cleveland to Indianapolis has been accomplished without difficulty, and even to advantage.

Indianapolis is a wonderful city, with remarkable drawing powers due to its great interurban system of travel. Just think of it! Indianapolis, for an event such as the National Flower Show, draws from a population of SIXTY MILLIONS, all within a day's ride.

A very ordinary exposition held in the same building recently packed it with an attendance of 100,000, something which would be phenomenal anywhere else.

It is an ideal city for a National Flower Show—a city of house owners, with the home life paramount. Within its own limits it has a population of nearly 350,000, citizens all of a prosperous class, due to the splendid industrial conditions enjoyed, with a high percentage of American born.

TRADE EXHIBITS

The Trade Exhibits will be staged in TWO SECTIONS:

ON THE MAIN FLOOR, Manufacturer's Building, where the competitive section will be staged—For exhibitors who sell direct to the public. Space Rate $1.50 per sq. ft., exclusive of equipment, signs, etc.

CONVENTION HALL BUILDING—Where all Trade meetings, American Rose Society's Convention and S. A. F. Directors' Meeting will be held, and where other functions, social and otherwise, will take place—Space Rate $1.00 per sq. ft., exclusive of equipment, signs, etc. The trade exhibits in this hall will not be open to the public.

Plans showing space locations in both halls will be sent to anyone interested on application to the Secretary—But why wait for the plans! Everybody will be well cared for. There is plenty of room and advantages at Indianapolis, such as never enjoyed at any previous National Flower Show.

Address all inquiries to the Secretary, 43 West 18th St., New York. After February 23, the Secretary may be addressed in care of Claypool Hotel, Indianapolis.

SCARCITY OF STOCK CONTINUES.

There has been practically no change in this market as regards supply. The most severe shortage in many years still continues with no early relief in sight. Unusually cold weather continues and is general throughout the state. There has been little change in prices in the wholesale market. Carnations have advanced to $2.25 per bunch of two dozen. This is the highest mark ever reached for this flower in January. Hadley, Ophelia and Mrs. Chas. Russell are selling from $4 to $6.50 per bunch according to grade. Short roses are very scarce and bring $2 to $3 per bunch. No Cecile Brunner is in the market. Violet growers are sending in very little stock. In normal seasons the violet crop would now be at its height, but plants have suffered to a great extent from freezing. Prices have advanced to $1 per dozen bunches. Cut Acacia Melleissina sells for $1 a bunch. A large amount of it is being used for decorative purposes, instead of greenhouse flowers. Dutch hyacinths are selling well. Tulips clean up quickly at $8 per 100. Freesias have been bringing $6 to $8 per 100 for Purity. Colored kinds command much higher prices. Lillium giganteum is coming in more freely. Lily of the valley is steady at $8 per 100. Paper White narcissi are getting scarce and clean up quickly at $1.50 per 100. Chinese narcissi have increased in supply. Daffodils are getting much better and bring the growers $4 to $6 per 100 according to length of stem. Growers who made liberal plantings of bulbs are having a very prosperous season so far. Gardenias are practically out of the market while cattleyas are quite plentiful. Retailers report the demand for orchids to be poor. Snapdragon is arriving slowly, many growers reporting bad attacks of rust. Greenhouse gail-lardias are in excellent demand and sell for $4 per 100. Sweet peas are scarce. Dealers in greens report the heaviest demand in years. All kinds of eucalyptus are being handled. Asparagus is none too plentiful and adiantums are gradually diminishing. During these days of cut flower scarcity the stores are pushing the sale of flowering and foliage plants with considerable success. Tulips and hyacinths in pans are popular. Azaleas continue to be in fair supply. Cyclamens are as popular as ever. Ericas in the smaller sizes clean up nicely.

NOTES.

G. Rossi & Co. have a fine lot of pot grown tulips and hyacinths in flower at their greenhouses at San Bruno. This very extensive range has fine stocks of palms in various sizes. Boston ferns is another favorite that is grown here on a large scale. Many houses are planted to adiantums and asparagus. The greater part of the cut of this establishment is used to supply the extensive chain of flower stores operated by this firm in this state and Nevada.

The large plantings of Erica melantha of Frank D. Pelicano & Co., on Guttentburg street, suffered severely from the cold weather of the past month. The greater part of the crop was frozen. The dahlia plantings of the firm will all be upon new ground this season and especial care will be taken to develop fancy flowers for the September flower show.

J. W. Davies, president of the Dahlia Society of California, has issued a very attractive and tastefully arranged catalogue of his dahlia novelties for the coming season. The new hybrid cactus, Islam Patrol is reproduced in colors and is particularly handsome. Mr. Davies' dahlia farm is located at 1125 Fillmore street, this city.

B. M. Joseph made his usual handsome window display for St. Valentine's Day novelties, many of them being shown here for the first time. Manager Wagner says the extremely high prices of flowers are having a bad effect on large decorations, the tendency being to buy greens and cheap stock for such work.

The Misses Hanson, who have for years conducted a flower store at 368 Sutter street will move February 15 to much larger and handsomer quarters at 356 Sutter street. Mrs. Copeland, manager of the store is having it equipped with all up to the minute improvements.

E. W. McLellan, Burlingame, says the past month has been one of the coldest in the history of the city. Prospects are encouraging however, for roses later on as the houses are all showing vigorous growth.

Supervisor Angelo J. Rossi, of Pelicano Rossi & Co., is the newly elected president of the central bureau of city organizations which is composed of 37 local, civic, commercial and professional bodies.

Colored freesias from the K. S. Murray Greenhouses, Redwood City, are in great demand in this market at present. He has specialized in this flower for years and has developed his own strain.

Frank D. Pelicano who has been quite ill for the past 10 days is showing improvement. His illness began with an infected finger and developed into a serious attack of rheumatism.

A visit to the greenhouses of Henry L. Golatzhain, Redwood City, showed an elegant lot of flowering plants which the proprietor has grown for the season's trade.

Reports from the chrysanthemum growing section would seem to indicate that the severe cold has killed many of the stock plants saved for propagating purposes.

The Roger Reynolds Nursery Co. has completed a greenhouse for displaying foliage plants and also for propagating.

MARKET OVERSUPPLIED WITH STOCK.

Market conditions for St. Valentine's Day, from a grower's standpoint, were nothing to boast about. There seems to be a surplus of everything, with the carnation supply almost approaching an old-fashioned glut. Everywhere the counters were loaded with flowers, while the buyers were conspicuous by their absence. There was a last minute flurry in the shipping departments, but not enough to clean up at good prices the enormous quantity brought in by the mild winter weather of the past few weeks. Even the old-time favorites for Valentine's Day, violets and sweet peas, although of splendid quality, were neglected, no doubt due to the sudden cold snap, which decreased the call for corsage bouquets. Roses, too, were of fine quality and the color was excellent, medium grades being in greatest demand. Columbia and White Killarney are very plentiful, while Premier, Mrs. Chas. Russell and the red roses are the best sellers. There is an abundance of bulbous stock, but even this is not bringing good prices, when one considers the cost of bulbs and the growing of them. Fancy jonquils could be bought for $30 to $50 per 1,000, tulips, $50 to $60, with Darwins bringing $10 and $12 per 100. Callas, calendulas, freesias, mignonettes, pansies and greens are in good supply. As there was no appreciable booking of advance orders for St. Valentine's Day with the huge quantity of stock, this was decidedly a buyer's market. It was a splendid opportunity for the retailer, who went after the business, to reap a rich reward. He was able to buy a splendid variety of flowers, in excellent condition, at reasonable prices; give satisfaction to his customers and make a good profit.

Distance No Obstacle

No other market has the shipping facilities of Chicago. Thirty-four railroads, centering here, radiate to every point. Every depot is within a short mile. The express company maintains on the market a special corps of men and trucks to handle flowers only.

We are nearer than your neighbor.

It is not distance that ordinarily uses up time, but delay; for transfers; for connections; for blunders.

NOTES.

W. J. Keimel has been commissioned by the trade organization here, to get together the largest delegation that ever left this city for any national event, to proceed to the National Flower Show at Indianapolis, Ind., on one special day, to be known as "Chicago Day." The date, train and rates will be announced later.

Leo Wietor, son of N. J. Wietor, leaves for California for an extended visit, February 15. N. J. Wietor called attention to the fact that just two years ago, February 13, carnations were selling at 18 to 20 cents each. Quite a contrast from the present day of low prices and no demand.

The Allied Florists' Association carried good St. Valentine's Day advertisements in the newspapers early in the week, also A. Lange, John Mangel, Henry Wittbold & Son, George Wittbold and George Weinhoeber.

Wm. Rausch, the well-known employee of the American Express Co., is all smiles these days. Reason: The charming bookkeeper for John Kruchten & Co., Miss Z. Anderson is flashing a diamond solitaire ring.

Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, of Cleveland, O., who came to the city for publicity purposes, succeeded in having the local newspaper editors print some of her articles and illustrations.

The second annual banquet of the Commercial Flower Growers' Association, will be held in the Blue Bird room of the Randolph hotel, Thursday, February 16 at 6 o'clock.

John Michaelson, of the E. C. Amling Co., says that this is the first time in his experience that tulips are in greater demand than jonquils for the first cuts of the season.

Bassett & Washburn were so rushed with valentine orders that Mrs. C. L. Washburn came in to help the regular force at the store.

George Asmus is a busy man these days, with new plans for the National Flower Show at Indianapolis, Ind., March 25-April 1.

E. A. Ollinger was called to his old home at Sturgeon Bay, Wis., by the illness of his mother, last week.

A. J. Cultra, of the Onarga Nursery, Onarga, stopped off here on his way back from the Twin Cities.

Ed. Goldenstein, of Vaughan's Seed Store, has returned from an extended northern business trip.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., worked all hands to full capacity Monday, in getting our orders.

Some fine cyclamen plants in bloom, were seen at J. A. Budlong's store recently.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. have choice sweet peas, which they said were in good demand.

Joseph Foerster Co. reports St. Valentine's Day business highly satisfactory.

Peter Reinberg, Inc., report a heavy business in all of the firm's specialties.

Kennicott Bros. Co. say the business of the past week was quite satisfactory.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. say there was good last-minute call for choice stock.

Zech & Mann had a good shipping business Saturday and Monday.

Visitors: T. J. Noll, Kansas City, Mo; A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind.; R. Lutey and wife, Ironwood, Mich.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular monthly meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Randolph Hotel, February 9, President Jos. Kohout in the chair. There were 75 members in attendance. George Asmus, who had but recently returned from Indianapolis, spoke about the plans being developed for the Fifth National Flower Show, to be held there March 25-April 1, and recommended that a special day be set aside for the florists of the city, to be known as "Chicago Day." The club heartily concurred in the suggestion and President Kohout appointed Wm. J. Keimel, Elmhurst, chairman of the Chicago Day committee, with power to select the remaining members of the committee.

Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, of Cleveland, O., gave an address on "Advertising," and stated that she had succeeded in placing 34 articles on floral subjects with Chicago newspapers. A talk on asters, illustrated with stereopticon slides, by J. K. Rugowski, of Manitowoc, Wis., was very instructive. B. J. Schilling, of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, presented an illustrated lecture on "The Dawn of the Electrical Era in Railroading."

President Kohout announced the meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, to be held at Urbana, March 14, and urged all to attend. Wm. J. Keimel and Peter Pearson gave an interesting account of their trip to the Hartford, Conn., conventions and flower show and Mr. Keimel presented the report of the auditing committee. T. E. Waters, chairman of the good of the club committee, regretted the fact that there would be no dancing at the close of the business meeting and in the absence of A. J. Zech reported for him the progress being made with the bowling tournament.

The following were elected members: August F. Urbanski, Florists' Credit Association, Federal Life Building; A. F. Wienold, Oak Park, and Louis Moteff, 34 West Randolph street. Candidates for membership are: J. K. Rugowski, Manitowoc, Wis.; M. N. Duyts, Lake Forest; C. Parker, 66 East Randolph

Before adjournment it was decided that all matters pertaining to the trip to the Kansas City, Mo. convention of the Society of American Florists next August, be left in the hands of the transportation committee.

THE EXHIBITS.

The exhibits of plants and cut flowers were very extensive and included many fine specimens. F. R. Kuehne, Chas. Elliott and John Dutys judged the plants; Richard Salm, Wm. Col-latz, Albert Erickson, cut flowers and T. E. Waters and Geo. Asmus, florists' supplies. The following were the exhibitors:

Peter Pearson showed Darwin tulips, for which he received a certificate of merit and for a basket of tulips and hyacinths, honorable mention.

A. H. Schneider had an extensive plant display, which included Primula obconica, in pans, certificate of merit; Primula obconica and P. malacoides,

Be sure that the name MEYER is on every spool of green Florists thread that you are buying, and you will get the original and best green Florists thread on the market. A great many of the salesmen on the road and the Florists' supply houses are substituting a cheap and inferior green Florists thread to take the place of the Meyer Green Silkaline and Florists' thread.

Therefore, if you cannot get the real article, send the goods back and order direct from the manufacturer and you will get the best. Guaranteed two ounces of actual thread to the spool, 16 ounces to the pound.

GREAT INCREASE IN BUSINESS NOTED.

The market has been very active the past week with a considerable increase in the retail business reported. Roses are the chief item, American Beauty being seen for the first time. Premier is the best seller at $8 to $25 per 100. Columbia, Mrs. Chas. Russell, Crusader, Ward, Butterfly, Ophelia, Sunburst and Double White Killarney, all of excellent quality, supply a good demand. Carnation offerings are abundant, Enchantress, in pinks, whites and reds being the most popular. Laddie is in short supply at $12 to $15 per 100. Other kinds sell at $4 to $6 per 100. In orchids, Cattleya triana and C. Mossiae are the leaders, at $1 to $1.25 per bloom. Vandas and cypripediums are on the short side. The quality of the gardenias is fine, which can also be said of tulips, both being abundant, the latter wholesaling at $4 to $6 per 100, for cut stock. Cut jonquils, Narcissi Soleil d'Or and N. Paper White sell readily. A liberal supply of hyacinths, in pots and cut flowers, is on hand, the former bringing 20 cents per bloom. Excellent freesias sell well, Rainbow leading. Other shades are yellow, orange and bronze. Sweet peas are improving right along and sell well. Double violets have made their first appearance, retailing at $1.25 per bunch of 50. Snapdragons are scarce and sell rapidly. Fine lily of the valley is seen and was quite a factor in the St. Valentine's Day trade. Calendulas are plentiful. Lilies, Easter and Callas, meet a fair demand in funeral work. Mignonettes and stevias are readily disposed of. In pot plants, tulips, hyacinths, Primula obconica and P. malacoides are obtainable, the quality of the last two mentioned being on the decline. Begonia chatelaine and cyclamens move slowly. Ferns sell at $3.50 per 1,000 and Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri sell at 75 cents to $1 per bunch. Leucothoe is obtainable. The first huckleberry is seen, going at 75 cents per bunch.

NOTES.

Grimm & Gorly featured a very attractive St. Valentine's Day decoration, consisting of a large red heart, in the center of which were two doors, ajar, giving one a glimpse of a large bunch of violets tied with corsage ribbon. Another window showed a large Mexican air plant.

F. H. Weber had an attractive St. Valentine's Day window decoration, consisting of kewpies of various sizes, dressed in red ribbons, with large hearts in front. Pot plants and cut flowers were nicely arranged between the dolls, suggesting valentines.

The St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. report a very good business. P. F. Pfaender, of the firm's accessories department, states that chiffon prices increased one-fourth cent because of the rise in the French exchange.

Special boxes, consisting of narcissi, carnations and a few roses, were features of the Ayres Floral Co.'s valentine trade.

F. C. Weber featured a combination of calendulas and lavender sweet peas in its window for St. Valentine's Day.

Excellent pot tulips, hyacinths and jonquils were displayed by the C. Young Floral Co., for the occasion.

Miss M. S. Newman has a fine stock of Laddie carnations, sweet peas and Sweetheart roses.

EXCEPTIONAL DEMAND FOR STOCK.

Stock is plentiful and business unusually good. Carnations took the lead as the quantity item, the quality being very fine. Prices range from $4 to $5 per 100. Rose offerings are good and numerous and some good bargains are obtainable in stock wholesaling at $6 to $25 per 100. Sweet peas are in heavy supply. White, pink and yellow freesias are in liberal supply and they are of good quality. Bulbous stock, though more plentiful, is nothing to brag about. Calendulas, Rubrum lilies, stocks, lily of the valley, snapdragons, narcissi and a few violets make up the balance of the cut flower list. All seasonable kinds of pot plants are plentiful and sell well. Funeral and decorative work have been features with quantities of flowers sent to the hospitals.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

The feature of the February 9 meeting of the club was the presence of President S. S. Pennock of the Society of American Florists, Samuel Murray, vice-president, J. J. Hess, treasurer and John Young, secretary, of the same organization. President Pennock told of his recent trip to Europe and a discussion by the members on "What Are We Doing to Make St. Valentine's Day Popular?" aroused considerable interest. The committee of publicity reported that the "Say It With Flowers," signboards had arrived and were being distributed to the members who had ordered them. At the conclusion of the business session, a general good time was had by all, after which the meeting adjourned.

NOTES.

An excellent trade in pot plants is being enjoyed by W. J. Barnes, who finds a steady outlet for his flowers in the very heavy funeral, hospital and decorative work being experienced at this time.

Many of the trade received orders for decorative work for the Real Estate Board's better homes and building exposition last week as well as the automobile show, which began February 11. Funeral work is reported brisk at the Alpha Floral Co.'s establishment, with a fine demand for pot plants. Their own grown sweet peas are rounding into excellent form.

Samuel Murray reports a fine week in business and Miss Hayden, of the store, says it is a delight to see the stock in such fine condition as it sells itself.

The Wm. L. Rock Floral Co. is cutting an excellent lot of roses, lilies, carnations, sweet peas, freesias and bulbous stock. The demand is good.

It is good to see Ray Blessing back on the job again at T. J. Noll & Co.'s wholesale store, who reports a heavy shipping and local trade.

Some fine decorations are reported by M. Neff, of the Muehlebach Flower Shop, who says the force is kept busy getting the work out.

The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. state that it is well supplied with stock and a good call to clean it up.

In talking to Mr. Spain, of the A. Newell store, he says the force is kept busy keeping up with the orders.

The trade of the Linwood Floral Co. has held up well, with plant trade booming.

H. Kusik & Co. has a heavy business in roses and carnations.

Chas. Thomas reports business as holding its own.

EXCELLENT DEMAND FOR ALL STOCK.

Market conditions have been very satisfactory in many respects. There was a plentiful supply of flowers with the possible exception of roses although surplus stocks were not large. The supply was absorbed without any trouble and most of the florists cleaned up nicely during the week. One of the best features was funeral work. With Lent approaching, social affairs are numerous and there has been a good call for flowers and corsages for parties, receptions and other social affairs. Roses are selling briskly and prices range from $4 to $12 per dozen. Premier, Sunburst, Columbia and Ward leading. Carnations are staple now and business has been excellent. Violets are in good demand and the quality is fine. Sweet peas and freesias are also selling well as are the full category of spring flowers, including tulips, jonquils, narcissi and hyacinths. Pot plants are also selling better as the spring season for that sort of stock has opened up.

FLOWER GROWERS' AND DEALERS' ASS'N.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Flower Growers' and Dealers' Association was held February 7 at the establishment of S. F. Stephens & Son, with a good attendance. The greater part of the time was taken up with putting finishing touches on the valentine advertising campaign and the first of the publicity appeared in the local papers February 9 and will continue until St. Valentine's Day. In conjunction with the newspaper advertising the banners "Say It With Flowers for Valentine" was placed on the delivery wagons of all the establishments. An added feature was a painting of a heart and a flower placed over it. The banners were very striking and attracted a good deal of attention. Owing to unavoidable absence, the talk of the evening by Edward Underwood was postponed, who was to have spoken on "Reminiscences of Florists in Columbus." The meeting then adjourned.

NOTES.

hospitals of the city. It is the second annual affair of the kind and featured "Say It With Flowers." About 70 boy scouts from various troops in the city placed the carnations in every room of the local hospitals. This helps to cheer the monotony of the sick room and was very much appreciated by the patients. Mr. Wilson recently received his new seed display cases and counters which are up to date in every way. The cases have been placed near the front of the store and attract much attention. The firm is selling a large number of spring flowers at this time, having started its $1 rose special on Saturdays, when a dozen blooms are sold for that amount.

Cuttings from rose bushes are the latest booty of thieves according to reports made by east side residents to the police department. The persons making the complaint were J. J. Warren, 1019 Wilson Avenue and George S. Thiel, 1015 Wilson Avenue. The roses grown around the houses of these two parties have attracted considerable attention

VERY GOOD BUSINESS REPORTED.

Trade the past week has been very good. Tulips, daffodils, narcissi, free-sias, jonquils and calendulas being in heavy demand with good supplies. Carnations are plentiful now and the quality excellent. Roses are much improved, especially Ophelia, Columbia, Premier and Hoosier Beauty. The supply of sweet peas, which are of good quality, has greatly increased. Roman hyacinths are very scarce but lily of the valley is in good supply and the quality excellent. The first snapdragons are seen.

NOTES.

A number of the florists and their delivery chauffeurs were summoned to appear before the Ontario county grand jury, during a John Doe proceeding conducted by District Attorney M. D. Lapham, regarding the theft of Christmas trees from city property in the vicinity of Hemlock lake, just before the holidays. Investigations developed that a number of persons living near the lake were also implicated in cutting the tops off of large pine trees on city property. No one was held on the charges, until further notice.

SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT NOTED.

The past week's demand shows quite an improvement over that of the week before although it is far from sufficient to use up the lower priced stocks such as daffodils, sweet peas, carnations, freesia, calendulas, snapdragons, violets, etc. The only stocks that held in price were roses and cattleyas. Roses have been on the short side or at least the demand has been such as to clean up all the short sizes daily, only the long stemmed grades that command from 20 to 25 cents, having to be pushed to get them over. There are practically no good American Beauties which assists a little in moving the longest of the specials particularly in Hadley and Premier. Carnations are more plentiful, but all in the special class bring good money some as high as 10 cents, while the low grades are selling at from two to four cents. Sweet peas have taken a great slump in price because of the quantity coming in on a slow market. Ten days ago specials brought $1 a bunch; now equal quality sells for 25 cents a bunch of twenty-five sprays. The market has been over supplied with daffodils which have been sold the past week for $20 per 1,000 although the 100 price was from $3 to $6. Tulips are now coming in and bring good prices. There are some good and a lot of very poor Easter lilies, the latter cold storage gigas. A lot of the L. formosums are small and badly split, as if they had been forced too rapidly. There are plenty of callas, the choice flowers of which sell readily. Freesia although good, moves slowly, as do violets. There is an abundance of all kinds of greens.

prices considerably. The influence of this will hang over for several days when the fresh stock of the article then coming in not more than supplies the demand. What is needed is a large store in the center of the city, which will advertise and display the stock in quantity and move it quickly at retail at twice the wholesale job lot price. Most retailers are afraid of specials with good stock they could buy at half price or less in quantity, thinking it will hurt their regular trade while as a matter of fact it will bring them in many new buyers and give their regular patrons occasional bargains of which they will be glad to take advantage.

NEW ENGLAND GROWERS.

Alfred M. Campbell, who took advantage of his attendance at the Hartford, Conn. flower show, January 25-27, to visit some of the growers around Boston, Mass., declared that at W. D. Howard's, Milford, Mass., he saw carnations better grown than he had ever seen them before; they were simply wonderful in their luxuriance of growth together with quality and quantity of bloom. He had not believed such perfection possible. Among other places visited was Thos. Roland, Nahant, Mass., and Revere Beach where the extensive rose plant with its interesting three-quarter span houses was in the height of its midwinter bloom. The excellent condition of all the stock at both these places and also that of Wm. Sim, S. J. Goddard and others proved that the

S. S. PENNOCK RETURNS FROM INDIANAPOLIS.

S. S. Pennock who returned February 11, from Indianapolis, reports that the trade and all civic bodies as well as the state government have started at once to organize and work for the great flower show. The publicity in particular is to be in the hands of able men who in the six weeks to come will give it such newspaper notice as a similar show has never had before. The hall in which the show will be staged is splendidly fitted for such an exhibition and Mr. Pennock feels sure the attendance will come well up to the record made here, if it does not surpass it. Arrangements are being made with the railroads by which it is hoped to have half fare excursions from all parts of the state at the time of the show. The dates are March 25-April 1.

NOTES.

C. U. Liggit is of the opinion that growers will find it of great advantage to keep many of their varieties of carnations in for the second year as it had been the experience of growers, particularly in the middle west where this plan had been tried out, that the second year crop came in very early and flowered well the season through producing at least 50 per cent more stock than the year before. Mr. Liggit's business is continually expanding and he has found it necessary to move to a larger office in the same building, the Bulletin, No. 505.

Peter Economus, who several years ago ran a fruit and flower store on Delaware avenue below Market street, but later moved to Peoria, Ill., has returned to this city and leased the entire building at the southwest corner of Delaware avenue and Market street. There are several stores, one of which will be fitted up as a first-class flower shop, the others, candy and fruit. He will take possession April 1, next.

The rose, Pilgrim has had its reputation tossed about considerably the past year by gossips and others who have nothing at stake, but those with good sized stocks keep on cutting and adding appreciably to their bank roll every week.

Harry I. Faust, Merion, sailed from New York February 10, for Porto Rico where he will visit Robert Craig and spend six weeks in this delightful tropical climate fitting himself for a strenuous Easter trade on his return.

The Leo Niessen Co are handling large stocks of so called spring flowers in variety, tulips, daffodils, sweet peas, forget-me-not, etc. Exceptionally fine carnations are a feature as are roses in variety.

John Andre's new addition which will double the size of his greenhouse plant at Doylestown, Pa., is going up at the rate of a finished house every two weeks. Two are already completed and planted.

The Philadelphia Growers' Cut Flower Market is handling a choice lot of Primula obconica splendidly in flower. Choice cut roses in variety are also a feature.

Choice Premier and Columbia roses are the leaders in the Edward Reid stock, flanked by sweet peas and high grade carnations.

Jack Berger finds roses a bit scarce but displays fine stocks of carnations, sweet peas, daffodils and other spring bulb stock. K.

New York.

STOCK MOVES FAIRLY WELL.

With an increasing supply of stock during the past week, cleaning up was rather a slow process, yet there was a fair volume of business. This winter's weather has been more favorable to plants than to the human family. There has not been cold long or severe enough to seriously check the crops. Freezes and thaws have succeeded one another with regularity and there has not been a week of steady weather since January 1. There may be said to be a good supply of all the stocks that are in general demand. Some of the buyers complain of the quality of roses, but there is a sufficient quantity. In tulips and narcissi, ever increasing supplies are noted. As the call for dinner decorations has been light, the bulb stock accumulates. There is a fair demand for carnations, but some of the best stock moves slowly. Influenza and pneumonia have raised the death rate during the past week and there is consequently much funeral work, that being the most that the majority of the retail stores are doing. For such work there is an abundance of flowers, lily of the valley being exceptionally plentiful. The violet trade continues slow with much street selling. Although wholesale prices are lower than they were in January, it cannot be said that as yet anything in the line of good stock is being sacrificed.

February 13.—There is considerable activity in the market this morning and the outlook for St. Valentine's Day trade is good.

NOTES.

A number of retailers made bids for St. Valentine's Day trade. At the Chas. A. Dard's store, Madison avenue and 44th street, we noticed a particularly fine cupid decoration. In an artistically finished niche in the center of the stage, so to speak, the little rascal clings to a large heart. There are heart shaped boxes of fine flowers and numerous side decorations of forsythias plants and vases of cut flowers, noteworthy being a fine display of amaryllis.

A. F. Bunyard, Madison avenue and 48th street, has a fine St. Valentine's window and his store is particularly well stocked with the best the market affords.

At the store of H. E. Froment in the Eighteenth street market, in addition to a great stock of roses, exceptionally fine snapdragons have been noticed.

L. B. Coddington, the rose grower of Murray Hill, N. J., started February 6 for a six week's trip to Honolulu accompanied by his youngest son.

In describing a vase of the new rose, Celestial, seen at the M. C. Ford shop, in our notes of February 4, short stems should have read, stout stems.

Edward W. Fengar, well known in the trade, died in a hospital in this city, February 9. See obituary columns for further particulars.

Herman C. Steinhoff, a well known florist and nurseryman, died February 9. Full particulars can be found in the obituary column.

Peter F. McKenney, the retailer of Fifth avenue and 42nd street, who has been ill for several weeks, is believed to be improving.

Joseph S. Fenrich, in the Eighteenth street market is handling fine roses and gardenias. A. F. F.

JANUARY business failures 2,723, December 2,444.

CAPITOLA, CALIF.—Superintendent W. C. Roberts, of the Brown Bulb Ranch, is making an eastern trip.

MALAGA, N. J.—The seed warehouse and general store of Thos. Evans was totally destroyed by fire, February 3.

ATLANTA, GA.—A. L. Rogers, of Rogers Bros. Seed Co., Chicago, and wife, were callers here this week, enroute to Florida.

UNION SETS in the Chicago district are moving steadily at about $1.75 for colors and $2.00 for whites, prompt shipment in car lots.

VISITED CHICAGO: T. S. Pendergrass, representing Waldo Rohnert, Gilroy, Calif.; Mr. White, representing Edgar P. Hurff, Swedesboro, N. J.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—The J. Steckler Seed Co., reports business very backward on account of the continued wet weather, which has delayed planting.

L. W. WHEELER, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif., writing February 11, says there have been more big rains and some floods, the rains on the whole, doing more good than harm.

R. O. LINCOLN, Santa Cruz, Calif., reports that on account of the recent cold weather there will be an average loss of 50 per cent in freesia bulbs, white callas heavy loss, iris, gladioli and yellow callas uninjured.

TROY, N. Y.—H. W. Gordinier, president of the H. W. Gordinier & Sons Co., died recently. The business will be continued by J. G. Leversee, George Gordinier, and C. H. Gordinier, all of whom have been connected with the company for more than 20 years.

THE L. D. Waller Seed Co., Guadalupe, Calif., in its new contract list (for the seed trade only) describes a number of interesting novelties, including Spencer and Cupid sweet peas, eschscholtzias, double cosmos, American Legion Shirley poppy, Exquisite larkspur, etc.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—The will of the late Mrs. Jean Hyslop Henderson, widow of the late Peter Henderson, New York, was probated in court here, February 11. The document was recorded and drawn in London, Eng., September 15, 1921. The bulk of the estate is left to Mrs. Nellie Morton Reid Holmes, this city; Chauncey R. Daniels, New York. Among other beneficiaries a bequest of $5,000 was given to the American Bible Society. Mrs. Henderson inherited most of the estate from her late husband.

JAMES A. BROWN, of the Brown Bulb Ranch, Capitola, Calif., referring to the cold weather damage to freesias, writes February 9: "The freesias, without question, are damaged the worst in the history of the industry. No doubt, there will be as many freesias as ever before but we believe the growth has been stunted and there will be fewer large ones than ever before, also, it may be possible that those which have lost their tops through bad frosts, will turn out red or dark, which of course is not a desirable bulb for the eastern trade. Even the bulbs on the high ground were more or less damaged this season, while in the past, it has only been those on the lower ground that were hurt the most."

Charles H. Breck Retires.

Charles H. Breck has resigned as president and director of the Joseph Breck & Sons Corporation, of Boston, Mass. He has transferred his interest in the business to his son, Luther A. Breck, and his son-in-law, John Benbow, who, together with his brother, Joseph F. Breck, who is treasurer of the corporation, will continue the business as usual.

The house was founded in 1822 (the year Boston became a city) and has been continued without interruption ever since. With the advent of Luther A. Breck as president, and John Benbow as vice-president, the fourth generation of the Breck family succeed in the management of the business.

Charles H. Breck, a student of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, entered the store in 1868; became a partner with his grandfather, Joseph Breck, and his father, Charles H. B. Breck, in 1875, and succeeded the latter as president in 1900.

The house has seen some wonderful changes during its 100 years, in the kinds, quality and sources of supply of seeds, plants, and nursery stock, while invention and improvement of the implements and machines with which they are planted, cultivated and harvested have made possible the enormous crops now necessary for the world's requirements. The house itself has changed and grown with the years—from Joseph Breck's seed garden, in Lancaster, Massachusetts, where it really started, it has developed into a business occupying nearly two acres of floor space in Boston, with nurseries at Lexington, Mass., and Norfolk, Va., and employs over 300 people in the busy season.

More "Regulations" for Seedsmen.

Washington, D. C.—Congress has been asked to compel shippers of imported seeds to make known by means of a label on the container the nature and quantity of the contents thereof, the country and locality where the seeds were grown, the name and address of the shipper, or owner shipping or forwarding the same, and the name and address of the consignee.

A bill to amend the seed importation act containing the above regulations has been introduced in congress by Congressman Cantrill, of Kentucky, and has been referred to the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce. It provides: "that no person shall import or offer for entry into the United States any of the seeds enumerated in Section 1 of this act, although unadulterated and fit for seeding purposes unless the case, box, bag, package, crate, bale, bundle, or other container thereof shall be plainly and correctly marked to show the nature and quantity of the contents, the country and locality where the same were grown, the name and address of the shipper, owner, or person shipping or forwarding the same, and the name and address of the consignee."

"That no person shall ship or deliver for shipment from one state or territory or district of the United States into any other state or territory or district any of said seeds, although unadulterated and fit for seeding purposes, the case, box, bag, package, crate, bale, bundle, or other container whereof is not plainly marked so as to show the nature and quantity of the contents, the name and address of the consignee, and the country and locality where such seeds were grown: Provided, however, That nothing in the foregoing shall prevent such shipment or delivery for shipment of a mixture or blend of two or more foreign seeds or of foreign and domestic seeds if the description of such seeds on the case, box, bag, package, crate, bale, bundle, or other container is such as plainly to show that such seeds are such a mixture or blend and the relative proportions of foreign and domestic seeds and the country or countries where the foreign seeds were grown. The secretary of agriculture shall make such rules and regulations for the carrying out of this and the preceding section as he may deem necessary."

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

M. R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn., President; Paul C. Lindley, Pomona, N. C., Vice-President; Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

The forty-seventh annual convention will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 28-30, 1922.

DAVID S. LAKE, president of the Shenandoah Nurseries, Shenandoah, Ia., died February 2, age 77 years.

DAVID HILL, of the D. Hill Nursery Co., Dundee, Ill., who is spending the winter with Mrs. Hill at Claremont, Calif., is greatly improved in health.

Connecticut Nurserymen's Association.

The fifteenth annual meeting of the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association was held at the Hotel Taft, New Haven, February 9, with an excellent attendance. A number of instructive papers were read, which included: "Advertising Suggestions to Nurserymen," by Ralph Bertini, advertising manager of the A. C. Gilbert Co., New Haven; "Bugs That Bring Business," by Dr. W. E. Britton, state entomologist; "Chlorosis, Mosaic and Variegation," by Dr. G. C. Clinton, state botanist; and "State Forests and Recreation," by W. O. Filley, state forester.

All of the present officers were re-elected for 1922, as follows: Henry W. Gottschalk, Manchester, president; Wm. W. McCartney, New Haven, vice-president; W. W. Hunt, Hartford, treasurer; F. J. Rippin, Manchester, secretary; F. S. Baker, Chesire; C. R. Burr, Manchester; Paul Hubbard, Bristol, appointed to executive committee.

F. J. RIPPIN, Sec'y.

New York State Nurserymen's Ass'n.

ROCHESTER MEETING, FEBRUARY 9.

The fifteenth annual meeting of the New York State Nurserymen's Association was held at Rochester, February 9, with an excellent programme. J. P. Rice, chairman of the wholesale committee of the association, at the opening session, reported that his committee did not anticipate any reduction in prices, due to a shortage of stock. After the report of Secretary-Treasurer C. J. Maloy, Rochester, had been read, Prof. L. B. Scott, of the United States Department of Agriculture, presented an address on "The Progress of Our Nursery Stock Investigations," stating that congress had appropriated $20,000 for investigations for 1921, and a similar amount would be available at the beginning of the fiscal year, July 1, next. Prof. Scott said that his department was devoting most of its time to a comparison of growth of seedling apple stocks, propagation of apple and other stocks by root cuttings and the inauguration of a complete rose stock exchange. The concluding paper at the morning session, by Fred Wallace, Canandaigua, dealt with "The Rose Market of the Future."

At the afternoon session, H. C. Goodwin, Rochester, told "What the Nurserymen Should Advertise," and "The Needs of the Nursery Business As I See It," was the subject of J. H. Campbell's address. The banquet at 6 p. m., at the Powers hotel, was an enjoyable affair, Chas. G. Schoener acting as toastmaster. After an enjoyable evening the convention adjourned.

The officers for 1922 were elected as follows: John P. Rice, Geneva, president; F. T. Burke, Rochester, vice-president; J. M. Pitkin, Newark, secretary-treasurer; Chas. Perkins, Wm. Mastin, Newark; H. W. Clark, Waterloo; Horace Hooker, Rochester; W. J. Maloney, Dansville, executive committee. C. J. MALOY, Sec'y-treas.

Ohio State Nurserymen's Association.

ANNUAL MEETING, FEBRUARY 2.

The fifteenth annual meeting of the Ohio Nurserymen's Association was held at the Southern hotel, Columbus, February 2, President Charles Ernst in the chair. Forty nurserymen of the state were present with guests from a number of other sections. In opening the meeting the president stated that this was the largest and most representative group gathered together in the history of the association.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was the principal speaker at the morning session. He gave a most excellent talk on the subject, "The Introduction of New Varieties," stating that the introduction of new varieties, from time to time, was absolutely necessary for the healthy advancement of the trade. Tribute was paid to the efforts of the late Victor Lemoine and his son, Emile, who is perpetuating the work of his father. He noted the new introductions of lilacs, deutzias and Philadelphus, stating that while P. Virginal is one of the better known kinds of this group, that several less widely known sorts are even superior. In the line of peonies and tritomas, Lemoine and Sessert, another French introducer, have made wonderful contributions to the trade. Mr. Hill gave a resume of the scientific methods employed in the creation of new varieties. In this country Captain Thomas is striving to perfect new varieties of roses that will thrive outdoors and overcome the difficulties that are encountered with the present ever-blooming sorts. The speaker declared that very little incentive was given to the experimenter attempting to create new varieties, largely due to the fact that nurserymen as a rule were very slow to appreciate such efforts.

Three new roses of Mr. Hill's origination were exhibited, namely, America, Angelus and Amelia Gude. It was declared by all who saw them that these were wonderful acquisitions to the cut flower trade.

H. G. Day on the subject of "How the Wholesaler Can Help the Retailer" outlined and discussed the several points as follows: First—prompt replies to correspondence, particularly during the packing season; second—lighter and better packing methods, to overcome the high express charges; third—prompt shipments; fourth—orders placed from time to time, previous to the shipping season, should be combined instead of being sent along in small lots; fifth—stopping the practice of shipping an order "short," then shipping these items later, accompanied with exorbitant packing and express charges; sixth—do not over-plant.

E. C. Cotton explained in detail the history and work of the corn borer and its effect upon the nursery interests. He explained fully the information which his department has had concerning this destructive pest and a record of their investigations to date. The method of control advised was the planting of corn as late in the season as it could be expected to properly mature. The use of corn stalks and sudan grass in infested areas as packing material will have to be discontinued, he said.

Professors Elwood and Fuere of the Ohio State university gave interesting accounts of the deplorable conditions existing in certain parts of France and the need of fruit trees in those districts. Prof. A. C. Hottes introduced the subject of the planting of trees and shrubs on the state university campus by the association. It was decided that a plan be started to provide an arboretum there for the benefit of the university, the nurserymen and public at large.

John Dayton in his subject, "Does Advertising the Scarcity of Stock Increase or Curtail Sales?" emphasized very strongly that the customer should be taken into the confidence of the nurserymen, that it does not pay to advertise unless he has the stock to back up such publicity.

THE D. HILL NURSERY CO., Inc., Box 404, DUNDEE, ILL.
Mention the American Florist when writing.

W. F. Pohlender stated that competition in the nursery business was not so keen or serious as many of us supposed. There are over 100 million people in the United States and 90 million of them are prospects, he said. A. R. Pickett brought clearly to the minds of those present the need of better informed salesmen. The proposed arboretum at the university, he thought, would be a great help in securing them. On the subject of credits Prof. Elwood stated that the American Society of Landscape Architects approved of a 30-day basis in allowing credit.

General recommendations for the best varieties of commercial and home orchards could not be made, declared T. B. West, because the location and market conditions had such a great effect upon what varieties had best be planted. He said that the tendency to plant only the early bearing varieties was not always good policy as it was often done at a sacrifice of many other good qualities. W. B. Cole, on the subject of "What Will be Used For Packing Materials in the Future," stated that it was apparent that corn stalks and sudan grass, at least, would have to be eliminated from the available materials.

Mr. Day reported that a member of the state inspection force was growing nursery stock. It was thought that this was an unfair practice and that nurserymen should go on record as disapproving of such practices. The inspectors should receive such remuneration for their services that it would not be necessary to engage in other business pursuits.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Edward George, Painesville, president; Howard Scarff, New Carlisle, vice-president; A. R. Pickett, Clyde, treasurer; Clarence O. Siebenthaler, Dayton; secretary; T. B. West, Perry; H. J. Champmon, Perry; H. S. Day, Fremont; W. B. Cole, Painesville; Edward Jenkins, Wilmona; executive committee; John H. Dayton, Painesville, to represent the state at the national convention of American Association of Nurserymen as vice-president.

The recommendation that the summer meeting be held at Dayton was received with approval. A vote of thanks was tendered the speakers and E. G. Hill was made honorary member of the association, and the meeting adjourned.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 14.—Cucumbers, per crate, $7 to $8; head lettuce, per crate, $3 to $5.50; carrots, $5 to $6 per barrel; cabbage, $3 per 100-pound sack.

New York, February 10.—Cucumbers, $2.50 to $2.75 per dozen; mushrooms, per three-pound basket, $.85 to $1.40; radishes, 100 bunches, $5 to $8; tomatoes, per pound, 20 to 55 cents; lettuce, one dozen bunches, $1 to $1.75; beet tops, per basket, $2.

Tomato Pollination.

The success of the indoor tomato crop depends to a large degree upon careful hand pollination, especially during the early part of the season. Some growers argue that it takes too much time. However, one can soon form his own conclusions by a little figuring. When each tomato represents five cents and a laborer can set more than 1,000 each trip, the importance of the operation is apparent. There are several methods used by producers in pollination.

We have a local grower who persists in claiming that the only proper way is the spoon method, which means the use of long wooden spoons by which the pollen is caught and directly transferred to the pistils. In operation the spoon is held near the blossom, and with a stick, is tapped or jarred to shed its pollen on the spoon, and is then raised against the pistils of many blooms. Sometimes one bloom will yield enough pollen to set a dozen others. This grower has a reputation for his crop and his method must be all right under care.

However, we have been, in our long experience, often caught with a shortage of labor at this critical time, which necessitated a quicker method. We found that temperature and time of day are important factors, and also moisture. Thus we avoid watering in the morning. We keep ventilators rather close to run up temperature early and smartly, and make several trials. By snapping a few blooms with the fingers we soon find the period when pollen flies, and then it means rapid work with the finger or a stick. A deft jar of the bloom, downward, will do the trick. This motion at once expels the pollen and vibrates the bloom, in which operation those that have no pollen catch some from the others. By this method we have had as good tomatoes as any one. This work depends upon faithful adherence to detail. Later in the season, when the summer heat has set in for good, simply jar the vine, which is sufficient.

Lack of sufficient pollen causes irregular fruit, and entire absence of pollen means no crop at all. Thus many growers miss the early market, as by the natural course of events no fruit forms until the settled weather begins. There is much variation among different types, some being much more easily pollinated than others. The above directions apply with especial force to Bonny Best.

STOCK IS MORE PLENTIFUL.

Flowers, which have been somewhat scarce the last few weeks, are coming in more plentifully now including spring flowers, such as jonquils, freesias, calendula, hyacinths, narcissi in cut flowers, and in plants, cyclamens, primulas, lily of the valley, narcissi, both in white and yellow. Roses are still somewhat shy, but are coming in better and promising more in the near future. The crimson carnation is plentiful and as a valentine flower is a prime favorite. Violets are scarce and dealers who once grew them by the thousands are now having them shipped in from New York. They arrive in the best of condition, still retaining their delicate perfume. They have good sales for them. Trade has been good, a miscellaneous call including corsages, funeral work and cut flowers, complimentary boxes for infirmaries and hospitals. Prices are about as usual, roses still retailing at $4 to $8 per dozen.

NOTES.

Harold Joy and wife have returned from an extensive and prolonged trip to northern and eastern cities, taking in all the conventions and society meetings while away.

The Joy Floral Co. is receiving a good variety of stock and have been able abundantly to supply their branch houses at Chattanooga, Tenn., and Atlanta, Ga.

Geny Bros. are bringing in a lot of nice Easter lilies and a fine display of plants of every variety. They enjoy a good trade.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Early Annuals.
During the warm days of June the carnations deteriorate very rapidly and there is often a great need for some flower to take their place, and an early bench of asters is a great boon at such a time, especially for those who have a good call for funeral work. Seed planted during February and grown in pots or flats until after Easter can be then transplanted to the benches in which the Easter crops are grown and they will be in bloom at the time when most desired. A good strain of early flowering varieties, either Comet or Victoria, should be selected and with good care a paying crop is assured. A sowing of candytuft by March 1 will also produce plants that can be benched after Easter in the same manner and a good cut for Memorial Day be had. The strains of White Giant candytuft now offered make splendid spikes for the filling in of sprays at that great flower day. There are many annuals that can be grown for early spring blooming that are greatly appreciated by the trade, among which might be mentioned calendulas, nasturtiums, scabiosa, sweet sultans and bachelor's buttons.

Dahlias.
The forcing of early dahlias has been practiced successfully by growers the last few years, and roots started at this time will produce flowers for Memorial Day and during June. A good, deep bench, in a house not too warm, should be selected, and while the plants are great feeders in the open ground, it is better not to have the soil too rich in the houses, for the plants grow very tall inside, and with a rich soil make a strong, rampant growth, which will not bloom as early. They can be fed when the buds begin to form by giving them a mulch of half-decayed manure, which will materially assist the flowering and will also provide a covering that will prevent evaporation. They will require but little attention except that long, strong stakes will be necessary to keep the plants growing erect, to which they should be firmly tied, and then disbudded to produce the better blooms. Any varieties of which it is desired to increase the stock can be planted in the house and the young growths made into cuttings, which root easily at this time.

Cannas.
One of the most decorative beds for summer, especially if it is of large size, is a bed of blooming cannas, for they are very showy and will bloom throughout the summer until frost cuts them down, and the varieties have been greatly improved during the last decade. To make the best showing the plants should be started early enough to have good, strong stock at bedding-out time in May and June. The plants should be started by March 1 and now is the time to procure stock of varieties of which the grower is short or which he has not on hand. The clumps when removed from the winter storage should have all the old soil shaken off, the dried-up stalk and roots cut away. They are then cut up into small pieces and if the stock is plentiful two or three eyes can be left to each piece, but where stock is short they are cut up to single eyes, although with single eyes many weak plants will be produced. Often the clumps have started into growth and where this has happened the eyes should be sorted, those already started being planted together and the dormant eyes by themselves. Have boxes all ready and place an inch of soil on the bottom and then place the divisions on this closely together and cover with light, sifted soil and then water thoroughly. Keep the varieties separate and properly labeled each box to contain but one kind and the name plainly marked on the box, for labels are often lost or misplaced. Place the boxes in a warm location—where hot water heating is used they can be placed on the return pipes. In two or three weeks the plants will have made sufficient roots to be placed in 3½ or 4-inch pots, when they can be grown on in a house with a temperature of 50° to 60°. In planting cannas outside it should always be remembered that they are very tender and should not be set out until all danger of late frost is past.

Stocks.

The demand for flowers at Memorial Day is in many cases for bunches or sprays to lay upon the graves of the departed relatives and friends, and as much show as can be made is often the object, therefore the grower must have a quantity of what are called the cheaper flowers, and stocks are one of the best at this time, for they are large and prominent, make up well in bouquets or sprays, and are quickly and easily grown. The seed should be sown early in February to be sure to have them in flower by the end of May. The seed germinates quickly and as soon as large enough should be potted. Many grow them in flats, but to have them early pot culture is better, for they do not receive such a severe shock when transplanted in the benches. The planting in the benches should be done in the month of March and the plants can be grown in two ways, to the single spike which will produce a much larger, handsome bloom, or eight to 10 lateral spikes. The former method allows of planting from three to four inches apart, while in the latter the plants should be set eight to nine inches each way. Growing the latter way, that is, to eight or 10 spikes, is the culture most often practiced, and in order to cause the plant to branch as soon as the terminal flower forms it is rubbed out, and the laterals will grow at once. To have these laterals in bloom for Memorial Day the terminal bud should show by the last of April, which will allow about four weeks for the growth of the laterals and the finishing of the bloom. Constant fumigation will be necessary to keep the plants clean of aphids, which very rapidly accumulate on the succulent growth unless kept in check.

Iris Tingitana.

When this beautiful iris was first introduced and forced for cut flowers, it produced a great sensation, the flowers selling in the market as high as $1 each. It was eagerly sought by all growers of novelties and bid fair to become a standard flower, when along came the quarantine forbidding its importation and it had to be dropped from the list.

It was then taken up by growers in California who had made such a success of freesias and who believed they could do this and other varieties of iris successfully. The experiment proved a success as from the start the plants made a fine growth, forming bulbs of good size and solidity. Then a serious mistake was made in trying to market the stock too soon, which was partly due to the eagerness of the eastern greenhouse men to take chances on the new stock before the bulbs were fully matured or properly cured for shipment.

California grown freesia passed through the same series of unsatisfactory results when it was first introduced, but as soon as the bulbs were allowed to fully mature and become properly ripened, they proved to be better than the French grown stock and entirely replaced them in the market. In passing it may be news to many to know that the field crops of freesias were very badly frozen during the recent cold spell in California when the thermometer registered as low as 12 degrees of frost; also that callas were cut to the ground, which is likely to affect the supply of these stocks for the coming season.

BULBS SHOULD FLOWER IN FIELD.

Several of the principal California growers of iris have recently visited the Holland and French centers, where a specialty of this plant is made, to learn all they possibly could about the proper time for lifting, ripening and curing the bulbs and all other data that would enable them to produce 100 per cent flowering stock. It was found that no bulb that had not flowered in the field was strong enough or capable of producing or could be forced into flower in the greenhouse. The fault is not always with the bulbs, as growers for the market are so anxious to get the early prices that they force the stock too rapidly which is something the iris will not stand. It must be grown cold and brought on gradually for the best results.

Iris Tingitana
Flowers Six Inches in Diameter.

Experiences of growers who have this season handled the California grown bulbs differ materially. One who forced 5,000 bulbs did not get 25 flowers; another who had planted only 1,000 had cut over 200 flowers up to February 15 with a good many more showing, but the quality was not nearly as good as that of the imported stock which he formerly had handled in considerable quantities. The experience of another grower who had 1,000 bulbs was that he planted 500 as soon as they came in and the others about six weeks later. The first lot produced him no bloom at all while the second forcing was giving him quite a satisfactory lot of flowers, which would seem to show that the bulbs required a longer period of rest.

Reports from California are that the growers have learned considerable in the past two years, particularly as to the ripening of the bulbs, which are to remain longer in the ground before lifting and that the stock which is gaining in size each year will be so graded that only plump solid bulbs, each sure to contain a flower will be sent out.

Are Plant Exports in Danger?

The federal horticultural board, through the enforcement of Quarantine No. 37, forbidding the importation of large classes of plants and plant products from nearly all foreign countries is seriously endangering our exports of fruits and cereals, according to John Kingdon Smith. Although the board attempts to justify its action by pointing out that most European countries at one time or another had or still have laws on their statute books prohibiting the importation of living plants from the United States, it is well to explain that such laws were enacted during the time that a very dangerous, virulent vineyard disease, phylloxera was prevalent. After the epidemic, which originated in California, the quarantine laws in Europe were allowed to become non-operative. The difference between the board's Quarantine No. 37 and European action in such matters is clearly pointed out by Mr. Smith, who shows our quarantine laws are directed at latent insect pests and diseases while Europe sought only to prevent the spread of a specific epidemic. He considers as ridiculous the board's contention that America is more susceptible to foreign infestations than Europe is to our native plant pests.

It is a matter of common knowledge in European and American horticultural circles that Quarantine No. 37 is responsible for the almost complete extinction of the Belgian plant industry and for the serious crippling of Dutch, French and English plant exports to the United States. Much bitterness is being kept alive in the affected trade centers abroad, not only by what has been done by the board but also by our threatening attitude to what little foreign plant products is still permitted to be imported here. Retaliation is being spoken of in more than one country today and England recently instituted a mild form of protective action to begin with.

In conclusion, Mr. Smith believes the sooner we announce the return to pre-war conditions to cover plant imports the quicker we will remove the precedent, which may at any time be used against us. Without exports we do not need one-half of the crops grown in this country at present, but by encouraging our foreign customers to send us their products, under our pre-war protection laws, we may continue to sell them our surplus.

SUCCESS.

A short time ago in listening to an address we were somewhat affected by the remark of the speaker, who said: "Success is not made by laying awake at night, but by keeping awake in the day-time." Then and there we were reminded how much this statement pertained to the business we all love so well, and yet do so little toward elevating our standards as do other lines.

We can give much credit, however, to the progress made during the last few years in our industry, compared with former years, and what it amounts to we will leave to your own imagination. Such being the case, is it not worth while encouraging others so that more success and more progress will come in like proportion? Does this success not deserve keeping awake in the day-time? And if so, surely the evidence will be forthcoming. What the need is we will leave to the conscientious thinkers who ultimately reap the benefits.

FIFTH NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Practically all the trade exhibitors who had reserved space in the National Flower Show to have been held in Cleveland, O., have arranged to sign contracts for similar space areas in the show now to be held in Indianapolis, March 25-April 1, and many have increased their reservations.

A. L. Randall Co. of Chicago, have arranged for an exhibit to be made on an unusually large scale. They will make a wonderful display, planning to exhibit a complete flower shop, with all up-to-date fittings and accessories, such as refrigerators, display racks and cabinets, in fact, everything to be found in a fully complete establishment.

The auxiliary building at Indianapolis, in which will be staged exhibits of purely a trade nature, affords excellent facilities for fine displays, and those in charge of them will not be hampered by visitors from the ranks of the public, only those connected with the trade being admitted to the building. All of the supply houses will be represented in this building, and florist visitors will find the latest novelties in ribbons, baskets, pottery, and the hundred and one things necessary in floral work, and other supplies and auxiliaries interesting only to the trade, both growers and retailers. It will pay anyone catering to the florist trade to make an exhibit in this section, as indications are that there will be a record-breaking attendance of florists from all sections of this country and Canada.

The secretary is now in Indianapolis, with headquarters at the Flower Show Executive offices, Chamber of Commerce building, where he will be pleased to make space reservations, and furnish any information required in regard to the show. Floor plans of both the Manufacturers' building, where the competitive exhibits and such other exhibits as are of interest to the general public will be staged, and the Convention Hall building, where the distinctly trade exhibits will be located, are about ready for issue; but prospective exhibitors need not wait to receive them as all space locations are choice and mutual interests will be well served by immediate communication with the secretary at the Indianapolis address given.

The final schedule of premiums is now in press, and its distribution will be hurried as much as possible. There is little or no change in the classes forming the plant section, as set out in the preliminary schedule; and the added classes covering the cut flower section have had generous premiums set over to them.

The National Flower Show committee finds plenty of assurance that there will be no dearth of entries in the competitive section, in fact, the prospects for a full show appear to be just as good in Indianapolis as they ever were in Cleveland. The Indianapolis florists are working like the proverbial beavers for the success of the show, and they have the backing of all the commercial and municipal bodies of the city all anxious for the same success. Indeed, it may be said that public interest in the show is state-wide from the governor down. It is a matter of pride to the whole community to have such a splendid exposition staged in their midst, and this feeling adds not a little to the prospects for a complete financial success of our undertaking.

Fifth National Flower Show.

PRESIDENT PENNOCK'S MESSAGE.

In a letter dated February 17, received from Irwin Bertermann, executive chairman of the local National Flower Show interests in Indianapolis, he is very enthusiastic indeed about the forthcoming National Flower Show, and says that—"The whole city and state have swung to our assistance. I have as yet to find one person who will not commit himself to this end. The National Flower Show is already a success, as stated above, provided the florists themselves are loyal to their own institutions and to their own welfare."

This is certainly fine, and presages a successful show; and quoting still further from Mr. Bertermann's letter—"The success of the Indianapolis show is practically assured, so far as attendance is concerned." This has bothered us in other shows, wondering whether the attendance would be big enough to make the show a financial success. With this an assured fact, the thing now is for each and every florist in every part of the United States and Canada to hold their end up as to exhibits, whether they be large or small, from every grower who has the business and the National Flower Show at heart. We are sure to have one of the most wonderful and successful shows ever staged in this country, so I am appealing to every member of the trade to exhibit, and as I said above, even if it is small, we want the small exhibitor as well as the large.

Our business is in very much better shape than many other lines of trade, and with the continual advertising which we are getting, the National Flower Show is one part of this publicity. Bigger and better business is our slogan, and by these individual efforts we will be helping an enterprise of this kind along and boosting our own business at the same time.

EXECUTIVE CHAIRMAN BERTERMANN.

It is a pleasure to be able to state to the florists of the country that the Fifth National Flower Show will be held in two modern buildings in the finest residential portion of Indianapolis; that the whole city of Indianapolis, Chamber of Commerce, clubs and organizations are lending their assistance, and that the population of the numerous prosperous cities of Indiana and surrounding states will lend their aid with a huge attendance.

It is therefore fitting and appropriate that the florists of the country extend even greater efforts than they had in mind for Cleveland to stage the most wonderful show ever arranged for, so that our national exhibition will be the tremendous success it is intended to be.

It is also a pleasure to state that the committees of Indiana boys are a splendid lot and in full accord and with but one purpose, a successful outcome.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

When the Fifth National Flower Show opens in Indianapolis, March 25, it will be a larger and more beautiful exhibit than had been planned originally for Cleveland, in the opinion of Irwin Bertermann, of Indianapolis, who is vice-chairman of the National Flower Show committee and local executive chairman of flower show interests in this city.

"We have yet to meet with our first refusal from anyone whom we have asked to serve on committees, or to assist in making arrangements for the show," said Mr. Bertermann, in discussing the progress being made by the various sub-committees which have been appointed to perfect the arrangements for the Indianapolis show. With many exhibitors seeking a greater amount of floor space than they had originally planned to use at the Cleveland show, and with a greater combined floor space in the two buildings which will be used for display, than would have been available in Cleveland, the prospect is that the show will assume even greater proportions.

Sixteen sub-committee heads have been named by Mr. Bertermann, and these chairman have, in turn, selected the full personnel of their committees. John Young, secretary of the Society of American Florists, will arrive in Indianapolis, Thursday, February 23, from New York, and from then on until the time for the exhibition to open will devote his time to the perfection of details for the flower show. Word has been received from Herman P. Knoble, of Cleveland, a member of the National Flower Show committee, that he will arrive in Indianapolis on the same day with a list of Cleveland exhibitors. E. H. Mann, of Richmond, Ind., chairman of the out-of-town exhibits committee, is making a tour of the upper Ohio region, and the territory around Pittsburgh, Pa., for the purpose of lining up all of the large florists in those regions.

With the addition of a number of exhibitors from Indiana who had not planned to enter the Cleveland show, the list of exhibitors is being constantly augmented. W. J. Keimel, president of the Chicago Florists' Club, has promised the largest delegation of florists that have ever left Chicago, for the Indianapolis show. The A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago, has arranged to install some large electric fountains for the exhibition. One of the features of the show will be a model flower shop. Arrangements have also been made for the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, with headquarters at Detroit, to have a full exhibit.

The transportation committee has announced that steam roads will permit one and one-half single fares for the round trip for florists coming to the show from any point in the United States and Canada. Indiana interurban lines will sell round trip tickets to Indianapolis during exhibition week on the basis of one and one-half times the single fare. It seems probable that a similar reduction will be granted by steam lines.

In considering means for making the show a success from a practical standpoint, the National Flower Show committee determined to select the men available for the direction of the exhibition and for the management of publicity. In line with this Claude Wallin was selected as director, and Fred Millis was chosen to handle publicity. Both are well known Indianapolis men and recognized experts in their line. Mr. Wallin served as director and Mr. Millis as publicity manager for the Indianapolis Industrial Exposition, held in October, 1921. The exposition lasted five days, during which 150,000 people from all parts of the state poured into the exposition building, far exceeding the most sanguine expectations of the promoters.

The fact that the floral and trade exhibits will be separated at the National Flower Show has many distinct advantages which were never possible before. The floral displays are to be set up in the Manufacturers' building at the Indiana state fair grounds, while trade exhibits will be placed in the Woman's Art building, which adjoins the Manufacturers' building. A canvas aisle will connect the two buildings. Both the Manufacturers' building and the Woman's Art building are of recent construction and will be admirably adapted to the exhibitions. In the Manufacturers' building 60,000 square feet of space will be available for exhibits.

Indianapolis being practically at the center of population of the United States gives it an unequaled central location. Sixty million people live within 24-hour railroad service, and 1,500,000 within a radius of 60 miles. Seventeen railroad lines and 13 interurban lines center at the exhibition city. A transportation committee consisting of railroad officials as well as florists is working out plans for the speedy and efficient handling of exhibits, and is preparing information for the use of exhibitors regarding the best ways and time of shipment.

The date set for the opening of the show coincides with the opening of the spring vacation of Indiana schools. Teachers from every part of the state will be in Indianapolis for the teachers' institute, which will be in session for several days. With reduced rates on interurban lines already announced and equal reductions likely to be effective on steam roads, thousands of school children will come with their parents for the flower show, which will prove a drawing card of far more than usual interest.

Indianapolis, apart from the flower show, has many attractions to offer the visitor. On the outskirts of the city is the motor speedway famous for the 500-mile International Sweepstakes Race which is run annually. Fort Benjamin Harrison, one of the largest army posts in the United States, adjoins the city. It now serves as headquarters for the Fifth Army Corps. In the center of the city stands the soldiers' and sailors' monument, which as an example of colossal sculpture is unsurpassed. This civil war monument is second in height only to the Washington monument.

The newly finished city library, erected on land given by James Whitcomb Riley, is one of the finest buildings of its kind. The John Herron Art institute ranks high among such institutions. Seven hundred and eighty-six different products are manufactured in the city. Six theaters and 55 motion picture houses offer varied amusement. There are 51 hotels, which offer splendid accommodations to the visitor.

SOME LOCAL LEADERS IN INDIANAPOLIS NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW MANAGEMENT.

New York Spring Show.

GRAND CENTRAL PALACE, MARCH 13-19.

At this time a little less than three weeks from the opening date, arrangements for the New York Spring Show are practically completed. The members of the flower show committee, resting from their labors covering several months, are congratulating themselves upon having projected a show which shall not only equal the finest exhibition hitherto staged in the Grand Central palace, but in many respects will eclipse the record.

Manager Arthur Herrington's plans show a material change in the layout of the exhibition, a change which will increase the picturesque effect considerably. There are to be five big groups, or gardens, four of them in locations similar to those set apart for the grand displays at the last show.

The exhibitors will be F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.; Bobbink & Atkins, and Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J. The fifth large exhibit is to be staged by Wadley & Smythe, New York, and will be centrally located, the layout including a formal garden with walks lined with orange trees. Last year there were only four large groups.

In the final schedule of premiums sent out a week or two ago it was erroneously due to a misunderstanding, mentioned that in addition to the special gold medals to be awarded in the big group class, the Garden Club of America offered a gold medal for the most artistic and practical exhibit in the class. The garden club does offer a gold medal, but it is to be awarded for the most artistic and practical exhibit in the show. Exhibitors will please take note of this correction. It is expected that all other large exhibit classes will be well filled. In fact from a survey of entries assured, there will not be a foot of space available for such exhibits unfilled.

There will be two stagings of cut roses during the week of the exhibition, one on Tuesday, March 14, the other on Friday March 17. This is to insure that the public always greatly interested in roses shall have flowers in good condition to view throughout the show. The big displays of cut roses to cover each 300 square feet of space will be staged on Wednesday, March 15.

Carnations, in all the classes set apart for them, will be staged on Thursday, March 16. Sweet pea day will be March 17. All plants, both flowering and foliage, including roses and orchid plants, will be staged on the first day, March 13.

Table decoration classes will have their stagings on five days this year, leaving out Tuesday and Sunday, but there are no competitive classes for commercial exhibitors.

A. Frylink & Sons, Sassenheim, Holland, who offer prizes in Class 168 of the final schedule, have amended the class description to read as follows: Collection of tulips and narcissi, 12 flowers in a vase; 12 varieties single early tulips; 12 varieties Darwin tulips; 10 varieties Breeder tulips; narcissi, 12 varieties Trumpet daffodils; 12 varieties cup or crown narcissi (varieties Incomparabilis, Barri, Leeds and Poeticus). First prize, $75; second prize, $50; third prize, $25.

An important feature of the show will be the section in which are the exhibits staged by the Garden Club of America. The club's classes are open only to its own members and members of its affiliating bodies but considerable competition is expected, and entries have already been received from distant points, including one from a club in Lake Forest, Ill. There are four classes to be filled, one covering a Japanese arrangement, another a miniature garden, a third a dinner table decoration, and the fourth a simple cottage or bungalow luncheon table decoration.

There will be a tea garden, as usual, conducted under the patronage of the Garden Club of America, for the benefit of the Girl Scouts, and the Virginia Day Nursery. In connection with the tea garden and in an adjoining room, will be held a fashion show, under the direction of Lucille, Ltd., opening at 3:30 and 4:30 o'clock every afternoon. Dancing will be a feature in the Fashion Show room every afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock.

TRADE EXHIBITS.

The space set apart for trade exhibits has been well taken up, in fact, very little at this time being unreserved. Prospective exhibitors desirous of making reservations should make applications for space immediately, as every available foot will be apportioned well ahead of the opening day.

The official programme is now in course of preparation, and it will prove to be of the usual high order of excellence. The secretary will be pleased to hear from horticultural supply houses who wish to be represented in the advertising pages of the book, a publication which is preserved by all who receive it as a work of horticultural reference.

TRADE TICKETS.

Trade tickets are now ready for distribution. They are supplied at the following rates: In quantities of 50 to 100, at 50 cents each, and in quantities of 100 or more, 40 cents each. These prices include the war tax and the price of the general admission, $1, is printed on them. Purchasers of blocks of 100 or more will be entitled to a refund of the price paid for all unused tickets, a cheque for same being mailed after the show, as soon as ticket accounts can be determined.

Trade tickets are supplied upon application at the offices of the International Exposition Co., Canadian Pacific building, 342 Madison avenue, New York, and cannot be purchased elsewhere. Cheques must accompany all orders.

Commercial Flower Growers' of Chicago.

The monthly meeting of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago was held at the Randolph hotel. President Pearson in the chair, February 16. Before proceeding with the business of the evening, a fine dinner and entertainment, as provided by Paul E. Weiss, chairman of the committee, was enjoyed by the members. The application of Chas. McCauley, Geneva, Ill., was received and favorably acted upon by the membership committee and the applicant duly elected to membership.

President Pearson announced that the main topic of the evening was the advertising question, and after some preliminary remarks, introduced J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, who favored us with a splendid talk, giving the experiences and the results obtained of the various trade centers in conducting advertising campaigns. Mr. Ammann's remarks were interesting and instructive and a rising vote of thanks was extended him upon conclusion.

Among the communications received was one from the West Town Exposition, Inc., wherein they ask for our support in conducting a flower show in connection with the regular exposition. A motion prevailed that the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago co-operate with that organization in staging a flower show at the Second Infantry armory, the week beginning March 27. President Pearson appointed Paul E. Weiss chairman of the committee to take this matter in hand, he to choose his assistants.

A further communication was received from J. F. Ammann, secretary of the National Flower Growers' Association, calling attention to Section 1 of Article 4 of the by-laws and requesting that a director be elected to represent our association on the board of the National Flower Growers' Association. Peter Pearson was elected to this office. George Harrer moved to provide an alternate, which motion carried and Otto H. Amling was elected to serve.

Many of the members took part in the discussion of publicity. The various speakers pointed out the necessity of pushing the sale of our product and all were agreed that the present funds were not adequate to advertise our product as it should be. W. J. Keimel moved that a rising vote be taken on the question of increasing the percentage of advertising assessment from one-half of one per cent to one per cent of the amount of the gross sales of each grower and that the retailers who are now supplying only a small part of the funds collected, be dropped from participation in the growers' advertising movement. Every grower present rose in support of this motion, which was declared carried.

It was decided to instruct the executive board of our association to draft amendments to the constitution and by-laws of our organization and that of the Allied Florists' Association to fit the change, also to meet with the board of directors of the Allied Florists' Association and to report the progress made at the next meeting of our association. It was decided to give the officers of the executive board a vote of confidence to proceed in our behalf.

Mr. Keimel, Mr. Ammann and others spoke on the advisability of employing a field secretary, who could give his undivided time to the ever increasing work of our association, and it was decided that the executive board be instructed to look around for a capable man for this work and report progress at the next meeting.

Jos. Kohout spoke for the Fifth National Flower Show, to be held at Indianapolis, March 25-April 1, and urged all growers to stage exhibits. After the president had given his report of the proceedings of the Hartford, Conn., convention of the National Flower Growers' Association, January 26, the meeting adjourned.

New York Federation of Hort. Societies.

ITHACA MEETING, FEBRUARY 16.

The members of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs met for luncheon at Forest Home, adjacent to Cornell university, Ithaca, February 16. Following the luncheon, a short business meeting was held, President F. R. Pierson in the chair, being one of the best and most enthusiastic the organization has ever held.

President F. R. Pierson of Tarrytown, N. Y., of the organization made a short address in which he praised the college, and recommended a closer affiliation between the trade and the institution, which would more strongly cement the friendship already existing between the floriculture department and the commercial men. He said that many florists formerly sneered at the college-trained man, but that the up-to-date instruction now being given, with its emphasis on practical application, was rapidly dispelling this view.

Secretary Arno H. Nehrling of the university read the minutes of the previous meeting and Treasurer W. A. Adams, Buffalo, reported that the organization was in a healthy financial condition. Dr. Earl A. Bates, of Ithaca, reported for the committee on horticultural building at the State Fair grounds, and President Pierson told of the progress of a resolution requesting revision of federal Quarantine No. 37. The question of holding a florists' gathering at Cornell university during the annual field days in June was also discussed and received favorable comment.

Prof. Edward A. White, head of the department of floriculture, was the first speaker. He welcomed the members of the federation to Cornell university and presented a brief account of the work of his department during the past year. He stated that the floricultural work of the institution was being built up very rapidly, and that the students now studying floriculture were of a very satisfactory type. He added that the department had gained very much in a practical way by the acquisition of Prof. Arno H. Nehrling, who joined the staff April, 1921, and who is in close touch with the field of commercial floriculture. The members of the federation expressed enthusiasm over the work of the college.

Charles Henry Fox of Philadelphia and Edwin Jenkins, of Lenox, Mass., were guests at the luncheon and both made short addresses. Mr. Fox gave his enthusiastic support to college training for florists, and put in a good word for the florists. Mr. Jenkins contrasted present conditions at the university with those of 10 years ago and commended Prof. White upon the great improvement which has taken place. He declared that not only should commercial florists come to Cornell, but that gardeners and owners of private estates ought to avail themselves of the instruction given here. He advocated regular visits to the institution at annual Farmers' Week.

Alexander Lurie, a graduate of Cornell, who has been in commercial work for some years, spoke in behalf of the college man. There were also a few words from W. F. Bultman, of Syracuse, N. Y. The meeting adjourned.

Ontario Horticultural Association.

TORONTO MEETING, FEBRUARY 9-10.

The sixteenth annual convention of the Ontario Horticultural Association was held at the King Edward hotel, February 9-10, with an attendance of more than 300 delegates. After President Miss Mary Yates, Port Credit, had read her address, E. S. Archibald, Ottawa, presented a paper on "Soils and Fertilizers." Other interesting and instructive addresses read on the first day were: "A Provincial Horticultural Show," by J. E. Carter, Guelph; "Floral Adornment of a City and Railroad Right-of-Way by a Horticultural Society," by Dr. F. E. Bennett, St. Thomas; "Symposium of the Iris," which was illustrated by stereopticon slides, the following phases being treated: "Culture," by Prof. W. T. Macoun, Ottawa; "Garden Use," by Rev. G. W. Tebs, Burlington; "Names and Varieties," by Dr. F. G. Brethour, Toronto; "Some Hardy Flowering Trees of the North Temperate Zone," by John Dunbar, Rochester, N. Y.; "Kingsville Gardens," by J. E. Brown, Kingsville; "Continuity in Garden Bloom," by Geo. Baldwin, Fellow Royal Horticultural Society, Toronto, and "Improved Home Surroundings," by A. H. Tomlinson, Guelph.

At the opening of Friday morning's session, Treasurer C. A. Hesson, St. Catharines, presented his report, showing the association to be in a good financial condition. After the reports of the various committees many more interesting papers were presented, among them being "What Relation Should Exist Between the Amateur and Professional Gardener?" by W. E. Groves, Hamilton. At the conclusion of the meeting it was voted it was the most successful in the history of the organization.

The following officers were elected for 1922: Reverend W. M. McKay, Weston, president; J. P. Jaffray, Galt, first vice-president; J. E. Carter, Guelph, second vice-president; J. Lockie Wilson, Provincial building, Toronto, secretary; C. A. Hesson, St. Catharines, treasurer.

Cleveland Horticultural Society.

The regular monthly meeting of the Horticultural Society was held February 9. The failure of the Fifth National Flower Show to be held here was the main topic of discussion and the inconvenience it was giving the private gardeners, as they were growing much additional material and were not in position to ship to any other city where it might be held.

There were two beautiful plants of cyclamen in 8-inch pots, being exhibited by R. P. Brydon, held over from last year, which showed what could be done with two-year-old bulbs, instead of the old method of dumping the plants when through blooming. He also staged a very fine collection of colored freesias which were just as strong as the Purity type, being a great addition to the cut blooms at this season, having a wonderful range of colors.

M. Webb showed a pot plant of Agathaea coelestis which makes a beautiful plant being a little different from the average pot plant at this season.

Charles Irish, a local arborist, gave an interesting talk on spraying and answered a number of questions. He explained how successful the trial had been of spraying orchards from an aeroplane, saying that this year would see much more of it accomplished at a great saving to the government and private owners.

Des Moines Floral Arts Club.

The Floral Arts Club, of Des Moines, Ia., held its regular monthly meeting at the Harris-Emery Tea room, February 14. Following the dinner the president, F. J. Wright, introduced Prof. S. A. Beach, dean of horticulture, Iowa State college, Ames, as the speaker of the evening. He spoke of "Vocational Training," and told of the time when students were required to take many studies that were foreign to the particular course they had in mind. But now all roads lead to the goal and students gain much time pursuing the courses desired at present-day colleges.

Prof. Voltz, of the same college, emphasized the need of carefully labeling trees, plants and shrubs in public gardens. L. E. Foglesong, landscape artist for the state executive council, described, in part, the plans for the new perennial garden at the State House grounds, Des Moines, which will contain 9,000 square feet of space and about 10,000 plants, all of which are to be carefully labeled.

At the January meeting of the club, J. W. Ash had offered a purse of 500 coins for the best display of flowers for the February meeting. Miss M. McMillan, of the Guthrie-Lorenz Co., was the only entrant, exhibiting a beautiful collection of corsages, it being ladies' night. When the purse was awarded it proved to be a real curiosity, comprising 500 cowries, which is the smallest value of any monetary system. Mr. Ash had secured the money while in Y. M. C. A. work in British India. At the conclusion of the meeting the ladies received the corsages and Miss McMillan generously shared the contents of the purse with all present.

Farmers' Week at Cornell University.

ELABORATE PROGRAMME AND EXHIBITS.

The department of floriculture of Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y., recently featured one of the biggest and most largely attended floricultural events that has ever occurred at that institution, which took place on the occasion of the college of agriculture's annual Farmers' Week, from February 13-18, in conjunction with the annual meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs, February 16. Never in the history of the institution have the floricultural features been so popular, and it is estimated that greater crowds came to see the flowers and hear the lectures than visited the work of any other one department in the university. This widespread, popular attraction of flowers for the 4,000 people who attended is probably the one most significant feature of the occasion and it certainly augurs well for the future of the trade in this country to note this increasing popular interest.

That the college has a grand opportunity and is doing a great work in educating the public to appreciate flowers, is manifested by the fact that many people returned day after day to see the flowers again and to learn something about them. The facilities of the department were taxed to the utmost to take care of the throngs of visitors, and the lecture room was so crowded that more than half of the many people who came to the doors had to be turned away. It is hoped to have a larger auditorium for next year's meetings.

The number of Farmers' Week visitors was considerably increased by the commercial florists and others who came to Ithaca to attend the meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs which was in session at the same time. A constant succession of events was provided in the programme of the floricultural department. There were exhibits and there were lectures. Many commercial florists as well as horticulturists, gardeners and amateurs attended the lectures, which were on topics of current interest to all classes of growers, as well as lectures of importance on related or allied subjects in various other departments. Each address was of one hour's duration, and nearly all were illustrated with lantern slides. The lectures of the floricultural department were given by members of the departmental staff, and also by guests of prominence who came to Ithaca to speak on various phases of the industry. Among these speakers were Charles Henry Fox, of Philadelphia, Pa., and Edwin Jenkins, of Lenox, Mass.

Walter J. Stephens.

Walter J. Stephens, newly elected president of the Ohio District of the National Flower Growers' Association, was born at Columbus, July 19, 1890. He attended the public schools in that city and later the Ohio State university. Upon graduation in 1912 the degree of B. Sc., was conferred upon him and returned the next year for his master's degree in chemistry. He was elected to three honorary fraternities while in the university, Phi Beta Kappa, Honorary Chemical and Military O. In 1914 he taught chemistry at the university of Iowa, Iowa City, but gave up this line of work to enter into business with his father under the firm name of S. F. Stephens & Son. This is one of the oldest floral establishments in Columbus.

In May, 1918, Mr. Stephens entered military service and was first assigned to the machine gun company of the 52nd infantry, Sixth division. He went overseas July 6, and shortly after arriving in France was sent to the gas school at Châtillon-sur-Seine. He was then transferred from the machine gunners to the chemical warfare service and saw action in the Vosges sector and the Meuse-Argonne campaign. He spent nearly a year overseas, visiting France, England, Luxembourg and Germany.

Mr. Stephens has always been active in the interests of the local and national florists' organizations.

He is an Elk, Mason, Knight of Pythias, Dramatic Order of Knights of Khorassan, member of the Civitan Club, Chamber of Commerce, West Side Business Men's Association, and South Side Civic Improvement Association.

TRADE GOOD DESPITE WEATHER.

What came near being one of the finest St. Valentine's Day in years was almost spoiled by a cold, steady down-pour of rain, February 14. But in spite of the inclement weather the florists seemed to be doing a thriving trade, judging from the activities at the stores. Ample preparations had been made for the occasion and flowers of every kind seemed to be more than plentiful. Three of the most prominent dealers featured a joint display advertisement in the daily newspapers, calling attention to the beautiful flowers and the suitability of their uses for St. Valentine's Day gifts. Roses and carnations were plentiful and fine, Premier roses being especially good. Plants and birch boxes went well and the call for miscellaneous boxes of cut flowers was all that could be desired. Corsage bouquets were not forgotten and the salesladies were kept busy making up these attractive remembrances, comprising combinations of violets, lily of the valley and freesias. In plants, cyclamens, primulas and hyacinths, calendulas, jonquils and red tulips were featured in baskets. Roses show no increase in price, bringing $4 to $8 per dozen and carnations $3. All violets shipped in sold well and white lilies were popular.

CARNATION DAY.

The uptown florists have inaugurated a carnation day, held Saturday, February 18, in which the three central floral stores participated: Geny Bros., Joy Floral Co., and L. H. Haury & Sons. They opened the campaign by a joint advertisement in the morning papers, calling attention to same, with the slogan, "Cash and Carry, $1.25 per Dozen." The retail price is $3.00 per dozen in ordinary times. They will try to feature it once a week.

NOTES.

The only mignonette obtainable in the city was seen at the Joy Floral Co.'s establishment, many fine large spikes being sold. The firm's valentine window was very attractive, consisting of red carnations, with a huge valentine on an easel, veiled with a streamer of red baby ribbon, upon which cupids, lily of the valley and lilies were alternately strung. Premier and Columbia roses are exceptionally good here and the firm is amply able to supply its Chattanooga, Tenn., and Atlanta, Ga., houses.

Geny Bros. had a most attractive display of birch boxes, baskets and cut flowers of all kinds. Easter lilies, carnations and roses were quantity items that went well.

Truck growers will hold a meeting in this city next week. Arnold Schmidt, the veteran vegetable man, is still busily engaged with his work.

Plants were very popular at L. H. Haury & Son's establishment, St. Valentine's Day.

The McIntyre Floral Co. cleaned up well on roses, carnations and cut flowers.

DEMAND BETTER THAN EXPECTED.

The market at the opening this week showed a small advance in price owing to the demand for St. Valentine's Day. The trade in general for the occasion was slightly better than a year ago. Violets especially sold more readily, though they held at the same price as last year. After mid-week, values slumped about one-third on all stocks. Sweet peas, which have been enjoying a ready market at good prices, came in quite liberally this week and are now selling at a little better than half the price of a week ago. Spring bulbous stock is not very plentiful except jonquils which are about equal in supply to the demand. Marguerites, pansies and Sweetheart roses were in good demand early in the week, also red roses, though numerous orders for the latter had to be filled with substitutes, as there were not half enough to go around. There is nothing new arriving in the novelty line except cut acacia, which is not selling without some urging.

NOTES.

There are several salesmen and growers from both markets on the sick list at the present time, Walter Holden, George Hanan and John McFarland, from the co-operative market, and Wm. McAlpine, Edw. Rogean and J. Nelson, of the Florists' Exchange.

Thursday, February 23, was carnation night of the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club at Horticultural hall. S. J. Goddard, E. Winkler and E. W. Howard were the speakers.

ST. VALENTINE'S BUSINESS GOOD.

St. Valentine's Day, another of the big days for the florist, is gone and the ones who advertised and pushed things reaped a harvest and the florist who reports nothing unusual has only himself to blame. From the wholesalers' standpoint it was away above their expectations, passing last year's total. There was more stock than usual and prices were reasonable and everyone could get just about what he wanted, when he wanted it. The weather was ideal and everything worked out just right to get the most out of the occasion. The principal call was for small corsage flowers, such as short roses, sweet peas, lily of the valley, violets and baby primroses, all of which cleaned up nicely. Roses were at their best and all grades were plentiful and with no increase in prices they all sold well. The only shortage noted was in red, and there was not nearly enough of these to go around. Carnations in the colored varieties sold well, but the white moved slowly. Sweet peas were never better and all cleaned up at list prices. For the first time since Christmas this market was sold out of lily of the valley and violets. The quality of the first shipments of violets received was not very good, but the later shipments were much better. Bulbous stock, such as jonquils, freesias and tulips were in big supply, but the demand took them all. The supply of Easter and Calla lilies was small and they disappeared quickly in funeral work. Pussy willow was another popular item.

NOTES.

C. C. Philips and M. S. Goldman, of the artificial flower department of the McCallum Co., have just returned from Dayton, O., where they were attending the decorators' and window trimmers' convention.

There was much disappointment here in transferring the Fifth National Flower Show from Cleveland, O., to Indianapolis, Ind., and there is no doubt but that it will cut down the attendance from this section, but then it could not be helped and our loss is the other fellow's gain.

The Queen Flower Shop has moved from its old location on Smithfield street to the corner of Fifth avenue and Market street, in the high rent district. Go to it, boys, you have done something that older heads have refused to tackle and you deserve to win. There is no use talking—to do business you have got to be where the business is and that is always where the rent is highest—that's what makes it high.

SLIGHT REDUCTION IN PRICES.

There was a slight reduction in prices on some items last week, bulbous stock being chiefly affected. The weather has moderated somewhat. Trade is keeping up very satisfactorily, funeral and decorative work being the chief outlet for stock. Roses have not changed as far as price is concerned. Very fine Mrs. Chas. Russell and Columbia are coming in but Premier is scarce. Ophelia and Butterfly are showing better quality. The absence of short roses of all varieties is the cause of much complaint among the retailers. Carnations have dropped down to $1.50 per bunch, but they clean up quickly at these prices. Laddie is yet $1.50 per dozen blooms and is considered to be at its best now. There has been a sharp reduction in the price of lily of the valley, which sells at $4 to $6 per 100. It is being largely featured in the stores. Lillium giganteum has declined to $4 per dozen. Chinese narcissi is bringing $2 per 100, which is considered an excellent price. Paper Whites have dropped to 50 to 75 cents per 100 and is of only fair quality. Daffodils have increased in supply at $2.50 to $3 per 100. Long, fancy stock is scarce. Tulips show no change in values and move well. Hyacinths of exceptional quality are seen. Some splendid sweet peas are arriving and sell readily at $4 per dozen bunches, each bunch containing two dozen stems. Orchids are sufficient for all requirements, cattleyas, laelios and Phaelenopsis amabilis, the latter being popular for weddings. Violets are poor and only Giant is obtainable, and it is reported that the season is about over. It is said that later on some Marie Louise violets may be obtainable. Marigolds are increasing in quantity and find a ready market. Anemones are in short supply, but freesias are plentiful and move well. Cut Erica melanthera is used in many ways and during the past month of shortage in other line has proven a life saver. The supply of acacias is increasing and fruit blossoms are seen. Mexican ivy is in strong demand. Green goods seem to be sufficient for all purposes, although the demand is very heavy. Plant trade is very active and the stores were well stocked with it for St. Valentine's Day. Mme. Wagner rhododendrons were brought in last week and went well.

NOTES.

It is stated by growers of sweet peas that the plantings have not been injured by the cold spell. While there has not been an appreciable surface growth, as is usual in abnormally cold weather, the root growth has flourished and this, as a rule, establishes a long flowering season. Plantings are reported large on account of profitable prices last year.

G. Rossi & Co. are showing a fine lot of rhododendrons at the Wholesale Co-operative Market. The call for flowering plants and greens was never better than it has been since the first of the year, according to Michael Rossi, Jr.

At the Eric James greenhouses great activity is noted in preparing stock for Easter. Many houses are planted to roses and much space is devoted to nephrolepis, cibotiums and begonias, all vigorous.

A good crop of phaelenopsis is being cut by Peterson & Haywood, Hillsborough. Plant demand is good and their retail shop at Burlingame is doing a rushing business.

The California State Floral Society held a meeting, February 10, at Red Men's hall. The gladiolus was the chief flower under discussion and a fine talk by H. Ely a feature.

A flower show will be held at Woodland, Yolo county, April 8, to be given under the auspices of the city council and generous prizes will be offered for all spring flowers.

G. Masichi, who operated a flower shop on Columbus avenue under the name of the Italian American Florist, recently discontinued business.

E. W. McLellan is being congratulated because of the fine sweet peas he is sending in from his Burlingame range.

Podesta & Baldocchi featured a window of hyacinths, tulips and daffodils recently, making a very artistic effect.

Garabaldi Bros., San Bruno, are cutting a fine lot of snapdragons. They intend to grow roses next season.

A very busy week was reported by Albert O. Stein in decorative work for the automobile show.

Chas. W. Brown of Brown & Kennedy, is reported confined to his home with illness.

P. Vincent Matrai, of the Art Floral Co., is ill at his home.

A. Bottini, of Bottini & Co., is ill with pneumonia.

OBITUARY.

The Late David S. Lake.

The late David S. Lake, president of the Shenandoah Nurseries, Inc., Shenandoah, Ia., brief announcement of whose death appeared in our issue of February 18, page 272, died at his home in that city, from diabetes, February 2, age 77 years. He was born at Loudon Center, N. H., January 27, 1845, and was the son of David and Julia B. (Sanborn) Lake. After completing a course of study at the academy in Pittsfield, N. H., he took Horace Greeley's advice and when 19 years old went to Wisconsin, later engaging in teaching school in Illinois. Following this work for five years he secured employment in a nursery at Prairie City, Ill.

After accumulating a few hundred dollars, Mr. Lake decided to embark in business for himself and established a small nursery at Shenandoah, Ia., in 1870. By painstaking efforts he developed one of the greatest enterprises of its kind in the middle west, with co-ordinate interests reaching into many states, France and other European countries.

Mr. Lake used his money freely for the upbuilding of Shenandoah. He constructed houses to furnish employment to laboring men and sold them to people on easy terms or rented the homes at a rate far below what the investment would have brought in some other enterprise. A strong characteristic of Mr. Lake during his entire life was his friendship for the working man and during his last illness his talk was largely about them, the girls of the office and all his associates in the nursery work of years gone by. Honesty in business and square dealing was his motto. When he found a man in his employ who showed indications of wanting to make something of himself he pushed him forward and helped him. A large number of men now well-to-do and holding honorable positions in life can point to the help and advice of D. S. Lake as one of the prime causes of their success.

In 1872 Mr. Lake married Hannah O'Day, of Shenandoah, who died in 1914. Three children survive him, A. F. Lake, who has been associated in the business for 25 years; Ralph S. Lake, in charge of the office for 20 years, and a daughter, Clara B. Lake, who has been the mainstay of the home and his devoted companion since the death of Mrs. Lake. In the arrangements for the continuation of the business, the three children will share equally and have the same voice in the management, the Shenandoah Nurseries, Inc., and the Cottrill Brick & Tile Works, Inc., continuing without change of name. Of Mr. Lake's many other interests in Shenandoah and elsewhere disposition has been made that is entirely satisfactory to the members of the family. Two brothers survive, A. S. Lake, of Shenandoah, and Albert E. Lake, of Murdock, Neb.

The funeral services were held at the late home, February 4, Rev. W. J. Turner, of Moline, Ill., and Rev. C. S. Hanley, of Shenandoah, officiating. Between the hour of 10 a. m. and 11 a. m., the home was open for friends to view for the last time the face of their friend. Just previous to his death, the Western Association of Nurserymen at its convention in Kansas City, Mo., passed resolutions of sympathy for Mr. Lake, which were a great comfort to him. It was characteristic of Mr. Lake that he desired the working men of his plants to act as pall bearers, who were: R. T. Robirds, S. P. Nelson, A. C. Swanson, J. E. Rulon and T. I. Hayes, of the nursery, and P. A. Kryselmier, of the brickyard.

Arthur I. Vescelius.

Arthur I. Vescelius, well known retail florist of Paterson, N. J., died in the Lackman hospital, Philadelphia, Pa., February 19, age 63 years. He was attending a banquet of the Sons of Veterans, in the Adelphi hotel, that city, when stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage and was at once taken to the hospital, but never regained consciousness.

Mr. Vescelius was born in Paterson, the son of Dr. Geo. E. Vescelius, a Union soldier who was killed in action in the Civil war. Ancestors of Mr. Vescelius also saw service in the Revolutionary war. He received his education in Prof. Hopper's school, at that time a noted institution of Paterson. After leaving school he accepted a position with the Roger's Locomotive shops as cashier, which he held until entering the florist's business over 30 years ago.

Well known and highly respected in the trade of New York city, where he had business dealings, Mr. Vescelius was considered a man of fine character, straightforward and upright. He was a member of the New York Florists' Club, the Sons of Veterans, Sons of the American Revolution and many other fraternal orders. He was a member of the Second Presbyterian church, of Paterson. Mr. Vescelius was twice married, his first wife being Mary E. Davidson, by whom he had two children, one, Arthur G., surviving him. About three years' ago Mr. Vescelius was united in marriage to Miss Catherine Werner, of New York, who lives to mourn his death. Other relatives who survive are his mother and one sister.

Luke Collins.

Luke Collins, well known florist of Chicago, died at his home in that city February 20. He was a brother of George Collins, well known grower. Mrs. Collins and two sons, William and Fred, survive, also another brother, Henry. Interment at Rosehill cemetery, February 23.

Mr. Collins was born in Salisbury, Eng., about 70 years ago, and came to the United States when about 20 years of age. He spent some 15 years in eastern private gardens, and then moved to California. Coming to Chicago, he was foreman for Wiator Bros. for a time, and had been engaged in the retail flower business on his own account about 20 years. He was sick only a few days with influenza.

The Late Hollis H. Hunnewell.

In regard to the death of the late Hollis H. Hunnewell which was recorded in our issue of January 28, page 97, T. D. Hasfield, of Wellesley, Mass., offers the following correct information about the deceased: "The late Hollis H. Hunnewell was not a son, but a grandson of H. H. Hunnewell, who owned the well known estate bearing his name, at Wellesley, Mass. He died nearly 20 years ago and was succeeded in the ownership by his son Walter, who passed away in September, 1921. Walter Hunnewell was an uncle of the late Hollis H. Hunnewell. The Hill Crest estate is located at Natick, Mass., and not Wellesley, Mass., as stated."

John Streiford.

John Streiford, well known plant grower of Braintree, Mass., died at his home in that city, February 13. Mr. Streiford was one of the oldest growers of New England, coming to that section in the early sixties. The funeral services were held at the late home, February 16.

Mr. Streiford is survived by a daughter and a son, Carl Streiford, who conducts the business.

Plant Quarantine Conference Postponed.

Washington, D. C., February 17.—The plant quarantine conference called to meet here March 15 has been postponed until April 19, the federal horticultural board of the United States Department of Agriculture announced today. The first date, it was found, conflicted with important national and international flower shows scheduled for the latter part of March, thus preventing many florists and horticulturists from attending.

The conference will meet at the offices of the board here at 10 a. m., April 19, for the purpose of considering the advisability of any modifications, additions to or deductions from, of the classes of plants permitted entry under permit for immediate sale under Regulation 3 of Quarantine No. 37. Opportunity will be afforded for full and free discussion of the whole subject of the classes of plants involved and the restrictions enforced under this regulation.

S. A. F. SUGGESTIONS.

Dr. Marlatt, chairman of the federal horticultural board, consented to change the date of the Plant Conference from March 15 to April 19, and the trade appreciates that, but the tariff and legislative committee has been unable to get a definite and explicit statement as to the scope of the conference and what specific subjects the board will be prepared to discuss. On February 13 the committee wrote to Dr. Marlatt as follows:

"Would it not be possible to postpone the conference until after Easter? If this can be done and a corrected notice issued, please allow me to renew the suggestions made in behalf of this committee in my letter to you of December 31, that the notice be in more specific terms. Also that two hearings instead of one be held, one following the other, or the one hearing be divided into two parts: the first to consider changes in Quarantine No. 37 as it now stands, the second to consider further restrictions of imports.

"Both are important subjects yet not directly related, and I am sure you would not want it said justly again that the hearing was called at a time when those most interested could not attend, or that they did not know what specific subjects would be considered. Let us have a fair open hearing this time, the matter of further restrictions is far too important to be mixed in or buried with protests over spilt milk. Please be good enough to let me have your decision on these points as promptly as possible."

Under date of February 14, the committee received the following non-committal reply from Dr. Marlatt:

"The information given in the notice would seem to be adequate. It states definitely that the conference is called for the purpose of considering the advisability of any modifications—additions to or deductions from—of the classes of plants permitted entry for immediate sale under Regulation 3 of Quarantine No. 37. This notice, therefore, involves both a reconsideration of all the classes of plants now included under Regulation 3 and also a consideration of any additions, which may be properly made to the plants there listed. Any attempt to discuss the matter with respect to any particular plant or classes of plants or requirements of entry would necessarily involve a certain prejudging of the subjects to be considered by the conference.

"The board's wish, however, is to give opportunity at this conference, as stated in the notice, for a full and free discussion of the whole subject of the classes of plants involved and the restrictions enforced under this regulation."

Regulation 3 includes lily bulbs, lily of the valley pips, narcissus, hyacinths, tulips, fruit and rose stocks. Which of these items does the board plan to quarantine, if any? And if none, why not frankly say so and save the trade the necessity of providing ammunition it may not use? It is assumed that the board has already made its plans and is preparing to carry them through. It need not call a conference to consider "modifications," but to comply with the law it must call a hearing to consider additional quarantines. The inference is obvious.

How can there be a "full and free discussion of the whole subject" by interested persons unless those persons know that what they are interested in will be discussed? If it is the board's intention to quarantine rose stocks and narcissus bulbs there will be no "full and free discussion" of those subjects unless those interested in such items are present at the conference—and they will not be there unless they know that those items will be discussed. They are not interested enough in "modifications to Quarantine No. 37" to warrant their going.

Of course the trade would gladly give the board some practical constructive guidance with regard to modifications of Quarantine No. 37, but if additional quarantines are planned this committee will be fully occupied in meeting the main issue. The trade has largely adapted itself to the iniquities of Quarantine No. 37, to lift the quarantine on items that are not now purchasable in commercial quantities would be futile anyway, but the trade is vitally interested in additional quarantines.

Will the conference discuss "modifications to Quarantine No. 37" or "additional quarantines?" To consider both at the same time would result in burying the important matter of additional quarantines under a jumble of protests over spilt milk. Does Dr. Marlatt want that, or does he want "a full and free discussion?"

JAMES MCHUTCHISON, Chairman,
Tariff and Legislative Committee.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

On February 13 the members of the club, their wives, children and friends to the number of eighty enjoyed one of the finest social evenings held in some time. Before the meeting an informal dinner was held in honor of S. S. Pennock, of Philadelphia, at the Hotel Renner, the following members being present: Joseph Merritt, J. J. Perry, C. M. Wagner, I. H. Moss, H. I. Moss, F. C. Bauer, Adam Repp, Robert W. Johnston, Wm. J. Johnston, W. E. McKissick, Robert L. Graham, Jr., Robert L. Graham, Albert Fiedler, Charles Siegwart, J. J. Cummings, Jr., Prof. Thomas B. Symonds, E. W. Seidwitz, W. J. Muth, W. F. Ekas, Claymore Sieck, Harry Glick, Ferdinand Guerth, Lou Glick, W. F. Buschardt, W. G. Lehr, A. F. Hills, Wm. Feast and Charles F. Feast.

Mrs. Turnbull of the Women's Civic League told of the work of the organization she represented, how they as a body encouraged the beautifying of backyards, the planting of window boxes, offering prizes in order to create a spirit of rivalry. She then told of the work of the Flower Mart, which is held each year in order to raise funds to carry on this work, and then asked that a committee be appointed from the club membership to co-operate with them. The president was then authorized to appoint a committee to work with the league. Charles F. Feast, chairman of the general Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association committee, was called upon to make his report. He told of the progress made and named some of the important committees already appointed. He urged the club to support in every way possible the plans for the great business meeting of that organization in this city next October.

All business for the evening was suspended and Mr. Pennock was introduced by the president as the speaker of the evening. Mr. Pennock first told of the organization which he was called upon to represent in Germany. The Society of Friends despised war and considered war a poor method of settling disputes. However, when this country was forced to enter the war they decided that they must help in some way, so they sent relief missions to various countries, including Russia, Belgium and France, while the war was in progress. After the war they were asked by Herbert Hoover to continue these missions of relief among the undernourished children of the allied nations and also among the children of the enemy. Mr. Pennock and his workers were sent into Germany. Their headquarters were established at Essen and from this point carried on their work in various other towns and cities, among the larger ones being Frankfurt, Darmstadt and Wiesbaden. With the aid of his valuable collection of slides, Mr. Pennock showed us how the food was cooked; how it was transported in large thermos kettles to various points of distribution; how the children were examined to determine their undernourished condition, for only this type was fed; and some of the pitiful, deformed bodies as a result of malnutrition.

After the story of his work and its results, he then started us on a trip down the beautiful Rhine valley, the scenes of which were very familiar to the writer, having spent eight months in this picturesque country while a member of the Army of Occupation. Mr. Pennock started from Maintz or Mayence as the French call it, it being the bridgehead occupied by them, on his trip down the valley. The first town of importance after leaving Maintz is Bingen. "Bingen on the Rhine" is familiar to us all through its associations with the poem of this name and the celebrated rat tower of fiction.

From here on one passes beautiful hills with terraced vineyards and little white castles nestling here and there among the green. He then showed us a picture of the rock of the Lorelei, and farther down the old fort of Ehrenbreitstein over which at the present time Old Glory floats. He then showed us various scenes in and around Coblenz, and pictures taken while visiting the home of the originator of the rose Karl Druschki, from Coblenz down through Luxembourg into France. While in France he visited many beautiful rose gardens, showing many pictures taken in them. It was indeed an interesting and inspiring lecture, greatly enjoyed by all. At the close a rising vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Pennock.

After the lecture ice cream and homemade cake, furnished by the ladies, was served to all and was thoroughly enjoyed.

NOTES.

Our good Florists' Club president had some difficulty in reaching the city the night of the club meeting. He started from home at 3:30 p. m., but got stuck in the mud a short distance from home. After two hours he had succeeded in pulling out the car they started on the road to town. Just within the city limits the car balked again and refused to go any further. After using a little persuasive power it started and he finally reached his destination in time to partake of the good supper awaiting him.

"Say It With Flowers" right from the heart. What better messenger could one send than the flower; roses, love; pansies, thoughts; hyacinths loveliness; daisies white, innocence; daisies yellow, beauty; forget-me-not has its own message; heliotrope, devotion; ivy, friendship; ferns, fascination.

The following ladies donated cakes at the recent meeting of the club: Mrs. Joseph Merritt, Mrs. R. Graham, Mrs. Eberle, Mrs. Robert W. Johnston and Miss Isabelle Johnston. Needless to say the cake was enjoyed by everyone and the club wishes to take this opportunity of thanking them for their substantial support.

The next social evening of the club is ladies' night and will be held April 10. J. Horace McFarland will be the speaker.

Thos. Stevenson has returned from Florida and we are hoping he will tell us all about his trip at the next club meeting.

A number are planning to attend the New York spring show in March from this city.

Joseph Merritt is cutting some fine Butterfly roses and Red Radiance carnations.

Stevenson Bros. are cutting some fine Richmond roses.

BEST VALENTINE BUSINESS IN YEARS.

The best valentine business in years is the unanimous version of florists here regarding the demand for flower valentines, February 14. Little trade had been expected owing to the industrial depression and when the day was over, florists could hardly believe their eyes when they figured up the sales for St. Valentine's Day. Very little advertising was used but windows with splendid effect and many handsome and unique displays were seen about town, which were responsible to a great extent for the large business enjoyed. The retail stores centered their attack this year on plants. Tulips, hyacinths, begonias, daffodils and cyclamens, trimmed with ribbon and cupid's arrows, sold exceptionally well. Novelties were also in brisk demand by the younger element. Violets, sweet peas and roses led among cut flowers. The supply of both plants and cut flowers was adequate. Telegraph orders showed an increase for this day that was very encouraging. Funeral work has been unusually heavy during the past week and business on the whole has shown a remarkable revival that augurs well for Easter.

NOTES.

Local growers held a meeting at Schramm Bros. last week that was brimming over with enthusiasm. As a result of the good things that were discussed, it was decided to have a big get-together dinner at some hotel at which plans would be made to promote the best interests of the florists in Northwestern Ohio. J. L. Schiller and Wm. Krueger are taking an active interest in promoting this dinner at which a record-breaking attendance is expected.

In connection with George Beban's motion picture, "The Sign of the Rose," which is playing this week at the Valentine theatre, local florists are holding a flower show in its spacious lobby, which is proving a great drawing card. Schramm Bros., the Helmer Flower Shop, Feniger's, Helen Patten, Spanner's Flower Shop and Suder's are the exhibitors taking part. This is good publicity for the trade.

Schramm Bros. are remodeling their entire office with a view to promoting greater efficiency. St. Valentine's Day trade was the best this firm has ever experienced. Plants were featured and great quantities sold. George Schramm, chief artist, is now on the road to recovery after a two months' illness.

The Avery Flower Shop on Ashland avenue is rapidly forging to the front. This store always has neat window displays and is located in a fine district where flower buyers are numerous.

Funeral work has been exceptionally brisk with Metz & Bateman. They report a fine St. Valentine's Day trade.

A. C. K.

Denver, Colo.

MARKET IS CLEANED UP.

The close of this week has seen the market entirely clean of stock as the result of the large number of orders for the funeral of W. J. Barker, vice-president of the Denver Gas & Electric Co., which was held February 19. Local orders have been light during the latter part of the week but the shipping trade has been excellent and each day has seen the market practically cleared of stock, as the supply has been light on account of the large cut for St. Valentine's Day. All stock, however, has been of excellent quality. The St. Valentine's Day trade was heavy and practically every shop in town had to call on additional help in order to get out the orders. Some establishments started in the morning to wrap all packages with white paper and appropriate valentine stickers in red on the outside, but this had to be discontinued early in the morning. A good supply of all stock was on hand, with the exception of red carnations and roses, the call for the latter, however, being not very heavy and the supply sufficient. Corsages of sweet peas and violets were the favorite token of the event and this stock was plentiful and of excellent quality. Another feature was bouquets of spring flowers. Prices held steady at the following quotations: Roses, $2 to $6 per dozen; carnations, $1 to $1.50; sweet violets, 75 cents per bunch. Bulbous peas, 75 cents to $1 per bunch, and cut stock brought from $1.50 to $3 per dozen. With the exception of tulips, which are short stemmed, this section was of excellent quality for cut flower work. Shipping orders for St. Valentine's Day were very light. N. H. N.

BRISK VALENTINE TRADE.

Business during St. Valentine's Day was brisk in every way, but since that date it has been a little quiet. The tone of the market is still good, however. There is a considerable amount of funeral work and this helps to maintain the volume. Party work is fairly good, but some of the parties are now being held without a profusion of flowers. The offerings of all stock, with the possible exception of roses, is good and prices are now down to about the pre-war levels. Roses, carnations, sweet peas, violets and pot plants and bulbs are leading, roses bringing $4 to $8, mostly Premier, Sunburst, Columbia and Butterfly. Carnations are quoted at $2 to $2.50 and the quality is excellent. Violets of good quality are selling briskly. Sweet peas are quoted at $1.50 per bunch. Jonquils are sold from $2 to $3 and there is also a good call for hyacinths. Pot plants are becoming more prominent and sell better as spring approaches.

NOTES.

This city does not appropriate sufficient money annually for the proper care of its trees and shrubbery, according to Superintendent of Parks James Underwood in his recent annual report. With only $4,550 available for forestry and landscape work very little could be done last year beyond removing dead and dangerous trees. The department also tried to carry out a programme of tree trimming which was not completed owing to lack of funds. The superintendent pointed out that Detroit Mich., appropriates $120,000 annually for the forestry department.

The window of the retail store of the Fifth Avenue Floral Co., of East Broad street, for St. Valentine's day was very attractive. A large heart made of red materials and illuminated with scores of electric lights, was the feature. Around the heart were exhibited loose flowers and corsages suitable for valentine gifts. The store has been recently redecorated and is proving quite popular. Manager Siebert of the company reports a good demand for roses, carnations and sweet peas, and they are cutting quantities of this stock. Bulbous stock, with as tulips, jonquils and hyacinths are also being sold in large quantities.

McKellar, the Florist, 35 West Broad street, will soon give up the High street shop near Broad street and concentrate all of the business at his main establishment. He reports the best valentine business he has ever experienced with a scarcity of certain flowers. The demand ran largely towards roses, carnations, violets and sweet peas. Mr. McKellar has been busy recently on decorations for a number of conventions and social affairs at the Deshler hotel.

Growers and retailers of this city presented the family of the late Hiram M. Munk, former treasurer of the Munk Floral Co., a large wreath as a tribute to his memory. The wreath was made by T. J. Ludwig, 82 North High street, from flowers donated by the various members of the Flower Growers' and Retailers' association.

Carl W. Huber, who operates greenhouses on Lockbourne road, is having a good call for his product. He is cutting roses, carnations and other seasonal flowers. Steps are being taken to increase the output of the plant.

The Cottage Rose Garden, South High street, is cutting a large number of carnations which find a ready sale. The concern is also specializing in pot plants, for which a good demand is developing. Herman Kropp is manager.

Mrs. Williams, manager of the local branch of the Zettitz Floral Products Co., reports a good call for roses which is the specialty of the company. Weather conditions, however, have not been the best for a good crop.

An excellent business for St. Valentine's Day and immediately following is reported by Frank C. Viereck. The public is buying carnations, roses, violets and sweet peas.

J. W. L.

CLINTON, ILL.—Schell Samuels and wife, who have been conducting a small flower shop at their home, 614 West Washington street, will install an up-to-date store in the Moore Estate building about March 1.

HEAVY SUPPLY MOVES SLOWLY.

The general report of the wholesalers concerning St. Valentine's Day business is that there was an exceptionally large volume but prices were much lower than last year. In fact some stated that prices were about one-half of last year, but owing to the large supply of stock of all kinds, the total business probably equalled last year's in money value. Roses, which were of excellent quality, were the best sellers, especially Premier, Mrs. Chas. Russell and Milady, but there was a surplus of carnations, some of which it was impossible to move. The average price obtained for carnations for valentine week was very low. Many telegrams were sent broadcast in an effort to move the surplus carnation stock, with the result that some of the buyers, who had contracted in advance for their supply at higher prices, asked for a reduction after the shipments had been received. This, of course, causes unpleasantness. The violet growers, too, no doubt, will be disappointed with their returns, but it was an impossibility to move the enormous quantity which reached this market the three days before February 14, at anything near the price the grower would like to get for them. As the quantity was greater than had been expected, no special efforts had been made to book large orders for them in advance. Sweet peas fared better than the violets. Bulbous stock did not average up any too well, when one considers the original cost. This week, owing to the reasonable prices and the quantity of stock available, trade seems to be more brisk. A great many consignments are going out of town and the express men handling the cut flower shipments were almost as busy on Monday of this week, as if there had been a holiday. The bargain prices offered last week are bringing results. It usually takes a week to stimulate business when low prices and a large quantity of flowers are offered after a season of high prices and scarcity of supply. Roses and carnations are of excellent quality and tulips and jonquils are selling from four cents up. Darwin tulips bring 10 cents. There has been a scarcity of asparagus with the result that there was a good demand for A. Sprengeri. At times it was difficult to find either. Freesias, calendulas and callas are plentiful. It will not be possible to get any more heather this season, as the cold snap in California has ruined the supply. Orchids and lily of the valley can readily be obtained. Sweet peas are plentiful and of excellent quality. Retailers were well pleased with St. Valentine's Day business, the price of blooming plants being one-half of that a year ago. Newspaper publicity helped considerably.

NOTES.

Alderman John Powers, who celebrated his seventieth birthday, February 17, and is concluding his thirty-third consecutive year in the city council, was presented with a bouquet of roses by Mayor Thompson, the gift of his colleagues.

E. A. Ollinger has the sympathy of many friends in the death of his mother at the family home, Sturgeon Bay, Wis., Sunday night, February 19. Funeral Wednesday, February 22.

Ed. Manie, who has spent several months in the south, representing the Pulverized Poultry Manure Co., returned this week, and reports business only fair.

H. G. Frey, representing the McCallum Co. Pittsburgh, Pa., was a visitor this week, enroute to the Pacific coast.

Miss Nettie Parker, of the A. T. Pyfer Co., met with a very painful and disastrous accident, February 16. She and George Leper, also of the A. T. Pyfer Co., were on their way home from the store in a taxicab when it collided with a limousine at Lake street and Michigan boulevard. The force of the collision threw Miss Parker from the seat, right into the shattered glass and she was cut so badly that it was necessary to put 30 stitches in her face and neck. Her kneecap and ankle were also badly injured. She was taken to St. Luke's hospital but later removed to the Midwest hospital, where she is now recovering from the shock and painful injuries. The stitches were removed Monday, February 20, and the wounds seem to be healing nicely. George Leper received a severe bruise on the forehead but suffered no other injuries. The Florists' Club sent a basket of flowers and fruit to Miss Parker, February 18.

Ella Grant Wilson, who was in the city on publicity matters recently, has returned to Cleveland, O., from where she writes she finds her desk piled high with material that must be taken care of before the National Flower Show at Indianapolis, March 25-April 1.

EXCELLENT TRADE REPORTED.

Business the past week was the best experienced in many years. St. Valentine's Day being very successful for the florists. Spring stock is in very good demand at present. Jonquils, narcissi, freesias, carnations and daffodils are proving popular in spiral boxes at $1 to $5 each. Roses show no change in price, with few American Beauties seen and scarcely any call. Premier is the best kind supplying the exclusive trade at $10 to $40 per 100. Mrs. Chas. Russell, White Killarney, Ward, Crusader Columbia, Sunburst, Ophelia and Butterfly supply a good demand, the two latter being the highest priced, selling at $8 to $20 per 100. Very little call is reported for Cecile Brunner. Carnations sell well, the red and pink kinds being more popular than whites. Laddies are scarce at $6 to $8 per 100. Lily of the valley, gardenias and orchids sell well, the former bringing $6 to $8 per 100. Orchids sell at $1 to $1.50 per bloom. Cattleya trianae being the best. Cypripediums have little call, but are plentiful. Cut and pot material of tulips, jonquils, daffodils narcissi and freesias supply a good demand, freesias lagging a little behind, however. Prices range from $3 to $8 per 100, jonquils bringing the higher figures. In pot plants tulips bring six cents per flower, jonquils eight to 10 cents per bloom and hyacinths 15 to 20 cents per bloom. Freesias are obtainable in white or dyed shades of yellow, orange or bronze, at $4 to $6 per 100. Rainbow is the best. Sweet peas show great improvement and they clean up well. Double violets are popular, most of the stock being shipped in from other markets. They sell at $1 to $1.50 per 100. Single violets bring less and there was a heavy call for them St. Valentine's Day. Snapdragons are scarce, all selling. Calendulas are much sought after at $3 to $8 per 100. Easter and calla lilies have little trouble in selling. Mignonette, at $10 per 100, is plentiful. Stevia, of good quality, supplies a good demand. For decorating pot plants and other uses pussy willows prove popular. Leucothoe sells at 75 cents to $1 per 100. Galax, bronze and green, is obtainable in any quantity. SLIGHT DECLINE IN PRICES.

Business the past week, considering conditions, was good. With the lengthening of the days the daily receipts of cut flowers is on the increase and while the demand is good a reduction on some items was necessary to move what was held over. From general reports the volume of business done St. Valentine's Day was fully up to last year if not greater, but it was a case of less money, so the probable increase was necessary to bring the total in dollars and cents up to the same period in 1921. As usual the great call was for the smaller sized cut flowers, such as sweet peas, violets, lily of the valley and spring flowers, all of which were in good supply and cleaned up. Pot plants in bloom, enjoyed a good call, and the business in this line was brisk. All in all the quality of stock was fine, indeed.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING, MARCH 2.

DEMAND EXCEED EXPECTATIONS.

St. Valentine's Day trade was equal to all expectations. Each year seems to bear witness to the fact that it is only second to Easter as a floral holiday. Violets, roses, sweet peas were in excellent demand and corsages proved very popular. Plant arrangements, in boxes, birch boxes and other receptacles went well, primulas, cyclamens, begonias and daffodils being used. Lilac plants were also obtainable, and were nicely trimmed. The growers are now preparing for Easter and the plants in the greenhouses are looking exceptionally good.

NOTES.

COLD WEATHER DECREASES DEMAND.

The extreme cold weather of the past week interfered very materially with the demand and shortened the supply as well. The thermometer for several days bounced along from as low as zero and from that up to 15 and 18 degrees above. There was also considerable snow. However, with all these handicaps, there was no great accumulation and Saturday, when the temperature rose almost above freezing, found the market fairly cleaned up with the exception of calendulas, freesias and Paper White narcissi, which were somewhat overstocked. Roses the whole week were on the short side, selling up well every day. Carnations were about equal to the demand; daffodils, which are always popular at this season, were a bit too plentiful, at least their price, three to four cents, leaves the grower after the marketing expenses, very little to pay this year's huge-priced bulb bill. There are tulips in variety that bring better prices. Freesia hangs fire as do calendulas, while Paper Whites are used in cheap funeral work. Sweet peas are a quantity product that are in good demand, although the top market price is but three cents. Formosum lilies have the market to themselves, the few remaining cold-storage gigas being very poor, in fact, many of the formosums show split and crippled flowers. Cattleyas are about equal to the call. Callas are good stock, the best quality bringing top prices. White lilacs and lily of the valley are in demand at last week's prices. Violets are very slow. Florida asparagus was scarce due, it was thought, to poor shipping conditions, one dealer declaring he was short 900 bunches in his usual receipts for the week.

CALLA LILIES.

It is now reported that the cold spell in January experienced on the California coast, when the thermometer went down to 20 degrees, cut the calla lilies to the ground and caused great damage to the crops of freesias then in full growth in the fields. It is hoped the bulbs are not damaged materially, but under the circumstances all growers of these bulbs should look carefully after their present stock, as it may be all they will have to depend on for next season.

PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Adolph Krum, of Garden City, N. Y., gave an illustrated lecture before the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society at its monthly meeting Tuesday, February 21, at the New Century Club. His subject was, "The Really Worth While Vegetables for the Home Garden." Mr. Krum handled his subject admirably, showing the food values of the different classes of garden favorites. Over 60 beautifully colored slides were used to illustrate the lecture. There were also exhibitions of pot plants and cut flowers. The next meeting, March 2, will be featured with an address on "Out Door Rose Culture," by Dr. Robt. Huey.

NOTES.

H. E. Bates, representative of the Lord & Burnham Co., reports a most gratifying increase in commercial greenhouse building, saying that January was the best in the experience of the company and that February was likely also to prove a record breaker. In this locality, in addition to some very good work in prospect, they are erecting for B. K. Hedrick, Perkasio, Pa., one house 50x250 feet, and for Dr. Walker, Mendenhall, Pa., one house 41x200 feet, also two for Stephen Mortensen, Southampton Pa., 32x150 feet and one 28x150 feet. The many friends of D. T. Connor of the office force will learn with regret that he is on the sick list.

Wonder what Robert Craig will say when the news reaches him of the Pennock Bros. have now a making-up bench fitted up in the rear of the greenhouse. This is free from store disturbance and gives also the advantage of bright daylight. A splendid St. Valentine's Day trade was the report.

Wm. P. Lynch of the Philadelphia 'Growers' Cut Flower Market reports his grower's membership is gaining. High grade Columbia and Premier roses are leaders in their list of roses.

Premier and Columbia roses, high grade carnations and sweet peas, are leading features of the Edw. Reid stock. Out of town trade was very good the past week.

Bulbous stock, such as daffodils, tulips, etc., is a feature with Berger Bros., being seen in great variety. Choice sweet peas are also a leader.

AMERICAN FLORIST CO.
440 SOUTH DEARBORN STREET, CHICAGO

New York.

CARNATIONS ADVANCE IN PRICE.

Business was fair during the past week, prices remaining firm, with advances on carnations. There was considerable activity February 13, Lincoln's birthday being observed on that day. Florists also stocked heavily for St. Valentine's Day, many of the shops in the heart of the city reporting good sales. In other sections it does not appear that there was much increase in business. A snow storm February 15 and zero temperature the following morning did not affect the supply of stock nor hamper trade. The offerings of American Beauty roses and gardenias continue light, prices being fine in both cases. Bulbous stock continues ample and of good quality, noteworthy being many fine Darwin tulips. There are many good cattleyas on the market with little change in values, excepting for special stock in hybrids that are above the average. In Easter lilies, Rubrums and callas there is a plentiful supply. Carnations sell fairly well. There does not seem to be much use made of violets, except funeral work, and that does not clean up the supply the surplus going to the street men. The better grades of singles are more in demand than doubles. Considering the general complaint of business and that many society people are at winter resorts and many others on the way, we can state that instead of complaining, the trade should be thankful that business is as good as it is.

February 20.—The cold wave has passed and the weather is now mild. Indications point to an increased supply of stock for this week with easier prices.

FLORISTS' CLUB ITINERARY FOR CONVENTION.

The Florists' Club has had printed and published suggested itineraries for the trip in connection with the convention of the Society of American Florists, at Kansas City, August 15-17, 1922. They are based on a special train schedule of 125 or more passengers. Itinerary No. 1 suggests leaving this city via the New York Central railway, August 12 at 2 p. m., arriving at Cleveland, O., 4:30 a. m., August 13 and from there over the Big Four route to St. Louis, then taking the Missouri Pacific railway to Kansas City. After the convention it is proposed to visit St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, Minn., taking a steamer at Duluth for Houghton, Mich., and journeying to Detroit, Mich., via Sault Ste. Marie and Mackinac Island. It is further proposed to visit Niagara Falls, N. Y., on the return trip, which will end August 23 at this city. The cost on the above mentioned basis will be $16 to $20 per day, including transportation, meals and hotel accommodations. Itinerary No. two is a more ambitious effort and contemplates, after the convention, a journey to Denver, Colorado Springs, Colo., Salt Lake City, Utah, Yellowstone Park, the Grand Canyon of Arizona and Mammoth Hot Springs. The time would be extended to August 31, when the party would reach this city. The cost per day is given as the same as in the first mentioned itinerary.

NOTES.

The fifteenth annual ball and entertainment of the Greek-American Florists' Association will be held at the Commodore hotel on the evening of March 1. An orchestra of 50 pieces will furnish choice music. Tickets can be purchased in advance at the New York Florists' Supply Co., 103 West Twenty-eighth street, or at the hotel on the evening of the event. A high class vaudeville entertainment beginning at 8:30 p. m., will precede the dancing.

Newark, N. J., retailers who are constant buyers on this market, report a great volume of work for the funeral of the late Mayor Archibald, of that city, which was held February 14. His remains lay in state at the City hall and afterward at the Presbyterian church, where services were held.

Theodore Malandre, of Malandre Bros., has got into the "movies." We do not mean that he is involved in any of the various scandals that affect that profession, but a picture from Florida is being shown here in which he is a smiling figure in a wedding party at Miami.

Fred Miller, West Toronto, Ont., was in this city last week and visited his friend A. M. Westwood, the Pennsylvania Terminal Florist. Mr. Miller is one of a company that is about to erect a large range of greenhouses near Toronto.

We recently received from Secretary John Young, 43 West Eighteenth street, the final schedule of the Ninth Annual Spring Show, to be staged at Grand Central palace, March 13-19. It is a bulky and comprehensive document.

In addition to American Beauty, American Legion and other roses and a fine line of carnations, M. C. Ford, in the Eighteenth street market, has excellent offerings in Darwin tulips.

Leo B. Lowenthal, proprietor of the Gramercy Floral Co., 3830 Broadway, recently added to his business by buying the store of the Riviera Florist, 4025 Broadway.

Alexander E. Hogg, a veteran employee of the Brooklyn Park department and a member of the local Florists' Club, has been quite ill with influenza but is now improving.

We have recently noticed at the shop of Herman Weiss, 121 West Twenty-eighth street an exceptionally fine stock of carnations, sweet peas and cut hyacinths.

Edw. Brenner, in the Eighteenth street market, is handling an exceptionally fine stock of the narcissus, King Albert, grown by Peter Buerlein, Hillsdale, N. J.

Burglars entered the store of W. H. Long, 412 Columbus avenue, on the night of February 17, wrecked the safe and got away with $500 in money and jewelry.

Roman J. Irwin has on exhibition at his store a large collections of photographs of the cactus range and garden of A. G. Greiner, St. Louis, Mo.

The finest sweet peas noticed last week were at I. Goldenstein's, in the Eighteenth street market, who is also receiving good gardenias.

Doyle & Booth, 112 West Twenty-eighth street, are receiving exceptionally good stock of cattleya hybrids and white albas.

Harry Charles, 104 West Twenty-eighth street, is well stocked with violets and other seasonable offerings.

An excellent St. Valentine's Day trade was reported by the Broadway Florist, 2094 Broadway.

Eugene Dailedouze and wife are sojourning at Fort Meyers, Fla.

FIELD seed prices in most markets are firm to higher, the weather curtailing sales.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—C. C. Massie, of Northrup, King & Co., is making a California trip with his family.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are firm at $1.75 for colors and $2.00 for whites, prompt shipment in car lots.

W. H. DE GRAAFF, of de Graaff Bros., Noordwijk, Holland, is in California looking into the bulb growing situation there.

THE North German Lloyd steamers, sailings of which to New York were interrupted by the war, resumed February 15.

WAKEMAN, O.—G. S. Clark & Son have taken over the sweet corn seed business of the W. C. Pressing Seed Co., Norwalk, O.

B. F. BROWN, of the Brown Bag Filling Machine Co., Fitchburg, Mass., died suddenly February 21. Funeral services February 23.

SAGINAW, MICH.—A. T. Ferrell and wife spent the first half of February in New York city, and have given up their Florida trip.

LEM W. BOWEN, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., and wife are in Egypt, and will return through France the latter part of June.

DES MOINES, IA.—Chas. N. Page, who has been here several weeks from California, returned February 20, because of the illness of Mrs. Page.

RICHMOND, VA.—T. W. Wood & Sons state that business is opening up very satisfactorily and a favorable season compared with a year ago is expected.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—The Germain Seed & Plant Co. announces the opening of a cut flower department at their retail store, located at Sixth and Main streets.

VISITED CHICAGO: L. R. Robinson, representing the J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb.; R. C. McGill, San Francisco, Calif.; W. C. Roberts, representing the Brown Bulb Ranch, Capitola, Calif.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Chris. Reuter reports the seed business only fair, continual rains having materially interfered with planting. There is a good call for some seeds, but other stocks are moving very slowly.

THE Virginia state legislature, now in session at Richmond, is considering a number of bills, many of them detrimental to the trade, which, through the vigilance of the seedsmen, it is believed will be defeated.

H. R. 10273 is the number of the bill providing more regulation for seedsmen, introduced by Representative Cantrill, of Kentucky, prominent features of which were noted in last week's issue, page 268. Seedsmen should secure a copy and write their congressmen about it.

Washington Agricultural Conference.

President Olds, of the American Seed Trade Association, who represented the association at the agricultural conference recently held at Washington, D. C., says:

"One thing that impressed me about the Washington Agricultural Conference was the seriousness with which the delegates tackled the problems before them. Some have criticized the conference, saying that nothing was accomplished, that there were too many recommendations and that they were not definite enough. Doubtless there were too many recommendations and there naturally would be overlapping with 12 separate committees working independently to bring in resolutions.

"It seems to me, however, that some of the things adopted were certainly very definite and positive, and if they can be realized will bring great relief, not only to the farmers, but to the whole country as well. Of course, it remains to be seen just how much attention congress and the administration will pay to these things, but I was certainly impressed with the fact that President Harding seems determined to do all he can to help bring relief to the farmer, and it would seem as if congress would sit up and take notice after a while.

"I feel that the conference was very much worth while and that much good will come from it. Every committee was pretty well balanced with a good sprinkling of representatives of what were called the 'allied interests,' conservative men for the most part, as well as of farmers themselves, so that no very rash resolutions got through."

Burpee's Business.

President David Burpee, of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., writes as follows, February 14: "Because of the uncertainty in fixing values, we were delayed somewhat in mailing our retail catalogues this year. That fact, together with the heavy snow storms throughout the eastern states, has retarded our season to some extent. Moreover, we are under the impression that the public is going to wait as long as possible before buying this year. We are looking for an unusually late seed buying season.

"On the other hand, last year was one of the earliest seasons we have ever had. February of last year was the best February in our history. Our total sales, up to February, 1922, have gone 13½ per cent ahead of the same period of last year. February itself, however, is slightly behind last year. Nevertheless, business is very satisfactory. February 14, for instance, we received over 3,000 cash orders, with cash receipts of nearly $12,000. March and April are, of course, our biggest months and as stated above, we expect that this is going to be a very late season. We feel confident that it will be a good season."

Philadelphia Seed Trade.

G. D. Clark, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., reports the active demand for flower and vegetable seeds which started a month ago in the south is moving north and gaining strength as the season advances. There has also been a good demand from commercial growers for seeds of all kinds of bedding stock. Mr. Clark declares Petunia Rosy Morn is the best all round bedding plant, bar none. He also strongly recommends Dwarf Salmon Rose zinnia as a splendid florists' cut flower for summer.

Paul Richter, of Henry F. Michell Co., Inc., is cautious against putting Paper White narcissus in cold storage, as it is almost sure to kill the flowers. It is best to store the cases in a cool place, not below 50 degrees and make plantings every two weeks. It does not matter if the bulbs start to show shoots, this will not hurt their flowering qualities. C. H. Gloeckner, of the seed department, reports the demand opening up very strong, large mail orders coming daily and the counter trade already showing response to their catalogue offerings.

Referring to the frost damage to freesia bulbs in California, it is said here that the plantings of freesias were much heavier than ever before and that if all had matured, there would have been a greatly over-stocked market.

The Robert Buist Co is much encouraged with business, particularly the southern trade, which shows an increase over that of a year ago.

Grass Seed Exports and Imports.

A few markets quoted timothy and Kentucky bluegrass a little higher on February 4 than on January 28. Exports during the week from Baltimore and New York amounted to 30,200 pounds of timothy to Scotland, 13,000 pounds of redtop to Denmark, and 19,200 pounds of Kentucky bluegrass to Great Britain. The export demand for redtop is reported to be good, for Kentucky bluegrass fair to good, and for timothy seed only fair. A report from Scotland, dated January 23, indicated a decline in orchard-grass prices, due to an underestimation of the Danish crop, and a shortage of fancy quality rye-grass seed. During the week ending February 4 about 33,300 pounds of orchard grass arrived in New York from Denmark.

Producing Grapes at a Profit.

The New York agricultural experiment station, through tests conducted at its vineyard laboratory at Fredonia, for the period of 1915-1919, shows that the average cost of production in three vineyards was $74.13 per acre and $40.58 per ton of grapes. The average net profit was $66.34 per acre, the net profit per ton being $26.31.

Cornus Florida.

Cornus florida, which adds so much to the woodland beauty of eastern North America from southern New England to Texas, was covered here last autumn with inflorescence-buds which appear during the summer on short stems at the end of the branchlets between the upper pair of leaves, and consist of a cluster of minute flower-buds enclosed in four scales, which are brown and more or less hairy during the winter; in spring the stalk of inflorescence lengthens from a quarter of an inch to an inch and a half, and the scales which have protected the flower-buds open and expand, turn pure white and form a flat corolla-like cup from three to four inches in diameter. The enlarged pure white scales which surround the flower-clusters are the conspicuous part of the inflorescence, for the flowers themselves are minute and yellowgreen. On many of the trees this spring in the neighborhood of Boston the white scales are discolored by dirty red-brown streaks which make the trees, seen from a short distance, appear pink. The cause of discoloration is not evident, although it may have been caused by the cold of Easter Monday, following several days of unseasonably hot weather. At that time, however, the inflorescence-buds of Cornus florida had scarcely begun to swell. Whatever the cause of the injury its occurrence this year, when there is an unusual bloom, is doubly unfortunate, for the flowering dogwood often loses its flower-buds entirely in New England as we are close to the northern limit of the range of distribution of this tree, which further south flowers more profusely and develops larger bud-scales. Forms of this tree with the scales which surround the flower-clusters varying in color from light to dark red (var. rubra) occasionally occur in southern woods, and some of these forms, have been propagated by nurserymen and are popular garden plants, especially in the neighborhood of Philadelphia, where there are many specimens of the "red-flowered dogwood." Several plants of this variety are now blooming by the shores of Jamaica Pond in Boston, where they are flowering more abundantly than usual, for the flower-buds of this variety appear to be less hardy than those of the typical form. This is unfortunate, for when the red and white flowered trees are planted together in masses they pro-

EXCELLENT ST. VALENTINE'S DAY TRADE.

St. Valentine's Day trade was exceptionally good. Coming, as it did, on Tuesday, it gave patrons Saturday and Monday to make purchases in advance. Plants went better than cut flowers, but corsages of violets, roses and orchids were in demand. Carnations sold well.

NOTES.

The local florists were all exonerated by the grand jury last week relative to the theft of Christmas trees on city property, which was recorded in last week's notes.

James Vick's Sons has added canary birds to its seed department. The firm's spring catalogue is in much demand.

Geo. Kramer is now employed at Salter Bros.' East Main street establishment. The company is featuring a pleasing display of cherry blossoms and forsythia in its windows.

Felix Alberts featured a novel and unique St. Valentine's Day display consisting of logs of cedar bark, filled with crocus in the foreground. A bouquet of miniature kewpies mounted on green twigs entwined with baby ribbon helped to make an attractive picture.

John Volmer and wife are rejoicing in the arrival of a bouncing baby boy.

Colatus Bros. recently purchased a new auto delivery car.

A fine valentine trade was reported by J. B. Keller & Sons.

H. E. Wilson reported good sales for the holiday.

Visitors: Stephen Green, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia; Milton Silenka, of Schloss Bros., Ribbons, Inc., New York; Robert Greenlaw, Philadelphia. CHESTER.

duce when in flower a brilliant effect. There is a form of Cornus florida with pendulous branches, and another on which the flowers are called double from the presence of an inner row of white inflorescence-scales. These abnormal forms, however, have little to recommend them to the lovers of handsome trees. Cornus florida is as handsome in the autumn as it is in spring for the upper surface of the leaves turns bright red, the lower surface retaining its pale summer tint, and the abundant clusters of scarlet lustrous fruits are conspicuous and beautiful. Not less beautiful in autumn are two trees with bright yellow fruit which have recently been found, one near Oyster Bay, Long Island, and the other in North Carolina.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, May 18, 1921.

EAST VIEW, N. Y.—Otto and Henry Schmesing, brothers, of Nassau county, recently discharged from prison here, won the prison prize for gardening, and each left with $100, the profits from produce sold during their eight months' confinement.

COLUMBUS O.—The Columbus Market Gardeners' Association was recently organized here for all local market gardeners. Officers were elected as follows: J. Fornoff, president; Otto Vick, first vice president; F. Distlehorst, second vice president; Carl J. Olpp, secretary, and George Goodfleisch, treasurer.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 21.—Cucumbers, per crate, $7; head lettuce, per crate, $4 to $6; carrots, $5 to $6 per barrel; cabbage, $1.50 to $2.75 per 100-pound sack.

New York, February 17.—Cucumbers, $2 to $2.75 per dozen; mushrooms, per three-pound basket, $.85 to $1.50; radishes, 100 bunches, $3 to $8; tomatoes, per pound, 20 to 55 cents; lettuce, one dozen bunches, $1 to $1.75; beet tops, per basket, $2.

Vegetable Movement.

WEEK OF FEBRUARY 13-18.

Potato movement declined nearly 400 cars, and values are falling off, New York sacked round whites selling at 15 to 35 cents less at Philadelphia, closing at $2 to $2.15 per 100 pounds. Growers in Colorado and Idaho received 90 cents to $1 for Rurals, a loss of five to 10 cents.

Sweet potato prices continue to decline, New Jersey yellow varieties selling to Chicago jobbers at $2.50 per 100 pounds, a decline of 25 cents, and Delaware and Maryland stock fell off to a level of $1.50 to $2 in eastern centers. Tennessee Nancy Halls lost 15 cents in consuming markets, closing at $1 to $1.25 per bushel.

Florida celery, in 10-inch crates, declined 25 cents in middlewestern markets, selling at $2.50, but held firm at New York.

Texas spinach was in poor demand in consuming markets at $1.25 to $1.75 per bushel.

Onion supplies show a decrease in the previous week's movement, which was 254 cars. Prices are well maintained, Eastern Yellow Globes advancing 15 to 25 cents in Atlantic seaboard markets, to a level of $8 to $8.65. At Kansas City, middlewestern yellows showed a slightly weaker tone, closing at $6.75 to $8.25.

Barrelled apple movement is rapidly declining which is more than offset by the heavy shipments of boxed stock, which total 51,000 cars for the season. Rhode Island Greenings closed strong at New York at $12 to $12.50 at New York. Northwestern fancy boxed Winesaps show a firm tone in middlewestern markets, having been sold to jobbers at $2.35 to $2.60 per box.

New cabbage movement is heavy, 365 cars having been rolled during the week. The supplies of old stock is rapidly decreasing, falling off 118 cars. New York Danish type showed a dull tone at New York and Philadelphia, closing at $28 to $38 per ton. Florida Wakefield also was in poor demand in city markets, bringing $1 to $1.25 per 1½ bushel hamper.

FUNERAL WORK VERY BRISK.

Market conditions have been very satisfactory the past few weeks and there has been a very good supply of flowers, with the exception of roses, although surplus stocks were not reported large. Funeral work has been plentiful, there being a great many deaths in this city and vicinity from the grip, pneumonia, etc. A few weddings were reported. Social affairs have been rather numerous. Local dealers are looking forward to a good business during the Easter season and they expect a plentiful supply of flowers. Violets of fine quality have been in very good demand. Sweet peas also are selling well and the call for roses is brisk. Pot plants are selling well, as the spring season for that sort of stock has opened up. Dealers say that their trade for February has been the equal if not better than it was during the corresponding period of last year, and they are expecting a good March business.

NOTES.

George Blackman, of the William Blackman Floral Co., and wife will attend the National Flower Show to be staged at Indianapolis, March 25-April 1. Louis L. Kleitz, of the Lockyear Floral Co., also will attend. The Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce has requested the local chamber to assist in creating an interest in the coming exhibition.

Florists at Henderson, Owensboro and Hopkinsville, Ky., and other cities in western and northern Kentucky, report that their trade for the past month has been very good and that they are looking forward to a fine Easter season trade.

The Niednagel Floral Co. has removed its greenhouses on Lincoln avenue to the opposite side of the street and improvements are being made to the plant.

Methods in Floral Arrangement.

Address by Charles Henry Fox, of Philadelphia, Pa., at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., Farmers' Week, February 16.

Important Subject Thoroughly Considered

My Good Friends,
Ladies, Gentlemen and Honored Members of the Faculty:

I am very happy to be with you today. I feel signally honored to have been chosen as one of your speakers and I will go away from here very much benefitted and inspired by the great work you are doing.

Need of School.—I have long felt the need of just such a school as you have here, a school that would teach the technique as well as the practical and commercial side of horticultural work.
Some 10 years ago, I established a school within our own organization.
We called it the Sign of the Rose School of Art and Nature. We advertised in the Florists' Review and the Fra Magazine, the latter being published right near here in East Aurora, N. Y. As a result of this advertising we had replies from all over the country. When it came to checking up we found that 90 per cent of the applicants came from cultured, refined homes.

Standard.—That was just what I was looking for. I wanted to raise the standard of our business and to do this I felt that the student should have a fair education and a serious desire to learn the business from the bottom up, being taught the why's and where-fore's as he progressed. We selected our students and then proceeded to give them oral instruction in a regular class-room, occupying from one to two hours each day.

Business Charts.—During this time we prepared charts showing how flowers should be cared for, including the cutting, preparation and putting up for sale. Practical demonstrations were given in all departments and the students were encouraged to ask questions and make suggestions.

Stemming.—From the stemming we went into the proper receptacles to be used and the results to be obtained from certain color combinations, leading up to the psychology of color and the general arrangement.

Color Arrangement.—We took great care to teach the student what kind of flowers, for instance were suitable for a morning wedding, an evening wedding and that certain arrangements were necessary for a catholic or a Jewish wedding. In other words, the flower arrangement, the color scheme and all that pertained to the decoration must be in perfect keeping with the surroundings.

Bridal Table.—We would arrange and discuss a bridal table and a suitable decoration for a buffet luncheon as well as the proper thing for a debutante tea. The dignified arrangement for a formal banquet table was thoroughly discussed.

Corsage.—Then there was the corsage to be talked over, whether it was to be worn on the street, at a dance, or for the opera. So we went right down the line of regular work. Just such work as would come in the day of any florist.

Nine Months' Course.—What happened? Well, in nine months we turned out workers who were skillful, not only with their fingers but with their heads, and knew more than the ordinary person who had worked in a flower shop for four or five years.

Why? Because it was not a hit or miss method. They started at the bottom and learned that certain combinations produced certain results; that this was right and that was wrong; that there was a definite reason why certain color schemes and arrangements were beautiful and artistic, while others were clumsy and ineffective. One followed definite rules; the other was a matter of chance.

Charge $200 for the Course.—We made a nominal charge of $200 for the course. This was done to make the student realize that he was paying for the time he was using and must therefore make the best of it. He was made to understand that the rough came with the smooth, and potting with all its dirt and disorder was just as necessary to learn as the arrangement of a rose vase or beautiful table decoration.

Knockers in Business.—Of course there were the usual knockers in the business, the florist who thought we were getting rich at the expense of the student, but those who saw fit to look into it, found that we were striving to raise the standard of the business by enlisting earnest reliable workers who were naturally fitted for the work, instead of drawing continually from the rank and file, who were in many cases in the florists business because they couldn't help it.

Three Seasons.—We continued the school for three seasons. During that time we had applications and students from all over the country, sons and daughters of florists, bankers and manufacturers, and they all felt that their time had been well spent.

Gave up School.—Then our business began to crowd us. We felt that we had neither the time nor the space to enlarge our activity along this line, and so we were forced to give it up entirely. Surely there is a great need for just such a school on a large scale today, a school that will not only give the student the art and practise of the business, but one that will make the artist a practical business man as well.

Sheldon Course.—We also taught the Sheldon course of salesmanship. How many florists today know just what their work is costing them? I talked with a man after the Christmas holidays who told me he had put in a novelty for Christmas which he prepared in his own store.

Production Cost.—He said to me, "I judged that the article would cost me 65 cents and made my plans to sell it on that basis. When I came to balance up I found that it had really cost me a little over $1 and my profits were halved accordingly." Now if he had been properly trained he would have found that out before he sold it rather than afterward.

F. T. D. Florist School.—I am looking forward to the establishment of just such a school by the organization that has, in my opinion, done more real good toward the advancement of the retail florist than any other, the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association. The F. T. D. has, first of all, raised the standard of the florists; has brought them together in order that they might work in harmony and drop all selfish aims. We have had brought home to us through this wonderful association what we have always known, but some times failed to practice, that we only get by giving and the dividends of today are but the friendships of yesterday.

Public Confidence.—It has done more than this—it has established in the mind of the public a great and lasting confidence, by holding sacred the trust of a brother florist, whether he be in San Francisco, Calif., or across the ocean. A trust which delivers full value at any cost and carries with it a determination to always make good, even though he may never see the florist or the one who makes the purchase. The Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association expects him to be true to his trust and the fact that over $8,000,000 worth of business was transacted in this way last year, when business along other lines was not especially brisk, speaks for itself.

"Say It With Flowers."—Yes, and every day of the 365 days of the year and never lose sight of the fact there is no end to the possibilities of this slogan.

Right along that line I have brought with me from the good old "Quaker Town" a few articles in order that I may show you how we "Say It With Flowers" in Philadelphia. We have analyzed the flower business and find it is made up of three things, impression, sentiment and sympathy.

Impression.—We find that the first and most important point in our business is impression, so I shall now try to show you how we create impression from one month to the other by making our flower boxes outwardly attractive. It is September and a box is ready for delivery. On the top carefully arranged, you find a bunch of cat tails and golden-rod and the eye is placed from the time the box is first seen until the last flower is taken out. "Too pretty to open" is what we hear on all sides.

Then October, with its quota of chestnut burrs and autumn leaves. Surely a dainty touch suggestive of the first frost and the tang of fall.

In December, the holly and pine cone come to the fore, while February with its golden forsythias and other blossoms is equally attractive.

For Easter we have the bird's nest nestled among the gnarled branches and this has always been very much admired. So each month contributes its fitting tribute and the box goes on its way doubly attractive. The first impression one receives of a box of flowers when opened is very lasting and so we take great care in the placing and arrangement of the box, so that they may appear to the best advantage.

Sentiment.—So much can be expressed with flowers. They express a sentiment as nothing else can and I have in mind a table decoration which was made for a luncheon given in honor of a very popular opera singer. It was in March, so we named it the "Song of the Violet."

Sympathy.—Then again sentiment takes the form of sympathy. From the days of the Greek when he honored his dead by strewing their graves with laurel wreaths and acacia until the present, flowers have been the greatest comfort in time of sorrow. Time meant less to the ancient Greek in making up wreaths and casket covers than it means to us. Time is our greatest factor, and while we have none the less love and sympathy we have less time, and so we must devise ways and means to get through with our work quickly.

Pillow Basket.—With this in mind I conceived the pillow basket, so constructed that it can be arranged in 15 minutes by any florist and be a real work of art when finished.

Flowers in Water, Keeping Qualities.

—Just think of it, no flowers to stem, no frame to moss, no wiring to do, every flower on its own stem and every stem in water. This not only means a great saving of time, but a saving of worry, for a delivery made on Saturday would be in fine condition several days later. So the Sunday funeral bug-bear is eliminated. Surely a great help toward Sunday closing in which I am a firm believer. I will now demonstrate for you the pillow basket; I made one in 9½ minutes in Toronto, Ont., so take out your watches and see if I am up to record time.

Concrete Columns.—To add a character to a dinner table decoration, say for the Italian ambassador, the Knights of Columbus or an archaeological dinner, or a dinner that has to do with Latin students of any sort, we use a bit of old Rome, the Roman column, an exact replica of the Roman forum. This at once in combination with flowers gives it distinction and character. This is just one of the many things that you can use to make a dinner distinctive and appropriate for the occasion.

F. T. D. at Baltimore.—I hope these demonstrations have been helpful. If there are any questions I shall be glad to answer them. I hope to see you all next October at the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association business meeting in Baltimore, Md. On your way stop over at the "Sign of the Rose" in Philadelphia and let us show you our wonderful park and last but not least our beautiful suburbs.

Come to Philadelphia.—There you will see good old Philadelphians who are "Saying It With Flowers" and letting the world enjoy it with them. So come prepared to agree with us that the "City of Brotherly Love" isn't a half bad place after all.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The after dinner speaker, whose hearers are for the most part frequently the same, has to have some new ideas, some new stories or different themes which will by their novelty, interest and hold his audience. The same topics and stories, no matter how good, would fall flat the second time; it would be much the same as reading yesterday's newspaper which one tosses aside the moment they find something familiar.

This situation holds good in the flower shop. Visitors and customers come in expecting to see something different from what they saw before; if the setting is the same the plants and flowers displayed in the usual manner with nothing novel to catch the eye, they are disappointed and the question is frequently asked. "Is there nothing else? I am tired of roses and carnations."

The mistake is not so much in the flowers as it is in the setting, the keeping to the front and featuring staple stocks in the many different ways it is possible to show them to good advantage. Vase baskets, with or without handles, hampers, etc., in their self or duo tone colorings, will show flowers off with but little arranging to great advantage. They can also be sold from these receptacles the same as the tins or fibre jars, and much easier because of their more artistic appearance.

CLEAN, ORDERLY STORE EFFECTIVE.

When a cluttered room is tidied and put in order it has a neat, inviting appearance, restful to the eye and a pleasure to occupy. The difference is even greater in the store where, in a clean orderly surrounding the visitors find fresh plants and flowers well displayed, they give their orders with confidence, feeling certain that in such a well-regulated establishment they will get the best of service.

A change in the arrangement of the display tables, the cheval glass or mirror, or the plants that give their decorative effect to the front of the establishment, will take but a short time to arrange and is sure to be noticed and favorably commented on by customers. All this is necessary to make an impression and give the patrons what they expect, novelty in flowers or their arrangement.

Are your cut flower purchases made by personal inspection or over the phone? The telephone has lifted much of the drudgery of business, but perfect as it is in its instantaneous service, it lacks one thing—it is impossible to see with it. Buyers should visit the cut flower market at least once a day so as to get and keep posted on the stock that is coming in, its quality, prices, etc. If the proprietor cannot spare the time, then someone should be given in charge of this important service, who, whether in or out should always be in touch with the shop and ready for instant action. The man who is in the market is in a much better position than the person at the other end of a wire. The first can see at a glance the quality of the stock and sensing the market conditions knows the price, while the other, though perhaps not being taken advantage of, does not do as well as if on the ground.

SPRING FLOWERS SHOULD BE FEATURED.

Now is the time to feature spring flowers, daffodils, sweet peas, calendulas, tulips, pansies and violets. These can be artistically arranged in cut flower boxes of various size and labeled, one for "Sweethearts," "For Mother," "For Her Birthday," "For the sick room,"

"To Take Home with You," etc., and all priced. It's the vim and enthusiasm that is put into a movement of this kind that makes it go. Just a box or two without prices, and put up in doubt as to whether they will go or not, will make very little impression. When successfully carried out the business created is all new trade that would have been missed had the bid not been made for it.

In all successful storekeeping in other lines the moment a lull appears to be commencing the manager is at once on the job with attractions to counteract and start things going again. The interest must be kept up and the stock moved at all hazards. The flower business offers just as much opportunity as has the tailor, milliner, druggist, or confectioner and any other line that keeps things moving by special sales and attractive displays that forces their shop into the public eye, which would otherwise pass it by without notice.

Flowering bulbous pots and pans of tulips, hyacinths and daffodils are good stock to carry at this time. Attractively decorated with suitable covers and the addition of pussy willow sprays they have a gift look that once suggests a purpose to which they may be put and the sale is made. A plant basket or two of foliage and flowering stock for those who want something more elaborate, is a good addition to the list and standing around they help to give a decorative effect to the store.

A good stunt that livenes matters in the late afternoon is to bunch, or rather to collect six or a dozen short roses with a little green and wrap in a cornucopia of wax paper, so that the flowers show to good advantage. The same may be done with calendulas or bunches of sweet peas. These are then piled up in the show window on several large plateaus, each flower by itself. A good sized card advises, "Take one home with you, 25 cents each." If the weather permits, they may be placed either side the door outside, and will move off rapidly. It is the handy package, the suggestion, or "take it home" idea and that would have been lost without the low price that does the trick. Do not forget that this is all new business that would have been lost without the bid made for it.

Cement Instead of Grass.

A lady in Los Angeles Calif., has got her name in nearly all the papers through having devised what she calls a cement lawn. Instead of turf, she has a layer of cement over her yard, with holes cut here and there for trees and shrubs. The cement is painted green and the lady expresses herself as quite satisfied, since there is no longer any watering or mowing to be done.

Thus she gets great renown in return for very little ingenuity. All she did was eliminate grass in order to save labor. The same idea is back of the gas fireplace, the bouquet of imitation flowers, the dickey and the celluloid collar. It accounts for the popularity of pills as a short cut to health in place of the more arduous route of physical exertion and sensible diet.

Most really pleasant things require bodily effort for their maintenance. This is particularly true of pleasant things about a house. Cement would free us of a lot of work, if used for all purposes. Cement furniture would not have to be kept polished and free from scratches. Cement floors would require little effort in the upkeep. And so on indefinitely. But how many want to live in a cement world?—Spokane Spokesman Review.

THE CARNATION.

Care of Flowering Stock.

Flowering stock should be kept up to the highest possible standard of health in order that it may be able to withstand the warm days coming, especially those south of the Pennsylvania state line. Just what this standard is will depend on the individual grower. If there is a surplus of foliage covering the ground and keeping out the air and sunshine, it will pay to get rid of some of it. This can be done by hand picking or cuttings and is especially necessary if there are any decayed leaves at the bottom of your plants.

If you follow this advice, bear in mind that the plants should not be watered or syringed for at least three or four days afterward. This is a very necessary precaution in order that the abrasions may have time to naturally heal up and be impervious to moisture, otherwise you may start decay and be worse off than if you had left your plants alone.

Feeding should be followed up in small doses and regularly, say once every three weeks, using what you have found gives the best results in your soil. Pulverized sheep manure, pulverized cow manure or a good brand of pure bone make the best and safest fertilizer to use, unless you have had experience in using chemical manure; in this latter case you will probably get more value for your money with the chemical manure. There can be no set rules laid down for feeding as some soils require much less than others and there is more danger from overfeeding than underfeeding. It will pay you to experiment and get just the right method for your particular soil as this is one-third of the road to success.

Watering is another third and here again soils vary so much in texture that it is impossible to give any but a little general advice, and that is water when needed and do not be afraid to spend a bit of time in keeping the beds or benches evenly watered. If there are some spots that require watering and others not, pick out the dry spots and give them what they need, but do not water the whole bench to save time. Time is money only when properly used.

Temperatures in March are very irregular and your ventilation will require special attention. Do not expect a day temperature of 80 or 90 and a night temperature of 40 degrees to do the trick; keep the fires going as long as your night temperature drops to 45 degrees or lower and give all the air possible during the day.

CUTTINGS.

It is not too late to take cuttings of any variety of which you may be short of stock. March cuttings should be carefully selected for health and strength, as their growing period is shortened at least a month. Even with this handicap March propagations often supersede earlier stock as they have a steady continuous growth that some of the earlier stock sometimes does not have.

There are many methods for handling cuttings after they are rooted. The majority pot them and this seems the logical method if they are not allowed to become pot bound before they are planted out. Both top and root development require constant and unchecked growth to give the best results. Others plant them in beds and cut them out in blocks when ready to reset. This is a good method where soil and other conditions are right. Stock by either method should be grown cool with a superabundance of ventilation. There is nothing so conducive to the health of your young stock as fresh air.

CUT FLOWERS.

Here you are getting to the point where increased production (owing to the longer and brighter days) lowers the price following that inevitable rule of supply and demand. Your only remedy is to make quality the first consideration and in sending your flowers to the market select them to the limit, making two or three grades if necessary. The grower who can put fine flowers having long keeping qualities on the market during March is the man who can command the top prices when Easter comes along. Be good and you will be lonesome does not apply in this case. Be good and you win a reputation for your stock that will bring in returns, making your summer vacation anything you desire.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW EXHIBITS.

The members of the American Carnation Society are urged to stage a large exhibit of carnations at the Fifth National Flower Show, which will be held at Indianapolis, March 25-April 1. Kansas City Convention.

President S. S. Pennock, Secretary John Young and Treasurer J. J. Hess, of the Society of American Florists, met at Kansas City, Mo., February 9, with a committee of the Kansas City Florists' Club, of which T. J. Noll is president, to make arrangements for the society's convention to be held there, August 15-17. Convention hall, where the meeting will take place, contains about 20,000 square feet of floor space, giving ample room for the trade exhibits, and a seating capacity for 500 people, near the entrance of the building. The officers of the society were highly pleased with the arrangements. They found the hotel accommodations fully adequate, many of the hosteleries being but two blocks from the hall. The Commercial Club of Kansas City has assured the full co-operation of its organization and a successful meeting is anticipated. It is being planned to hold the meetings of the state florists' associations of Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas, at the same city, August 14, the day preceding the opening of the national society convention, which will greatly augment the attendance.

PLANT NOTES.

Sweet Peas from Cuttings.

New sweet pea varieties being always expensive and not always seedling freely, multiplication by cutting may be made to increase the production from a certain amount of seed four or five fold. First of all, the mother plants must be grown short and stocky, for cuttings from weak plants would be worthless. When the plants are four to five inches high and have five to six joints, make the cuttings with a good pair of scissors, just above the third joint. Scissors are better than a knife, on account of the fibrous stems, which, resisting the knife, are apt to tear or pull the roots. Remove the leaves from the cutting, except the upper two, and pot in sand in thumb-pots, taking care to place them near the edge. Water before and after potting and cover with glass; wipe the glass now and then, to remove superfluous moisture, and shade if too hot, though the cuttings like the light. They will be rooted in two or three weeks, when the glass may be removed, and a week later they may be repotted and treated the same as seedlings, well cared for, and will bloom and give the same results about the same time.

Easter Lilies.

The one important crop to the plantsman at this time is the lilies for Easter, for they must be properly timed to be at their best on that date. Easter this year comes April 16, and most growers like to see buds on their plants six weeks before that time. If the buds are not showing, the temperature will have to be increased to 70° at night. This will do the plants no harm if they have good sunlight during the day and are given all the ventilation possible, but the ventilators should not be opened unless the sun is shining and the thermometer at least at the same degree as the night temperature, and avoid all draughts possible, for the plants grown so warm are very tender. It is next to impossible to bring a lot of lilies in all together, so it is better to grow them so the slowest ones will be in on time, and move those that are more advanced into a cooler house and retard them, but this should not be done until the buds are nearly full grown. A lily retarded when the buds are forming is very difficult to start into active growth again, but after the first buds begin to turn white the plants can be moved into a house of 50° or lower and they come on slowly and will be of better quality than those grown warmer. The plants should be all tied to a neat stake as soon as the buds form, if not already done, for the buds add considerable weight to the top of the stems and they bend over very quickly. When the buds form, if the plants are pot bound, a watering of liquid manure will increase the size and substance of the flower. It will be a continual fight against aphids from this time on, and fumigation or spraying with nicotine will have to be regularly and continually practiced to bring the plants into bloom in the best condition.

Violets.

With the approach of spring the violet plants grow rapidly and quantities of runners will spring from the old stools and propagation of the runners at this time will save much time and room later in the season when the spring stock is insistently demanding space, and much better plants are procurable from cuttings taken now than from divisions in May, when the days are often warm and the plants more or less exhausted. And if the young stock is procured now the old plants can be thrown out as soon as through blooming, securing available room at once. These runners or laterals root easily at this time in a propagating bench or can be taken off with a few small roots and either potted or placed in flats and will take but little room, and as early as possible placed in a cold frame. Treated in this manner, splendid stock may be obtained for planting out early, either in the field or in the houses, and with good strong stock to start with much better results are sure to be attained than by being obliged to plant small, weak stock later in the year. As the warm days approach the houses will need to be shaded, for the sun bleaches the flowers, and a watering of liquid manure will greatly assist in maintaining the size of the blooms and also keeping up the color.

Mignonette.

The grower will always find some plants in his beds of mignonette that produce exceptionally large spikes of bloom; the plants are more vigorous in foliage or the blooms of better form, and these spikes that show special characteristics should be selected and the seed saved, and in this way the grower can produce a strain which, after two or three years' selection, will be far ahead of any seed he can buy. This seed should, however, be saved before the bees and other insects are flying around and attracted to the houses, for they will cross-fertilize the flowers with undesirable strains. The seeds of mignonette do not ripen all at once, and as the pod remains open the ripe seed falls out and is lost, so special preparation must be made to receive it. Select the spikes that are to be saved for seed and tie them to strong stakes and mark them. The flowers should then be cross-fertilized by rubbing a camel's hair brush up and down the flowers. This should be done every bright day, so as to secure a thorough pollination. To catch and hold the seed, take a piece of heavy brown paper and roll it into a cone shape, and after winding a piece of cotton around the stem and stake below the flowers tie the small end of the cone-shaped paper around the cotton, the paper spreading upwards so as to catch all the seeds that drop out of the seed pods. This can remain until all the seed has ripened, and as the spike grows, the cross-fertilization continues, but care should be taken that no water gets into the paper to wet the cotton, and the seed must be gathered before the days become so warm that insects and bees are in the houses.

MOTHER.

We are getting along into the New Year so let us think of one of the greatest of all human beings, mother, for the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.

In celebrating the day which we have designated let us make it the most sacred of all days and a day that we can give to her not one designated flower but let us give her any kind of flower, or better yet a plant.

You can readily understand that one's mother thinks of a plant when you watched her taking care of same. The idea of specifying a certain flower like the carnation which has been difficult to obtain makes it better for the florist and the consumer to have any kind of flower represented for Mothers' Day. So let us make this a world wide day for mother with a gift of the above kind within the reach of any individual.

THE S. A. F.

Fifth National Flower Show.

It is gratifying to learn from the recent letters which are coming in from Indianapolis, that everyone is responding so wonderfully to the support of the forthcoming National Flower Show to be held March 25-April 1. Particularly is this so of the exhibitors, who one after another are coming across in fine shape.

We feel that everyone who exhibits at this show will be repaid in more ways than one; the satisfaction of being a part of such a successful undertaking, and besides, this, each one who does exhibit is bound to be benefited. So we want the support of those who have not already made up their minds definitely to exhibit, whether small grower or large grower.

Everyone in the business owes it to himself and to horticulture to do everything in his power to make this great Fifth National Flower Show an assured success.

S. S. PENNOCK.

Reduced Railroad Fare to Indianapolis.

A rate of a fare and one-half for the round trip for members of the Society of American Florists and affiliated organizations, attending the adjourned meeting of the society in Indianapolis, in connection with which the Fifth National Flower Show is held, has been granted by the Central Passenger Association, and the Trunk Line Association, and the arrangement will be concurred in by the other passenger associations. The rebate is conditional upon 350 making the trip, including members and dependent members of their families.

The rebate is made upon the certificate plan, and the following directions are submitted:

First—Tickets at the regular one-way tariff fare for the going journey may be obtained on any of the following dates (but not on any other date) March 22-28, for Central and Trunk Line territory. Be sure that, when purchasing your going ticket, you request a certificate. Do not make the mistake of asking for a receipt.

Second—Present yourself at the railroad station for ticket and certificate at least 30 minutes before departure of train on which you will begin your journey.

Third—Certificates are not kept at all stations. If you inquire at your home station, you can ascertain whether certificates and through tickets can be obtained to place of meeting. If not obtainable at your home station, the agent will inform you at what station they can be obtained. You can in such case purchase a local ticket to the station which has certificates in stock, where you can purchase a through ticket and at the same time ask for and obtain a certificate to the place of meeting.

Fourth—Immediately on your arrival at Indianapolis, present your certificate to the endorsing officer, Secretary John Young, (who will sign certificates for all organizations), as the reduced fare for the return journey will not apply unless you are properly identified as provided for by the certificate.

Fifth—Arrangements have been made for validation of certificates by a special agent of the carriers, on March 25-April 5, if the required minimum of 350 certificates is presented.

Sixth—No refund of fare will be made on account of failure to either obtain a proper certificate nor on account of failure to have the certificate validated.

Seventh—So as to prevent disappointment, it must be understood that the reduction on the return journey is not guaranteed, but is contingent on an attendance of not less than 350 members of the organization at the meeting and dependent members of their families, holding regularly issued certificates obtained from ticket agents at starting points, showing payment of regular one-way tariff fare of not less than 67 cents on going journey.

Eighth—If the necessary minimum of 350 certificates is presented to the special agent as above explained, and your certificate is duly validated, you will be entitled up to and including April 5, to a return ticket via the same route over which you made the going journey, at one-half the regular one-way tariff fare from the place of the meeting to the point at which your certificate was issued.

Ninth—The return ticket issued at the reduced fare will not be good on any limited train on which such reduced fare transportation is not honored.

For information in regard to routing and stopovers make inquiry of your home station agent.

Preparations Well Advanced.

The work of preparation for the National Flower Show is remarkably well advanced. The local committees are well organized, and, owing to the emergency nature of most details, there are committees covering every phase of the exhibition. Some of the larger exhibits promised for Cleveland, O., will be staged at Indianapolis along the lines originally planned, among them the following: Bulb gardens, by the Wayside Gardens, West Mentor, O., and Walter E. Cook, Cleveland; rose gardens, by Merkel & Sons, Mentor, O., and the Daisy Hill Farm, Chagrin Falls, O. Another large garden will be staged by the State Florists' Association of Indiana.

Charles Bookwalter, president of the park board of Indianapolis, who was formerly mayor of the city, is giving hearty support in the arrangements for the show. He has promised that there shall be a splendid exhibit of large palms, and foliage plants, from the greenhouses in Garfield park, which greenhouses, by the way, are conceded to be the finest in the middle west. It is also planned to have a reproduction of the Garfield park sunken garden, which will add materially to the picturesque beauty of the show. Mr. Bookwalter has assured the local flower show committee that they will have the fullest co-operation of the Park department in any plan looking to the success of the show, and the department's resources are at the disposal of the committee. Houston Tall, superintendent of parks, has also tendered his heartiest co-operation in carrying out the details of the park exhibits.

The trade in all parts of the country appear to have awakened to the fact that Indianapolis is the logical center for an exhibition of this kind. The trade exhibit section will, in magnitude, compare very favorably with similar sections at previous national flower shows, as is evidenced by the number of applications for space coming in to the secretary, who is now occupying offices in the Chamber of Commerce building. The change from Cleveland to the new location appears to have made very little difference, if any, in the plans of trade exhibitors, and all doubt has been removed as to the ultimate accomplishment of the objects of the National Flower Show committee.

The space taken in the trade section by the A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago, approximates almost 1,000 square feet, and, as previously noted, will be used for the staging of an up-to-date flower shop, containing the latest ideals in the way of auxiliaries and fixtures. The Lord & Burnham Co., Chicago and New York, also are among those who have taken large spaces, their reservation covering 1,000 square feet, in which they will stage a most comprehensive exhibit covering greenhouse construction and equipment.

Final Schedule of Premiums Ready.

The final schedule of premiums is now being distributed, and anyone interested not receiving a copy should make immediate application to the secretary's New York office, 43 West Eighteenth street, for one, or to the secretary's office in Indianapolis as noted above. Plans covering exhibition space are also available.

Season tickets for the show will be furnished to all members of the society in good standing, and will be mailed in about 10 days. It is important that every member see to it that he is in good standing on the society's books, in order that he be entitled to a season ticket.

With the concessions in railroad rates granted by the different passenger associations, there should be a banner attendance from the trade, and with prospects as they are materializing a visit to Indianapolis will certainly be worth while for anyone who wishes to see the latest and best in the florists' trade.

National Publicity Campaign.

Some changes have been made in the contracts placed for March, April and May for advertising in the national magazines. It was deemed advisable to use one column spaces in the magazine selected in order to get the best effect. The magazines chosen, and this will be noted in a subsequent report, give a circulation of approximately 7,000,000, and the publications used are the best in that class. In a few days copies of the advertisements with full particulars as to insertions will be sent to every subscriber to the fund and to the members of the society. All who receive the samples would do well to incorporate as much of the matter of the original advertisements in their local publicity as possible, the idea being to link up with national advertising.

There is no lack of interest in the progress of the campaign as the following report shows:

New York Spring Show.

GRAND CENTRAL PALACE, MARCH 13-19.

Arrangements for the New York spring show are practically completed. The committee is now particularly concerned with details more or less finished but not of great importance. As seen now, the show will outshine all its predecessors, both in quality and magnitude of exhibits. Trade exhibition space available is growing less daily, in fact, what is left could very well be taken into feature service. However, prospective exhibitors making immediate application might still be served.

Innovations will be plentiful this year. Realizing that the public is always interested in anything showing possibilities for a more extended use of flowers, the flower show committee is sparing no effort to create interest. A feature to be inaugurated this year will be found in altar and pulpit decorations. Liberal space has been apportioned to an exhibit demonstrating floral decorations in churches, confined, of course, to the altar and pulpit. Clergy of all denominations have for a number of years regretted the absence of flowers in the services of their different churches and it might be said that the suggestion for this form of exhibit came directly from pastors. The decorations will be carried out by florists, different decorations for each day of the show. The auxiliaries for the various settings will be somewhat standard in character, but the series of exhibits will be wholly undenominational in character.

PRINCESS MARY'S WEDDING BOUQUET.

Another feature will be a duplicate representation of the wedding bouquet of Princess Mary, used at her nuptials in Westminster Abbey, London, February 28. The committee has been in touch by cable with the proper source, and photographic details are expected to be in their hands in time for the exhibit to be staged on the opening day of the exhibition.

The trade is again reminded that all trade tickets will be distributed from the offices of the International Exposition Co., which will now be found at the Grand Central palace, instead of in the Canadian Pacific building, as previously announced, removal to the palace having been effected during this week. The musical programme has been placed in the hands of the Wolfie orchestra, and Miss Gertrude J. Van Deine will again be the prima-donna soprano.

The exhibits of the Garden Club of America promise to be on a greater scale than expected, the interest shown by the different membership clubs being rather remarkable. The list of entries in this section insures that all the space allotted to the section will be filled.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

February 16, during the week of the blizzards and with the groundhog prognosticators going around with their chests thrown out and smilingly, saying, "I told you so," seven of us from Lancaster started out on a visit to the E. P. Hostetter greenhouse establishment at Manheim, Pa. The thermometer registered five to 10 degrees above zero and the wind was blowing the newly fallen snow into huge drifts that appeared as impassable as Mount Blanc. The street cars had the faculty of starting out all right and then hunting trouble all the way to their destination. For a while it appeared that the return trip was in doubt. T. J. Nolan, going to Ephrata on business, was with us all the way, but was unable to return in time for the meeting held later in the evening at Lancaster.

Manheim was reached after considerable delay and digging out of drifts and as we all wanted to see the new sweet peas of Mr. Hostetter's, a bee line was made for the greenhouses, wading through drifts, pioneer fashion, to reach them. The first house was filled with sweet peas and every other one of this large establishment contained that flower in many varieties, but all were completely eclipsed by his new sweet pea, Mrs. E. P. Hostetter, that the beauty and quality of the others was not fully appreciated. Between the pea rows a crop of lettuce was just being cleaned up and in conjunction with it was mile after mile of freesias, perhaps not so good in quality, as if grown in a separate house, but with stems from 12 to 20 inches long. Baby primrose for cutting was being grown in the side beds, which alone in most places would be considered a fair sized establishment. So you can imagine the quantity of these Mr. Hostetter cuts per week. His wife was in Florida at the time, but the sweet pea named for her was in evidence in Manheim.

It is almost impossible to describe this sweet pea without being accused of exaggeration. The color is a pleasing shade of pink, running an average of four flowers to the stem and they averaged not less than 18 inches in length many of them running 22 inches. In size it overtops all the others and the effect is still further enhanced by its beautiful flutation. Some fluted flowers are not beautiful, but this particular sweet pea seems to have just the proper amount to add to its beauty and to size. In habit and growth it slightly exceeds the best of the older varieties; this is, however, characteristic of most newly originated kinds, but taking it all the way through, it marks an advance in sweet peas far ahead of anything else during the past century.

The Shue establishment, which edjoins the Hostetter place, was given a hurried call. A general line of carnations, sweet peas, etc., was in evidence and the stock appeared to be in fine shape. It was the intention of calling at the Call King, Phares Hostetter and Emanuel Hostetter ranges, but the fear of not being able to get back to Lancaster in time for the meeting compelled us to postpone our visit.

MONTHLY MEETING.

Previous to the meeting at the Brunswick hotel a roast beef dinner was served to about 40 members of the association, after which President Harry K. Rohrer conducted a short business session and then turned the meeting over to B. F. Barr, chairman of the programme committee, which had arranged for a social evening.

A selection of topical songs by a glee club, under the leadership of Rev. Harry Ulrich, was an enjoyable feature. This was followed by recitations by John Dechant of the Franklin and Marshall college. Miss Norma Leamen gave a piano solo. The event of the evening was a talk on the determination and unselfishness of Washington and Lincoln and the relation of these principles to our own business and its ultimate success. Just to show that all in this world is not seriousness, one of the members gave a description of an old darky reprobate, his conversion into a minister and his experiences with his flock, keeping the crowd continuously laughing for at least 10 minutes. M. Rosnosky, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, who was with us on the trip to Manheim, gave a short talk at the meeting. Rudolph Nagle reported the afternoon trip.

Secretary Albert M. Herr told about the Hartford, Conn., convention, January 25-27, and regretted that he and his good wife had to represent the entire association and hoped that arrangements would be made soon to attend next winter's meeting in Cincinnati, O., of the American Carnation Society.

The Reading, Pa., florists are to be invited to attend the next meeting, March 16, and President S. S. Pennock, of the Society of American Florists, has kindly consented to bring his travel talk for this meeting. Arrangements will be made to accommodate a crowd, and we hope to have delegations from York, Harrisburg, Lebanon and surrounding smaller towns.

ALBERT M. HERR, Sec'y.

RAHWAY, N. J.—Miss Lena M. Saling, daughter of the late Wm. Saling, will continue the business.

AUSTIN, MINN.—Calvin Kinsman has gone to Miami, Fla., to join Mrs. Kinsman, who has been there since January 1.

AMARILLO, TEX.—The Amarillo Florist is the name of an up-to-date flower store recently opened at 419 Polk street, by A. Alenius, proprietor of the Amarillo Greenhouses.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Henry Smith is building a large show house and flower store in the very central part of town, at the northeast corner of Sheldon and Island streets, facing southwest, and located on a liberal space.

MONTREAL, QUE.—A spring flower show to be staged at the store of the Montreal Floral Exchange, March 6, by the Canadian Gardeners' and Florists' Association and the local Gardeners' and Florists' Club, promises to be a great success. A silver cup for the best exhibit of 25 cut blooms of Darwin tulips, offered by M. Rynveld, a Holland bulb grower, is one of the features.

San Francisco.

BULBOUS STOCK, DAFFODILS SHOW INCREASE.

With the passing of the long spell of cold weather the supply of some kinds of stock has increased, particularly all bulbous flowers and outdoor grown daffodils. Very few offerings of cut roses are in evidence but it is expected that the spring supply will soon be arriving on the market. Business has been very good, especially funeral work, which has created a heavy call for all classes of stock. All short roses clean up at good prices. Fancy Mrs. Chas. Russell and Columbia are arriving more freely with no change in prices. Some splendidly grown Ophelia and Butterfly are to be had. Hadley and Hoosier Beauty are on the short side. High grade carnations show a slight decline in prices due to heavier arrivals. Laddie, however, is scarce, bringing the grower $12 per 100. Few violets are obtainable, and Giant, the chief kind, is poor indeed. Growers do not promise any improvement in violets as the plants suffered greatly during the inclement weather in January. The few sweet peas seen are of excellent quality and clean up at $4 per dozen bunches, the entire lot of this flower coming from one grower, it is stated. Cattelyas are abundant and excellent. Phaelenopsis and oncidiums, in quantity, add to the beauty of florists' windows and prices are firm. Very few gardenias are seen but the growers promise abundant cuttings at an early date. There is an ample supply of lily of the valley, which is among the best sellers. Cut cyclamens have been largely used the past few weeks. Liliun giganteum is more plentiful, with no change in price. The offerings of freesias are diminishing, especially Purity, the stock arriving lacking the quality of a month ago. Dutch hyacinths and tulips have declined in price with increasing supplies, although they sell well. Daffodils are arriving in such large quantities that many of them are going to the street merchants. Prices have shown a sharp decline. Daffodils are the only flower considered cheap at the present time, the main supplies coming from San Leandro and San Lorenzo and they are all outdoor grown. The shipping trade is absorbing quantities of this flower. Acacia is plentiful and cheap, the bright weather having brought it forward rapidly. Fruit trees are now in full blossom. Galax leaves are said to be selling well, wholesale. Pots and pans of tulips and hyacinths continue to make the stores a riot of spring color. St. Valentine's Day in these stocks absorbed quantities of them. In fact all flowering plants cleaned up well for the holiday. Some fine azaleas and rhododendrons were available for the occasion and brought good prices. Cyclamen plants are showing the effect of a long season and do not hold up well. Good primulas and pot grown ericas in variety sell exceptionally well. Genista Racemosa is beginning to appear and is a popular spring plant. All foliage stock is in steady demand and growers report a difficulty in supplying sufficient stock in certain sizes.

At Domoto Bros. greenhouses many thousands of pots of Liliun giganteum are coming along in great shape for the Easter trade. The lateness of the holiday this year, April 16, will enable more crops of this flower to be grown cold than was the case a year ago, thus producing stocks of more substance and vigor.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States court, last week, by Gustav A. Meyer, Burlingame, with assets of $26,663 and liabilities, $30,918. Most of his liabilities represent promissory notes.

ABUNDANCE OF GOOD STOCK.

The market has an abundance of good stock and the opportunity of buying and selling it at a fair price, along with a column of free publicity in one of the local newspapers, helps materially. Well what about the retail stores? The salesmen hear customers tell them how cheaply they can buy flowers on the streets and yet these same people will purchase the same kinds in the shop, all the while protesting. Every florist knows the reason. Good grade of carnations can be bought at $4 to $5 per 100. The best sweet peas bring $3 per 100; shorter grades, $2.50 and down. Roses are holding their own very well at $15 to $25 per 100. Calla lilies bring $2 and $3 per dozen; freesias $2 to $3 per 100 and orchids, $7.50 per dozen. Jonquil prices range from $4 to $6 per 100, which are in good supply as are hyacinths, primulas and cyclamens.

FREE PUBLICITY.

"Spring Flowers Appeal to All;" Lexington Market Stalls Colorful with Blooms which Rich and Poor Alike Can Buy." The above set in large type were headlines of an article appearing in one of the local evening newspapers, recently, and the reading matter below taking up an entire column of space explained the varieties and the prices of the stock. A few sentences here and there from this article are as follows: "Sweet peas ma'am? Quarter a bunch, just cut today," shouts one of the flower vendors. Another: "Freesias, lady? Just smell that! Aren't they fragrant? Quarter a bunch." "Daffodils, ma'am? Twenty-five and 35 cents a bunch. A half dozen to the bunch. They're nice big ones, too!"

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING APRIL 10.

Plans are well under way for the April meeting of the Florists' Club. J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., is to be the speaker. It is hoped that every one in the trade whether a member of the club or not will take advantage of this opportunity and be present on this occasion. It will be an illustrated talk and, of course, it will be ladies' night. Everyone check this date on their calendar and don't fail to be present April 10. There will also be an interesting meeting of the club the second Monday of March. Some very important matters will be discussed at this time.

NOTES.

Robert Schoch, our own "Bob," of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa., was in the city with an excellent line of baskets for Easter delivery, recently.

Local weather conditions are fair and warm, which if they continue will surely affect the Easter supply, for this great date is only six weeks off.

Edwin J. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, Pa., was in town this week calling on his friends of the trade.

ROBERT W. JOHNSTON.

WACO, TEX.—The Waco Wholesale Floral Co. at Garden City, a suburb, was recently purchased by Fred C. Wolfe, proprietor of the Quality Flower Shop, 502 Franklin street, this city. The new addition, comprising 56,000 square feet under glass, will enable Mr. Wolfe to furnish his patrons exceptional service, both wholesale and retail.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y.—The Tarrytown Horticultural Society, at a recent meeting, elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Thos. Wilson, president; Wm. Graham, vice-president; E. W. Neubrand, 47 South Washington street, Tarrytown, secretary; E. W. Neubrand, Jr., asst. secretary; W. G. Weston, rep. secretary, and John Featherstone, treasurer.

OBITUARY.

The Late Benjamin F. Brown.

The late Benjamin Franklin Brown, announcement of whose death appeared in our issue of February 25, page 312, president of the Brown Bag Filling Machine Co., member of the school board and former educator, died February 21, at his home, 27 Myrtle avenue, Fitchburg, Mass., age 72 years. Death was caused by pneumonia, which developed rapidly after Mr. Brown was taken ill February 18.

The death of Mr. Brown came as a distinct shock to his many friends throughout the city, as it was not generally known that he was ill. He was at his office as usual Saturday morning and went home ill about 1 o'clock. His condition became gradually worse until it was apparent, February 20, that the end was not far off.

Mr. Brown was a native of Lowell, Mass., born December 8, 1849, the son of Joseph Brown. He received his early education in the schools of that city and took higher courses in schools at Wolcott, Craftsbury and Woodbury, Vt. He came to Fitchburg April 28, 1866, when 16 years of age. He attended Fitchburg High school for four years. In 1871, he entered Amherst college and won a high position in scholarship and also in athletics. He was a member of a six-oared crew that for many years held the championship. He was graduated from Amherst college in 1874 and for the next seven years devoted his life to education, teaching in various schools and gaining a practical knowledge that served him well in later years. His experience included service at Fitchburg High school.

From 1881 to 1883, Mr. Brown was principal of the Athol High school and for the next two years was principal of the Washington County school at Montpelier, Vt. In 1885, he resigned that position to become an instructor at the Gibson school in Boston. In 1890, he resigned after a successful teaching career and entered into the business of the new Brown Bag Filling Machine Co., becoming its first president.

Being of a natural mechanical turn, he bent every effort to the manufacture of the new machine and the business made rapid strides as the results of the efforts of himself and his brother. For a number of years, the firm held the contract to make the government seed envelopes and distribute them for mailing purposes. The Fitchburg product became known in almost every country of the world.

Mr. Brown married Miss Zephirine Normandin of Slatersville, R. I., July 12, 1880. She died Sept. 26, 1907. Mr. Brown had always taken a deep interest in the affairs of the city, especially in the schools. He was elected to the school board in January, 1917. His private good works were many, although he did them without display. He was a home-loving man, although from his busy life he found time to become actively interested in the fraternal life of the city.

Mr. Brown was a member of Mt. Roulstons lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows; Alpine lodge, Knights of Pythias; Fitchburg lodge of Elks, Fitchburg Chamber of Commerce, the Fay Club, the Fitchburg Rotary Club and the Fitchburg Historical Society. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. F. L. Towne of Ames, Iowa; Mrs. Katherine E. Enfield, who had made her home with him for the past 25 years, and Joseph C. Brown, a brother.

The funeral services were held from the late home, February 23, followed by services at the Forest Hill mausoleum, under the direction of the Odd Fellows.

Frederick J. Roth.

Frederick J. Roth, owner of a floral establishment at 305 East Fifth avenue, Columbus, O., died suddenly at his home in that city, February 25, from a complication of diseases, age 59 years. He first entered the business in 1889, when that section of Columbus was out in the country. Since then Mr. Roth increased the capacity of his greenhouses and installed a retail shop. His father, who came from Germany about the middle of the last century, was also a florist.

Mr. Roth is survived by his widow, a son, Carl, who will succeed him in the business, two brothers and a sister. The funeral services were conducted by The Woodmen of the World, being held from the late residence, March 1. Mr. Roth was also a member of St. Luke's Lutheran church. J. W. L.

Mrs. Lawrence Zender.

It is with deep regret that we announce the death of Mrs. Lawrence Zender, widow of the late Lawrence Zender of Chicago, who passed away at her home, 1615 Thorndale avenue, that city, February 24. Mrs. Zender was the sister of George Reinberg and the late Peter Reinberg and recently inherited a portion of the Reinberg estate. She is survived by a son, Henry A. Zender and a daughter, Mrs. Ada Terwilliger.

The funeral services were held at the late home, March 1, high mass being afterward celebrated at St. Gregory's church. The burial was at St. Henry's cemetery, Chicago.

Rochester, N. Y.

SATISFACTORY MARKET CONDITIONS.

Trade as a rule shows a gradual increase the past few weeks in spite of a few dull days. Bright, sunny weather has brought on an abundance of cut flowers, reducing prices to a great extent. Paper White narcissi and N. Poetaz are not very plentiful but there are heavy offerings of daffodils, tulips, calendulas, freesias and a few Roman hyacinths. Good carnations are being offered and the abundance of roses has greatly decreased the prices. Primroses, cyclamens, cinerarias, pot tulips, hyacinths and daffodils are arriving.

NOTES.

A fine valentine trade was reported by Geo. T. Boucher. He had the decorations for the hardware exhibition at Exposition park, February 20-25. Large palms, ferns and cibotiums were used with artistic effect. Mr. Boucher is cutting hyacinths, daffodils, and narcissi at his range on Penfield road, Brighton.

The packing shed of Glen Bros., nurserymen, was damaged by fire, February 17, to the extent of $300 to $400. The fire was caused from sparks coming from a pile of rubbish being burnt in a nearby lot.

Edwin Wilson, Jr., is financially interested in the moving picture industry at the present time.

The rain and sleet storm, February 22, did considerable damage to fruit and ornamental trees.

J. M. Keller is cutting some excellent lily of the valley at his South avenue greenhouses.

Miss Lillian Wheeler, of H. G. Wilson's store was on the sick list last week.

Visitor: Fred Wallace, Canandaigua, N. Y. CHESTER.

ALBANY, N. Y.—Edw. P. Tracey, proprietor of the Rosery Flower Shop, 23 Steuben street, opened a branch in W. M. Whintney & Co.'s department store, 49 North Pearl street, February 20, with Wm. McGinn and Harry Latham in charge.

AN international flower show will be held at Glasgow, Scotland, beginning August 30 next.

THE annual meeting of the American Dahlia Society will be held at the Pennsylvania hotel, New York, September 26-28.

SEVERAL shippers of perishable stocks, both by freight and express are reported damaged by freezing during the last half of February.

THE receiver for the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, operating at Eureka, Calif., noted a loss on bulbs alone, from April 4, 1919 to June 30, 1921, of $65,000.

KANSAS CITY is trying to secure a special car of florists for the National Flower Show at Indianapolis, March 25-April 1, and it looks as though the movement would succeed.

CHAIRMAN GEORGE ASMUS of the National Flower Show committee, and other practical showmen claim the medium sized cities are better for exhibitions than the larger cities, the people of the former being generally interested in the success of such events, while in the latter, other attractions claim attention.

Chicago Day at Indianapolis.

MONDAY, MARCH 27.

The management of the National Flower Show, of the Society of American Florists, to be held at Indianapolis, Ind., March 25-April 1, has designated Monday, March 27, "Chicago Day," and the Chicago Florists' Club members are sparing no effort to make this the banner day of the show in point of attendance and enthusiasm. Everyone is cordially invited to join the Chicago party, including all in the trade from the north, west and south.

The Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville railroad (Monon route) has been chosen for the trip. The party will leave Dearborn station Polk and Dearborn streets, at 5:30 p. m., Sunday, March 26, due Indianapolis the same evening at 10:30 o'clock.

REDUCED RAILROAD RATES.

A rate of a fare and one-half, on the certificate plan, has been authorized, making the round-trip $9.93. Tickets should be purchased on the going trip at the regular one-way rate and a certificate requested of the agent. Upon reaching Indianapolis the certificate should be signed and stamped by the railway representative at the show which will entitle the bearer to a reduction of one-half the regular fare returning. This arrangement also applies to members of the families of delegates. Certificates will be issued March 22-28, inclusive, and will be validated March 25-April 5, inclusive, owner of return ticket to reach original starting point not later than midnight, April 5. Everyone going must have a certificate to secure the reduced rate returning.

The one way rate is $6.62. Pullman fares are: Parlor car seat, $1.13; lower berth, $3.75; upper berth $3.

Other trains for those unable to accompany the party are given below:

New York to Kansas City.

The transportation committee of the New York Florists' Club, under the chairmanship of Paul Rigo, has accepted the itinerary in connection with the journey to Kansas City and return this coming August, as submitted by the Lackawanna railroad.

Briefly, the party, which is fully hoped to be 100 strong, will leave New York, Sunday, August 13, for Chicago, where a stopover will be made to take in the famous Lake Shore drive and other principal points of interest, returning to the Hotel La Salle for dinner. Departure will be made from Chicago that evening and Kansas City reached on the morning of Tuesday, August 15. While in Kansas City during the Society of American Florists' convention, August 15-17, and the day following, hotel accommodations and three meals per day will be provided. On the afternoon of August 18 the party will leave Kansas City, arriving in St. Paul, Minn., Saturday morning, where points of interest in the Twin Cities will be viewed, leaving St. Paul in the afternoon and arriving at Duluth, Minn., on the evening of August 19.

The Great Lakes steamer trip will commence Saturday night and continue through to Wednesday morning. This sail through the lakes provides the most enjoyable feature of the trip and undoubtedly, will prove the greatest incentive to many. Arriving at Buffalo, N. Y., Wednesday, August 23, special cars will be waiting to whisk the party to Niagara Falls where lunch will be provided at the Hotel Imperial. A tour over the Great Gorge route will be made in the afternoon, returning to hotel for dinner. At 7 p. m. the party will start for home, arriving in New York Thursday morning, August 24, at 8 o'clock. Breakfast will be provided for in the Hoboken terminal.

The cost covering all transportation, lower berths on Pullmans and outside staterooms on boat, also three meals per day, will be $220.

All those intending to go, please notify Chairman Paul Rigo, c/o Henshaw Floral Co., 35 W. Eighteenth street, New York. The earlier the reservation, the choicer the accommodation.

Flowers Versus Dolls.

I have noticed with considerable concern the growing tendency of some florists and supply houses to introduce and stimulate the sale of dolls and other such novelties on St. Valentine's Day in a way that makes the dolls more prominent than the flowers. The short sightedness of this practice should be apparent to the florist, whose living depends on selling flowers.

Does the florist intend to enter into competition with the department stores, novelty shops, cut rate drug stores, art shops, and five and ten-cent stores? Has he deserted the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, the Society of American Florists, and other national and local organizations who have labored for years and spent thousands of dollars in advertising to educate the public to "Say It With Flowers?"

It seems to me that it is time for the florists of the United States to do a little constructive thinking.

St. Valentine's Day, with a little organized effort; a little intelligent advertising, could soon be made to rival Easter and Christmas in the sale of flowers. On no other day in the year could the message to sweethearts, wives, and mothers be more appropriately expressed than in the "Language of Flowers."

The language of flowers is the language of love. It has long been recognized in poetry and song. How sweet is the heart appeal and how beautiful the sentiment in such songs as "Hearts and Flowers," "The Message of the Violet," "In the Heart of a Rose," and hundreds of others.

Let us urge lovers to "Say It With Flowers" instead of paper lace, kewpie dolls, and paper valentines.

SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS.

There seems to be a slight change for the better in market conditions. Although, there is plenty of stock, in fact more than enough to fill all orders, yet the call has increased and helps to relieve the situation somewhat. The out-of-town trade is more brisk than the local but the retailers report a heavy call for funeral work the last few days. Roses, especially Columbia are in good supply, the quality of all being excellent. Carnations too, are in first-class shipping conditions and ought to give satisfaction. Tulips, jonquils, calendulas, sweet peas and callas are plentiful. In fact the only thing that is scarce and hard to obtain is asparagus and the shortage of this has made A. Sprenger the best seller on the market. Violets, orchids and lily of the valley can be readily obtained, also freesias, stocks and pansies.

NOTES.

The Mardi Gras celebration in New Orleans, La., has not created much of a stir in the local market. Some of the wholesalers sent representatives down there to drum up business but evidently the Southerners have gotten out of the habit of celebrating Mardi Gras with flowers from this market and it is difficult to revive the former custom, of the days before the war, when huge quantities of flowers were shipped from here. This year it created barely a ripple in the sea of flowers.

Monday, March 27, will be Chicago and rose day at the National Flower Show, to be held at Indianapolis, Ind., March 25-April 1. The local party will leave Sunday evening, March 26, at 5:30 p. m., on the Monon railroad, Dearborn station, Polk and Dearborn streets, due Indianapolis at 10:30 the same evening. For reservations, address or telephone Herbert Wiley, general agent passenger department, Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville railroad, 606 Merchants' Loan & Trust building, 112 West Adams street. Telephone Harrison 3309.

The favorite indoor sport in the market seems to be picking over ferns. Most of the wholesalers seem to be tired of the endless job not to say anything about the loss of ferns besides. This loss will run into the millions, one concern reporting a loss of over a million ferns, which spoiled, while in storage. No one seems to know, just why the ferns have not kept as well as other years, unless it was the exceptional heat of last summer, that did the damage.

Mrs. Zender, who was a sister of the late Peter Reinberg and inherited one of the ranges of the Peter Reinberg greenhouses, died after only a few days illness of pneumonia, February 24. The funeral services were held March 1. The burial was delayed two days, waiting for the arrival of Mrs. Peter Reinberg and Mrs. Henry Zender from California.

Ernest F. Hoehl, representative of S. S. Skidelsky & Co., is ill with blood poisoning at the Breevoort hotel. While in Milwaukee, Wis., the physicians there treated him for rheumatism but when he arrived in this city the doctors here diagnosed his ailment as blood poisoning.

Mrs. Philip Schupp, wife of Philip Schupp, of the J. A. Budlong Co., leaves for an extended visit to relatives in Boston, New York and Philadelphia.

Vaughan's Seed Store, reports big demand for gladiolus, Mrs. Frank Pendleton and the purple variety, Baron Hulot.

Geo. Reinberg was in bed suffering from a bad cold the day before his sister, Mrs. Zender was to be buried.

Miss Nettie Parker, of A. T. Pyfer & Co., has left the hospital and is back at work, although still crippled from the effects of the automobile accident, February 16. Her many friends rejoice that she has recovered so soon.

At the reorganization meeting of the Allied Florists' Association, held at the Hotel Randolph, February 27, it seemed to be the general opinion that the assessment of retailers for advertising purposes, should be discontinued.

E. F. Winterson says the retailers are putting in their Easter supplies earlier than usual this year. Ove Gnatt of La Porte, Ind., has returned from his trip south and reports business very good.

Wietor Bros. are having an exceptionally large crop of roses just now. N. J. Wietor says that if roses were bringing the price of a year ago, they would coin money.

Ed. Goldenstein, of Vaughan's Seed Store, who returned from Indianapolis, Tuesday, says the National Flower Show work is booming there.

Miss M. Groth, who has a novelty business in the Atlas block, is in Niles, Mich., for a few days.

The A. Henderson Co. is busy getting out its spring catalogue.

Allied Florists' Association of Illinois.

At the meeting of the Allied Florists' Association of Illinois, held at the Hotel Randolph, Chicago, February 27, consideration was given to the matter of reorganization, with a view to discontinuing the assessment of retailers for advertising purposes. Secretary Swenson presented his interesting annual report in part as follows:

From February 24, 1920 to January 31, 1922, receipts amounted to $58,596.95, with a cash balance of $2,232.60 on hand that date.

During the period of March 1, 1921 to January 31, 1922, the association invested $20,462.59 of its funds in advertising. This does not include St. Valentine's Day advertising, which amounts to approximately $2,000 additional. This figure equals approximately $6,000 less than the year previous for the reason last year's report covered a longer period. This advertising investment was distributed as follows: Newspaper advertising and bill boards, $15,000 (including St. Valentine's Day); publicity, $2,641.29; dealers' helps, $830; flowers for publicity, $228.34; Society of American Florists, $3,039.58 (up to February 1).

Twenty-two different subjects were advertised during the current year. As these advertisements appeared in from two to six papers, it means that 84 distinct ads were run by the association in the Chicago daily newspapers with a total circulation in 1921-1922 of 35,140,000 copies.

While the association did not invest a great deal of its funds in press publicity, considerable attention was given to this work, and flowers did receive an unusually large amount of free press publicity, in fact we have been able to record approximately 15,000 lines of publicity which was a little less than one half of the lineage of our paid advertising. Ella Grant Wilson and other expert writers were employed by the association at a total cost of $2,641.29 to especially write these stories.

The most noteworthy of the indirect publicity activities entered into by your association was the flower show staged last August in connection with the Pageant of Progress. While the association did not contribute all the funds towards its maintenance, it directed the show which was viewed by hundreds of thousands. The flower show seemed to be favored in the publicity given in the papers. Thousands of bill boards were used by the Pageant of Progress to boom the exposition, and the flower show was prominently advertised. The great amount of publicity through this flower show alone cannot be estimated, but as one person said in endeavoring to guess at an estimate, "Flowers ran secondly to Bill Thompson."

The association also took a prominent part in the big Up-Town Exposition Flower Show, November, 1921. Besides the educational feature of showing chrysanthemums and other flowers before several hundred thousand people, much free publicity was given the show in the daily papers. The organization took the publicity guidance of the chrysanthemum show held at the Auditorium hotel, Chicago, November, 1921. Another indirect form of advertising that the association promoted, was in keeping track of shows and theatrical sketches where flowers could be used to advantage and advertised. These occasions were so numerous that it is hard to enumerate them.

MEMBERSHIP

Up to July 1, 1921, the membership of the association remained about the same as the year previous, but it was found that a number of retailers were not paying. The growers, on the other hand, had been paying religiously from the start. On May 1, compulsory payment by the retailer was put in operation by the wholesale market. This proved successful, financially at least, for two months and showed a decided increase in revenue, for that period. The compulsory plan, however, failed to function properly after July 1 and it was gradually dropped. From then on, collections, from the retailer, as I am informed by the wholesalers on the market, gradually fell off. I also found a condition of lack of interest in trying to force the retailers to pay. This was justifiable in view of the fact that there was no united action in the matter, and a wholesaler could not very well stand alone and force the collection which would be to his disadvantage.

Outside of a reduced revenue, brought about by the refusal of some retailers to pay the assessment, the association has functioned very satisfactorily through the year. This office has experienced very little trouble in collecting the funds from the wholesale houses each month. The basic principal of the association's method of collecting its fund has been proven absolutely correct. In fact, it works like a clock. The association has always carried a good balance in the bank and outlines all its campaigns according to the actual resources on hand, and on a budget system. From a business and practical point of view and when compared with other associations, I am sure we are up to the standard. I also believe it will interest our members to know that the directors have attended 14 officially called directors' meetings and given their time most generously to the interest of the whole trade.

HEAVIER SUPPLIES AT LOWER PRICES.

Business has been good the past week, although prices were unusually low. Funeral and hospital work took the lead due to the considerable number of influenza cases. Party work and decorations created a demand for many flowers. Roses, carnations, sweet peas and jonquils sold at the lowest figures than has been the case for several months. It has been nearly a year since the dry goods stores have taken a hand at selling carnations, but they had them last week, at 48 cents per dozen. Fancy sweet peas have been sold as low as 50 cents per bunch of 25. Bulbous stock is in better supply and values are being well maintained. In a visit to local greenhouses we found both cut and pot material in splendid condition and the outlook for Easter trade seems the best in many years.

CONVENTION COMMITTEES.

A meeting was called by Wm. L. Rock at his establishment, February 23, for the purpose of naming the local committees which will handle all details in connection with the Society of American Florists' convention in this city, August 15-17, next. The following are the committees and personnel: Hall arrangement, Samuel Murray, Wm. L. Rock; Entertainment and barbecue;

Be sure that the name MEYER is on every spool of green Florists thread that you are buying, and you will get the original and best green Florists thread on the market. A great many of the salesmen on the road and the Florists' supply houses are substituting a cheap and inferior green Florists thread to take the place of the Meyer Green Silkline and Florists' thread.

Therefore, if you cannot get the real article, send the goods back and order direct from the manufacturer and you will get the best. Guaranteed two ounces of actual thread to the spool, 16 ounces to the pound.

WEDDING AND FUNERAL WORK ABSORB STOCK

Several weddings and many large funerals held during the past week have made the retail market very active. The regular trade is also very good. The market has been practically cleaned out every day for stock is not very plentiful although of excellent quality. The demand is good for pot tulips, hyacinths and jonquils, while amongst the cut flowers, the jonquil is holding first place for popularity. Carnations are becoming scarcer every day and it keeps the retail stores on the jump to secure enough to supply their customers. Fortunately the call for roses is not heavy at this time and the short supply which is coming in is sufficient for all needs. Sweet peas, violets and mignonettes are in good demand at this time and the supply is all that can be desired.

NOTES.

The new location of Bolt-Lundy, "The House of Flowers" is perhaps the first of its kind in the middle west. Forced out of their old location at 615 Sixteenth street by the termination of their lease they have moved into the arcade of the Mack building, Sixteenth and California streets, using the Sixteenth street arcade as their show and salesroom. Ingress is also gained to the shop from the California street arcade. Finished in marble, the salesroom, which is about 20x100 feet makes a beautiful background for the display of flowers. Excellent opportunity for some elaborate window displays are obtainable by the use of 75 feet of plate glass display windows. A large stockroom and workroom will be made in the basement. A line of fancy box chocolates and bonbons will be taken on by the firm as a new venture.

The local newspapers made some very nice comments on the unusually large number of floral good wishes, which were sent to the firm of Hedgecock & Jones on the opening of their new store. They are dealers in women's wear and linens and received roses, baskets, palms

ICE STORM RETARDS SALES.

Market conditions the past week will be remembered for some time to come due to various causes. The forecast for business at the opening of the week was good; then came one of the worst sleet, rain, snow, ice and wind storms that has been experienced for many years, February 22-23, cutting off the entire northern part of Wisconsin, from this city to Lake Superior. Where the snow drifts were not deep enough to hinder transportation the elements caused the telephone poles to snap, strewn the highways with a mess of tangled wires. Many cities were isolated until February 25. As there are many shipments of flowers sent from here to that section a glut developed which weakened prices all around. By February 27 rail and wire communication was established to a certain extent which helped to relieve the local situation.

A heavy rain for two days last week caused the Milwaukee river to overflow, doing considerable damage just north of here. The Sunny Point Floral Co.'s greenhouses were flooded to the extent of 18 inches. By using kerosene stoves and due to mild weather very little damage was reported.

VOLUME OF TRADE DISAPPOINTING.

General business is slow and disappointing in volume. The only real trade is for funeral work. The market has experienced quite a drop in the price of roses owing to the slight demand and the increased volume of stock arriving. This has had no effect on carnations though, which are selling at the same prices of a week ago. Spring stock is also increasing daily; though there has been no premature drop in values they fluctuate back and forth from day to day. Sweet peas are at present a real glut, the really good ones clean up fairly well. The trouble is there is such a volume of inferior short stem stock coming in. Orchids and lily of the valley are not over plentiful which is well for the grower as the call is very light. Violets have been hard hit in the past week as the demand fell away to nothing after St. Valentine's Day. There were more sold probably by the street boys than in the stores this week.

The stockholders of the Co-operative Flower Market held a meeting February 25 to consider a new site for the market. The leases expire the end of the year and cannot be renewed. There is a possibility of both markets coming together and buying a place to build on.

The annual banquet of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club was held at Horticultural hall February 28.

WARM WEATHER FORCES STOCK.

The weather has been so mild, the thermometer mounting at times to 70 degrees, that jonquils are blooming outdoors and trees are in bud. Flowers are in plentiful supply, roses being of excellent quality. Mrs. Charles Russell and Premier are the leaders. The heavy offerings of carnation has caused a slump in prices on this item, some of the stock going at $1.25 per dozen at a special sale recently instituted by retailers on Saturdays, the cash and carry system being emphasized. It is reported that some of the department stores are disposing of carnations at 75 cents per dozen, although as a rule the retail flower shops are obtaining $3. Blooming plants are plentiful and sell well. Many report a success in the sale of calendulas, their deep orange color going well in com-

LOCAL FRUIT AND TRUCK GROWERS' MEETING.

The Davidson County Farm bureau called a meeting of local fruit and truck growers which was held at the Chamber of Commerce building, February 21, with an attendance of about 30 growers. "The Growing and Storing of Sweet Potatoes," was an ably prepared paper, by Geo. Strasser. C. E. Brehm, of the state division of agricultural extension, told of "Producing and Marketing Truck Crops in a Better Way." Robert L.

Morris, president of the Tennessee State Horticultural Society, discussed "Growing Apples and Peaches in Davidson Country." "Controlling Insects Injurious to Fruit and Truck Crops," was the subject of an interesting round table talk, in which all present participated. S. Marcovitch, assistant entomologist of the Tennessee State Experiment station, who was expected to lead in the above discussion, was unavoidably absent. Following the presentation of the papers a short business session was held, after which the meeting adjourned.

A FLOOD OF STOCK RECEIVED.

The past week has been one of the most strenuous of the season. There was a good clean up the Saturday before, with all fresh stock to start the week, but the buying all at once fell off, the day's shipments being much too large for the call. Then came Washington's birthday with little business and very little the day after. Meanwhile the sun was working over time; heat records for the season were broken, doubling up the shipments. Every line was full to overflowing and prices went head over heels downwards. Fine long stemmed roses were sold as low as $50 per 1,000 and all other stock in quantity lots at buyers' prices. There was an avalanche of sweet peas, glorious stock, the very best not bringing as much as the low grades of a month ago. Never has the market been more fully supplied or with better quality. There are wonderful carnations but no demand for them. A month ago they brought six, eight cents and higher; now it is two and four cents, with lots unsold. Freesias and violets appear to have no friends at all. Easter and calla lilies hold up very well, although as the quantities of these increase, the poorer grades multiply faster than the specials. There are quite a lot of crippled callas and short stemmed Easter lilies that cut into the general average returns. High grade snapdragon is bidding for a place, the quality being fine. Cattleyas, lily of the valley and lilacs, some of them a very good lavender in color, about hold their own. With all the great over-production, due to the bright sunshine and mild weather, really very little stock has gone to waste, most of it has been sold, however, at very low figures, but it has gone into the hands of the street men or retailers and through them to the public at quick moving prices.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING, MARCH 7.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Club, on Tuesday, March 7, should have a record attendance. P. M. Koster, the noted Holland nurseryman, who has just become a citizen of this country, is to address the members on "Horticulture—Its Duty and Its Future." In honor to Mr. Koster there will be a "Welcome to America" dinner to be held in the roof garden, of the Adelphia hotel, at 6 p. m., sharp before the meeting. Dinner tickets are to be obtained of E. P. Klinger, 1201 Race street, chairman of the house committee. All applications should be in by Monday, March 6. Every effort is being put forth to make this one of the most noted meetings the club has ever held.

NOTES.

John Habermehl states the social season is winding up favorably with them. On Friday last they had an elaborate decoration for the Second Assembly ball which taxed their greenhouses to furnish enough material. Cibotiums, of which they have the largest stock in the country, were a feature. They also used an immense amount of roses and other cut flowers. The Ivy ball at the University of Pennsylvania was also an elaborate affair. While the handsomely decorated Philopatrian ball, February 28, at the Academy of Music closed the season.

is always bright with its wealth of cut flowers and pot plants. An attraction to the many thousands that pass daily. His artistic creations and novel ideas in floral arrangements together with his inspirational suggestions for the conduct of the business were much appreciated by his large audience. THE BEST COLOR CHART

Arranged by F. Schuyler Matthews, and lithographed by Prang, this chart is now accepted as the standard in preparing color descriptions by many foreign houses as well as in this country.

Price $1.00 Postpaid.

AMERICAN FLORIST CO.
440 SOUTH DEARBORN STREET, CHICAGO

Frederick Berger has purchased the Jacob Becker greenhouses, at Fifty-second and Market streets, and will re-erect them at Flourtown, Pa. This is the second time Mr. Becker has moved his greenhouses to make way for stores and other lines of business. A large moving picture theatre replaces the houses this time and takes up every foot of the ground.

Frank Ross says the retailer who does not take advantage of the present market conditions to handle flowers in quantity at lower prices stands in his own light. "We do not wait for our customers to find out that flowers are cheaper; we tell them about it and our large sales show that they appreciate and take advantage of the opportunity," Mr. Ross said.

The Leo Niessen Co. handled an enormous quantity of flowers the past week. Arthur Niessen said they tried to swamp us but we fought them back, although it was hard work to beat old Sol with his six sunny days and only a weak market to back us up. We kept the stock moving, however, and look now for a good spring season.

The street men had a great harvest. During the entire week, the days were bright and with such quantities of stock at low prices, they made a killing every day.

The Philadelphia Growers' Cut Flower Market is featuring splendid roses. Manager Lynch says it is some job to clean up as the market is, at this time.

Berger Bros. handled thousands of sweet peas, making almost a record for a week with this flower. Spring bulbs and carnations were other features.

Larry Mathews of the T. Nelson Geiger force has resigned his position and moved to Miami, Fla. His many friends were loth to see him go.

Southern asparagus is scarce, which is good for the greenhouse stock and has given the hardy ferns a boom. Box wood is also being substituted.

George Auegle is handling excellent purple lilacs. Butterfly roses from his Morton greenhouses are exceptionally fine.

New York.

SHARP DECLINE IN PRICES.

The market is now flooded with stock and there was a great fall in prices during the past week. But up to this writing, although Broadway retailers are offering roses at $1.50 per dozen and carnations $1 per dozen, it makes little impression on the buying public. American Beauty roses and gardenias have been in moderate supply but a new crop of the latter is now coming on and their values will follow the general downward trend. The break in prices was expected but it came with such smashing effect that there might have been a panic if the wholesale business was formed along Wall street lines, but regardless of all that has been said against it the flower market has not yet reached the "bucket shop" level. No fault can be found with the quality of stock arriving. There are fine orchids, gardenias, roses, carnations, Darwin tulips, narcissi, acacias, snapdragons and various minor offerings. As decorative features the forsythias and pussy willows are noteworthy. To give one an idea in the decline in prices it may be stated that extra tea roses that a short time ago sold at $15 per 100 are now down to $6 and $8.

J. LICHTENBERGER

1560 Avenue A, NEW YORK CITY

February 27.—With an immense supply of stock the market continues in poor condition.

NOTES.

Geo. M. Stumpp, the founder of the retail business now conducted by his son, G. E. M. Stumpp, recently returned from an extended visit in Europe. Mrs Stumpp accompanied him. His many friends will be pleased to learn that he seems to be in the best of health and is looking fine. He has his doubts about the swords of Europe being beaten into ploughshares just yet.

We are advised that the trade tickets to be used for covering admission to the spring show, at the Grand Central palace, March 13-19, are now on sale at the Canadian Pacific building, 342 Madison avenue, in quantities of 50 to 100, 50 cents each; 100 or more, 40 cents, each.

Considerable interest is being manifested by the trade here relative to the plant quarantine conference to be called by the federal horticultural board, April 19, at Washington, Quarantine No. 37 being discussed. The trade is anxious to know the object.

A little girl was recently added to the family of Maurice Kleinman, buyer for Myer, Madison avenue and 58th street. A previous arrival was a boy and Maurice now has as many kinds of children as anyone else.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed in the United States court, in the case of Sam Seligman, dealer in artificial flowers at 116 West Twenty-eighth street. Liabilities are listed at $15,000; assets, $4,000.

J. Spiro's Broadway Floral Shop has elegantly decorated windows. In addition to many other good features tall baskets of long stemmed and finely flowered carnations are conspicuous.

Malandre Bros. had an elaborate and appropriate window decoration for Washington's birthday and their windows are a daily exhibition of the finest stock the market affords.

In addition to a good stock of cut flowers, J. K. Allen in the Eighteenth street market is handling a line of hyacinths, in pots and pans, and pot ferns.

Secretary John Young, of the Society of American Florists, packed his grip, February 22, and started on another missionary tour of the middle west.

Taking advantage of the plentitude of flowers, the retailers, to quote Mark Tapley, are "coming out strong" on window decorations.

The Aphrodite Flower Shop is now a combination flower and bird store, the birds being almost as interesting as the flowers.

T. Sakelos, who is well known in the retail trade, recently opened a neat store at 2555 Broadway, near 96th street.

Myer, of Madison avenue and 58th street, who has been very ill with the grip is again back to business.

Pop Kenney, an oldtimer in the wholesale district, is now with Harry Charles.

VISITED New York: Leonard H. Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago.

SOUTHERN France reports February 16, abundant rains, and if normal weather conditions prevail during March and April, the bulb crop should be a medium one.

EUGENE SCHAEFFEL, retired member of the firm of Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., Paris, France, now at home in that city, expects to start upon a second tour of Alsace in May next.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district have advanced sharply to $1.90 for colors and $2.25 for whites, prompt shipment in car lots, and some jobbers predict further advance.

Re: seed bill, H. California Seed Crops.

The L. D. Waller Seed Co., Guadalupe, Calif., writes as follows February 20: "We are glad to say that the frost during the past few weeks has done absolutely no damage to any of our sweet peas or growing crops of flower seeds. We have perfect stands of sweet peas, and many varieties of flower seeds are up, and also show good stands. The planting, this year, is in advance of any previous year, and as we have had to date, over 10 inches of rain, which is more rain than we received for the total rainfall of 1921, and more for this time of the year than any year for the past five, we therefore believe that the prospects for good crops are excellent."

Vegetable Seed Prices.

Prices quoted for vegetable seeds, both by retail mail-order and wholesale dealers, are almost uniformly lower than in 1921, and, for most items, the lowest since 1917. The decline has been constant since 1918, when the peak was reached for most kinds.

The accompanying tables of retail catalogue and wholesale prices show that the prices of beans, peas, sweet corn, lettuce and vine-crop seeds fluctuated less violently than did other seeds, including beets, cabbage, celery spinach, and turnip, of which large quantities normally are imported.

Any changes in the price of the former group, of which the domestic production is usually sufficient to supply the needs of this country, may be attributed largely to variations in the cost of production and preparation for market. The supply of the latter group, however, was not controlled by domestic commercial growers and with imports suddenly cut off the high prices prevailing in 1918 followed. Likewise the rally of domestic growers to supply the deficit thus created, followed by the rapid resumption of imports, caused these items to decline quickly to their 1917 price levels.

On the whole, wholesale prices for 1922 compared with 1921 show a greater reduction than do the retail catalogue prices. The wholesale prices of beans, peas, sweet corn, beet, cabbage, carrot, celery, onion, parsley, squash, and turnip are 15 to 30 per cent less, while the retail catalogue prices of these items, with the exception of cabbage and English turnip, are only 5 to 15 per cent less than last year.

Very little change, if any, occurred in the wholesale prices of other kinds of vegetable seeds except tomato which is quoted 10 per cent less. The average retail prices of tomato declined 8 per cent, spinach 15 per cent, and watermelon 9 per cent; cucumber, lettuce, muskmelon, parsley, parsnip, and radish were unchanged to slightly lower.

Van Der Schoots on Tour.

A. C. Van der Schoot, the well known Dutch bulb grower and exporter, together with his sister and daughter, is making a trip to the south of Italy and France. He reports that in the neighborhood of Toulon, the Roman hyacinths and Paper White narcissi have suffered from drought, but that late in January there was sufficient rain to insure a normal crop. Mr. Van der Schoot and his party are also visiting Tunis and Algiers, via Marseille.

The father of A. C. Van der Schoot was the first Hollander to visit America selling Dutch bulbs. Since that time, the Van der Schoots have continued to do business with Vaughan's Seed Store and have had the pleasure of seeing J. C. Vaughan and his family from time to time in Holland.

A. C. Van der Schoot is now in his fifty-second year.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

M. R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn., President; Paul C. Lindley, Pomona, N. C., Vice-President; Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

The forty-seventh annual convention will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 28-30, 1922.

A NUMBER of nurserymen are reported as establishing small branch nurseries in eastern states for fear of quarantines of interstate shipments.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—The Lowry Nursery & Landscape Co., was recently incorporated with a capital of $150,000. J. H. Lowry, J. A. Shearer, L. A. Pottinger, J. S. Cruse, Geo. Rosenburg, John Powell and T. A. Pass are the directors.

WHILE little information has been obtained, it is known the damage to Michigan and Wisconsin fruit and other trees by last week's snow and ice has been enormous, as in the New England storm of last winter. The Door county cherry orchards are said to have escaped serious injury.

ONECO, FLA.—Reasoner Bros., have now a director of publicity in their establishment, who sends out circular blanks asking information on 12 points from their prospective customer, in order that they may intelligently recommend improvements desired.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—The referee's sale of Narrows Nursery, bankrupts, has been postponed due to the stock not being saleable. It is stated that only the mechanical part of the greenhouses and a few tools are in condition to be sold, and that creditors will be fortunate to receive a dividend of five or 10 per cent within the next year.

Illinois State Nurserymen's Association.

"PLAN TO PLANT ANOTHER TREE WEEK."

The Illinois State Nurserymen's Association is undertaking to popularize the slogan, "Plan to Plant Another Tree," and has designated the week of March 12-19, as a proper time to put the slogan over in a big way. The association has enlisted the aid of the press, clubs and organizations to make the week a success.

Nurserymen generally can aid this movement by using a rubber stamp on all their mail and literature, thus familiarizing their customers with the slogan. It would be a good idea for the trade to advertise in March, especially during the week of March 12-19. "Plan to Plant Another Tree," holds the attention, suggests two kinds of action and will undoubtedly get many people thinking. Anyone can plan but everybody will not plant; consequently if everybody plans to plant, someone is sure to do that planting.

ILLINOIS MORE FRUITFUL AND BEAUTIFUL.

This is a plan to unite all civic and agricultural societies with the press of Illinois in the movement outlined above. The state needs this service. We are robbing future generation and it is time to awake and unite every effort to save our forests, build our orchards, plan and plant our home grounds. By so doing, we will hand down to those who live after us a heritage greater than all riches, because we will give to the future a state filled with God's beautiful trees and shrubs and flowers. Why plan to plant? Nothing is ever successfully planted by chance. Plans are made and then executed. Plan in March what to plant in April.

Suitable articles will appear in the press of the state during March on such subjects as, "Winter Spraying—How, When, What and Why?" "How to Prune Fruits," "Spray for What, When and How," "How to Care for Nursery Stock," "Making a Flower Garden," "Do Not Rob the Future," "Planting the Home Grounds," "Landscape Plans," and "A Planting Plan for a Farm Home."

Farm advisors will co-operate by personal suggestions and by encouraging horticulture. During March, farmers' clubs of the state, and there are hundreds of them, will hold meetings at which time a speaker will talk on the subject "Plan to Plant Another Tree" with discussion to follow. Illinois has Farmers' Institutes in almost every county, who will be asked to co-operate.

This unselfish campaign appeals to the schools who will co-operate because our teachers and officers from the state superintendent of public instruction and the county superintendents, to the teacher of the smallest school all realize the great benefit and real helpfulness of the trees for fruit, shade and beauty; the bushes for fruit and landscape; and the flowers that make the delightful displays in our gardens.
